

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

3 1761 01484981 4

PA 6568
C2
1892

Presented to the LIBRARY of the UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO
by

ESTATE OF THE LATE MARY SINCLAIR

Clarendon Press Series

T. MACCI PLAVTI

CAPTIVI

LINDSAY

London

HENRY FROWDE

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS WAREHOUSE
AMEN CORNER, E.C.

New York

112 FOURTH AVENUE

Clarendon Press Series

T. MACCI PLAVTI

CAPTIVI

WITH INTRODUCTION AND NOTES

BY

W. M. LINDSAY, M.A.

FELLOW OF JESUS COLLEGE

PART I — INTRODUCTION AND TEXT

SECOND EDITION

Oxford

AT THE CLARENDON PRESS

1892

Oxford

HORACE HART, PRINTER TO THE UNIVERSITY

PA 6568
C2
1592

1068309

P R E F A C E.

THIS little book does not claim to be a critical edition of the Captivi. Textual emendation does not come within its scope. Its only aim is to explain the difficulties in the play, to supply the necessary stage-directions after the example of the Clarendon Press Trinummus, and so to enable boys of the Higher Forms of our Schools to read with intelligence and interest a play which, more than any other of Plautus, may suitably be put into a schoolboy's hands. Schoolmasters usually find the Plautus-lecture the best opportunity for teaching the etymology and structure of Latin words; so I have devoted a considerable proportion of the notes to this subject. The text used is, in accordance with the wish of the editor of the Series, that of Fleckeisen (Teubner), and valuable assistance has been derived for the notes from the German edition by Julius Brix (4th ed. 1884).

W. M. LINDSAY.

Oxford, 1887.

CONTENTS OF PART I.

INTRODUCTION

	PAGE
I. PLOT OF THE 'CAPTIVI' . . . . .	9
II. PLAUTINE PROSODY . . . . .	10
III. PLAUTINE SYNTAX . . . . .	15
IV. HOW A ROMAN COMEDY WAS PUT ON THE STAGE	19
TEXT OF THE 'CAPTIVI' . . . . .	23

INTRODUCTION.

---

I. PLOT OF THE 'CAPTIVI.'

THE 'Captivi' is unlike most other Plautine Comedies in its serious tone. Its subject is the faithful attachment of a slave to his master, without any of the love intrigues of young spend-thrifts, or schemes to wring money out of miserly fathers which form the staple plot of a Latin Comedy. It has no women's parts, and not even a mention of women from first to last. Indeed, were it not for the scenes in which the Parasite plays his amusing part, the play might be in danger of being wearisome; and there is some likelihood in the supposition that these Parasite scenes were Plautus' own invention, thrown in for the sake of liveliness, and did not belong to his Greek original. But if this be the case, he must get the credit of clever disposition of his materials, for the play runs very smoothly, and has gained the high praise of such a critic as Lessing, who calls it 'the best comedy ever put on the stage.' The plot is briefly this.

Hegio, a wealthy Aetolian, has just lost his elder son, Philopolemus, who has been taken captive by the Eleans, then at war with the Aetolians. To procure his son's release he buys a noble Elean captive, Philocrates, along with his slave, Tyndarus (the two 'captives' from whom the play takes its name), with the view of exchanging him for his son. Tyndarus and Philocrates, however, have made a plot to interchange names and dress, so that Hegio unwittingly sends Philocrates away to Elis to arrange the ransom, thinking him to be the slave and not the master, while he retains Tyndarus, the slave. The trick is discovered to Hegio by another Elean captive, Aristophontes, whom Hegio brings to 'interview' the supposed Philocrates, and Tyndarus is taken away for punishment. From this fate, however, he is happily rescued by the return of the real Philocrates from Elis, who brings with him not only Philopolemus, but Stalagmus, a former slave of Hegio, who had long before kidnapped Hegio's younger son. To the surprise of everyone, Stalagmus shows that Tyndarus is the boy whom he stole; and Hegio's two sons being thus restored to him in a single day, the play ends as happily as could be desired.

II. PLAUTINE PROSODY.

For a long time it was the fashion to deny that the lines of Plautus could be reduced to any strict laws of metre. In support of this view the words of Cicero were quoted: Orator 55. 184 comicorum senarii propter similitudinem sermonis sic saepe sunt abiecti, ut non nunquam vix in eis numerus et versus intellegi possit: 20.67 apud quos [i. e. comicos poetas] nisi quod versiculi sunt, nihil est aliud quotidiani dissimile sermonis. It was as absurd, it was urged, to try to bring the lines of Plautus into the shape of Greek Comic Iambics as it would be to try to scan every line of the old English comedians,—say this passage from Middleton, A Trick to Catch the Old One, Act i. Sc. 1.—

‘Arm your wits then Speedily; there shall want nothing in me,
Either in behaviour, discourse, or fashion,
That shall discredit your intended purpose.’

And no doubt such a view was very plausible so long as the text of Plautus was in the bad state in which it appears in old editions. But with the discovery of better MSS. it was found that often, when a faulty line was restored to its true form, it scanned without any difficulty. Thus, in Merc. 46 obiurgare pater haec noctes et dies, the reading of old editions is an imperfect iambic line, but becomes quite rhythmical when we substitute for 'obiurgare' the old form which we find in the Ambrosian palimpsest (Trin. 70) 'obiurigare'— obiu | riga | re pater | haec noc | tes et | dies.

In the same way, by restoring the old form of the acc. me, tē, which, we know from inscriptions, ended in -d in the time of Plautus, to such lines as—

- - | - - | - - | - - | - - | υ -

Mil. Glor. 1382 te volt, te quaerit, ted expectat, deperit, we remove the hiatus, just as the insertion of the digamma into a line of Homer like

Od. I. 4 πολλὰ δ' ὃ γ' ἐν πόντῳ πάθεν ἄλγεα (f)ὸν κατὰ θυμόν, removes the hiatus between ἄλγεα and ἔν.

In these two cases that we have mentioned, 'obiurigare' and acc. 'ted,' the old form differs in spelling from the classical form. In a good many cases, however, the spelling was the same, but the pronunciation was different. A comparative, like stultior, was spelt in the same way in Plautus' time as at a later time (although at a period before Plautus it had been spelt stultios); but while Virgil and his contemporaries pronounced the word stultiōr, Plautus and his contemporaries pronounced it stultiōr. So that a line like Bacch. I. 2. 15—

- - | υ - | - - | υ - | υ - | υ -

I stultior es barbaro poticio, is only irregular when we read the words as a later age would have pronounced them, just as the third line of the 'Canterbury Tales' would be if we read it according to nineteenth-century pronunciation—

'And bathed every vein in such liquor;'

or as the rhyme in Pope's lines would be,—

'And thou, great Anna, whom three realms obey

Dost sometimes counsel take and sometimes tea ;'

if we did not pronounce the word tea, as it was pronounced in Pope's time, tay.

A great many of the irregularities in the lines of Plautus disappear when we restore the old forms of the words. But even after this has been done, there still remains a great difference between Plautus' iambics and those of Catullus or Horace or, at a later age, Seneca; and this is, of course, only to be expected, for Plautus was a pioneer in verse writing, and wrote before the language had received a literary form; so that it would be as unjust to expect perfect literary polish and exactness in his verses as to try the lines of Middleton by the standard of Tennyson. Plautus was one of the first to set himself to translate Greek plays into Latin, using the same metre as he found in the Greek originals; and his attempts were often no more successful than Ennius' reproduction of Homer's hexameters, or Cicero's rendering of Sophocles, e.g. Trach. 1100—

τόν τε χρυσέων

δράκοντα μήλων φύλακ' ἐπ' ἐσχάτοις τόποις,

dracón | em aurífe | ram obtú | tu adsér | vantem ár | borem, or, we may even say, than some pentameters of Catullus himself: e.g. 73. 6—

quam modo qui me unum atque unicum amicum habuit (!).

One great reason why Plautus' lines are hard to scan is that he lived earlier than Ennius, who introduced most of the metrical laws by which classical Latin poetry is bound, and who gave the Latin language a distinct literary shape. Ennius, for instance, made it a usage of Latin poetry that a short vowel might be treated as long before two consonants, such as cr in the middle of a word. This usage was unknown to Plautus, and so in his lines such a word as sacrum is never scanned sācrum. Again, in Ennius' time the consonants, m, s, t, n, d and others, were often hardly sounded at the end of a word. The three last words, for example, of Catullus' line quoted above would be pronounced (both in Ennius' time and later) unicu' amicu' habuit, the only trace of the m being in the nasal pronunciation of the u: somnus reliquit would be pronounced somnu' reliquit (as we could imagine it pronounced in modern French); amaris before a word beginning with a consonant would sound like amari' or amare; dedit in the same situation would sound (as we find it spelt on old inscriptions) dede ; even the final -nt of dederunt was lazily dropped in pronunciation, and the word made to sound dedere. Plautus allows all these pronunciations in his verses—

-   - | ♪ - | -   - |   - |   - - | ♪ -

Capt. I. 1. 6   estne invocatu' an non est? est planissume.

♪   ♪   - |

„ I. 2. 11 sumu' quam servimus.

♪   ♪   - |

„ I. 2. 15 ita u' dicis.

Ennius, however, established it as a usage for all subsequent poetry, that certain of them should be allowed and others not allowed. He allowed, or rather enforced, the dropping of final m when the next word began with a vowel or h; amicum habuit, for example, was necessarily pronounced amicu' habuit, so that the last syllable of amicum ending in the vowel u (now that the m was dropped) was elided before the initial syllable of habuit. But in a case like amicum perdidit, where the word following the final m began with a consonant, the m was not allowed to be dropped. The words could not scan amicū' perdidit, but only amicūm perdidit. He also allowed, but did not enforce, the elision of final s before an initial consonant, a practice which was, however, dropped by the Augustan poets, although it left its traces even in prose literature in the double forms of the 2nd sing. pass. amaris and amare, etc. But he did not allow final t, n, d or any other consonant to be dropped, although the form of the 3rd plur. perf. ind. in -re for -runt forced its way both into poetry and prose.

Plautus' verses, then, belong to a time when the metrical laws, to which all later Latin poetry conformed, had not yet been fixed. They reproduce the ordinary pronunciation of everyday life, much more than the artificial language of later Latin poetry<sup>1</sup>, and that is what Cicero meant when he said

<sup>1</sup> We might find a parallel in the artificial pronunciation of the word 'wind' as 'wīnd' in English poetry.

(in the passage quoted above) that 'numerus et versus' [i.e. the 'numerus et versus' of Ennius, Lucretius, and the like] often seem to be wanting in Plautus' lines.

For a full list of Plautus' divergences in scansion (i.e. pronunciation) of words from the usage of classical poetry, we refer the reader to Ritschl's Prolegomena, and content ourselves with noticing the most important under three heads:—

(1) Neglect of Position in some disyllabic words of constant occurrence: e.g. ille, iste, ecce, ipse, unde, intus, inter, nempe, omnis.

(2) Synizesis in some disyllables with short penult: e.g. scīō, tūus, dūō, puer, fūi, diēs, diū.

(Similarly in an elegiac epitaph on one of the tombs of the Scipios, c. 150 B.C., we have: Virtutes generis mīeis [i.e. meis] moribus accumulavi: 'I crowned the virtues of my race by my own good character.')

(3) Shortening of final long syllable in some disyllables ending in a vowel with short penult: e.g. abī, rogā, jubē, dedī, volō, egō. (So in classical poetry, modō, citō, benē, malē, mihī, etc., and even sometimes cavē, putō, etc.)

All these 'irregularities' are confined to a certain number of words, and are not used at random. Similarly Hiatus, which is not at all so common in Plautus as used to be thought, is limited to certain circumstances: e.g. (1) when a line is broken up between two speakers, Capt. 373; (2) before or after interjections, such as o, heu, and the like; (3) after the first half of a trochaic tetrameter (the line being considered to consist of two dimeters), Capt. 438, 861; (4) with monosyllables ending in a long vowel, diphthong, or m, when in arsis. But on this, as on other points of Plautine Prosody, we refer the reader to Wagner's Introduction to the Aulularia (2nd edition).

The two chief metres used by Plautus are the Iambic Trimeter and Trochaic Tetrameter.

Plautus' iambic and trochaic lines are meant by him to follow the metre of the Greek comedy which he was adapting into Latin. And yet how many people read his lines without recognising the rhythm, although they have no difficulty in scanning a line of Aristophanes or Menander. In reality the rules of Plautine iambics and trochaics are almost the same as those of Greek comic iambics and trochaics. I say almost the same ; for the different nature of the Latin language gave Latin iambics, to a slight extent, a ring of their own. Thus it is a feature of Latin comic iambics that the fifth foot is almost always a spondee (e.g. of the first ten lines of Act 1. sc. 1 of the Captivi seven have a spondee in this foot) ; and of trochaic tetrameters, that the sixth foot be a spondee. This spondaic character of the Latin rhythm is intensified by the spondee being admitted into any foot of Iambics or Trochaics, excepting of course the last. But if the Latin poets seem to allow themselves more licence in this point than the Greeks, they are stricter than their Greek models with regard to Caesura, and in not allowing monosyllables to end a verse. And lastly, one noticeable point of difference between the verses of Latin and Greek comedy is that the Roman dramatists try, as far as they can, to keep the metrical ictus of a word in agreement with its accent in pronunciation. They would not, for example, allow a word like pectore or onere to stand in the middle of an iambic line where the words would have to be scanned pectóre, onére ; nor would they suffer the metrical ictus to fall on enclitics or unimportant words, such as est, sunt, qui, quod, etc. So that Plautus' lines, if we read them with regard to their metre, will give us a fair idea of how Latin would sound, when spoken, in his day.

III. PLAUTINE SYNTAX.

We find a good many constructions in Plautus which we should not find in the speeches or philosophical works of Cicero. Some of these are Old Latin usages, which are found in the early tragedians as well as in Plautus, but which have become obsolete by the time of Cicero ; others belong to colloquial Latin and, while excluded from the severer diction of Tragedy, recur in later compositions of a homely style, such as the Letters of Cicero. The most noticeable of the unclassical constructions used by Plautus are these:—

I. The Cases :—

(1) Gen. with cupio, vereor, etc. : e.g. Mil. 4. 1. 17 quae cupiunt tui ; Trin. 4. 1. 22 quanquam domi cupio, opperiar ; Aul. 2. 2. 67 fastidit mei.

(2) Partitive gen. with neuter pronouns and adjectives : e.g. Poen. 3. 3. 5 sed quid huc tantum hominum incedunt ? Bacch. 4. 8. 18 nihil est lucri.

(3) Dat. with deceat : e.g. Amph. 2. 2. 188 istuc facinus, quod tu insimulas, nostro generi non deceat.

(4) Acc. of neuter pronoun with intransitive verb : e.g. Capt. 680 id nunc suscenses mihi ? Most. 4. 3. 16 nisi quid magis es occupatus.

(5) Acc. with utor, fungor : e.g. Poen. 5. 2. 128 profecto utēris, ut voles, operam meam ; Most. 1. 1. 45 sine me aliato fungi fortunas meas.

(6) Acc. with verbal noun (only in questions introduced by quid, and only in Plaut.) : e.g. Most. 1. 1. 33 quid tibi, malum, me, aut quid ego agam, curatio est ? Poen. 5. 5. 29 quid tibi istanc digito tactio est ? Cf. Eur. Or. 1069 ἐν μὲν πρῶτά σοι μομφὴν ἔχω.

(7) Abl. with aeque, adaeque : e.g. Amph. 1. 1. 137 nullo hoc meticulosus aequē ; Most. 1. 1. 30 quo nemo adaeque iuventute ex omni Attica | antehac est habitus parcus.

Aequē and adaequē often go with comparatives : e.g. Capt. 700 aequē melius.

(8) Ex with abl. of names of towns : e.g. Trin. 3. 3. 42 quasi ad adolescentem a patre ex Seleucia Veniat ; 4. 2. 3 advenio ex Seleucia.

Similarly in with acc. : e. g. Trin. 1. 2. 75 iturust ipsus in Seleuciam; Pseud. 4. 6. 36 in Sicyonem abduxit: conversely, the abl. and acc. without a preposition are often found with names of countries.

II. Verbs :—

1. Tenses:

(1) Pres. ind. for fut. in questions : e. g. Mil. 5. 1. 14 quam mox seco? 'when shall I begin to cut?' (Plautus puns on this usage in Most. 2. 1. 21 P. Quid ego ago? T. Nam quid tu malum me rogitas quid agas? Accubas.)

(2) Fut. ind. for pres. subj. in oaths : e. g. Trin. 2. 4. 46 ita me amabit Jupiter; Ter. Heaut. 3. 1. 54 sic me di amabunt, ut, &c.

(3) Periphrastic fut. with dabo, etc. : e. g. Mil. 2. 2. 53 bene coctum dabit; Ter. Heaut. 5. 1. 77 si vivo adeo exornatum dabo, Adeo depexum; Ter. Andr. 4. 2. 20 hoc ego tibi profecto effectum reddam.

(4) Perf. inf. for pres. (especially after volo) : e. g. Aul. 5. 1. 19 non potes probasse nugas; Cato R. R. 5 ne quid emisse velit insciente domino.

(5) Pluperf. ind. for perf. : e. g. Capt. 194 ad fratrem, quo ire dixeram, mox ivero.

(6) Fut. perf. ind. for fut. : e. g. Capt. 194; Aul. 4. 5. 6 tantisper huc ego ad ianuam concessero; Bacch. 2. 2. 33 immo hercle abiero potius.

(7) Pres. subj. for perf. in prohibitions, whether addressed to a definite person or not : e. g. Capt. 548.

2. Moods :

(1) Ind. (as well as subj.) in indirect questions : e. g. Pers. 4. 4. 103 audin quid ait? Amph. 1. 1. 221 loquere quid venisti; Capt. 207 sentio quam rem agitis.

(2) Inf. of purpose : e. g. Trin. 4. 3. 8 recurre petere; Cist. 2. 1. 26 abi quaerere.

- (3) Ind. (as well as subj.) with causal qui: e. g. Pers. 1. 2. 23 sed sumne ego stultus qui rem curo publicam? Truc. 1. 1. 49 quippe qui certo scio.

Also :

Impersonal use of verbs of feeling : e. g. Capt. 152 huic illud dolet ; Ter. Phorm. 3. 1. 10 numquid subolet patri?

III. Adverbs :—

(1) Adv. with sum : e. g. Most. 1. 1. 49 quia mihi bene est et tibi male est ; Merc. 3. 1. 30 ne tu frustra sis.

(2) Quoniam (= quum iam)—temporal, not causal : e. g. Trin. 1. 2. 112 quoniam hinc est profecturus peregre Charmides, 'when Charmides came to set out from home for foreign parts.'

(3) Etiam in questions with imperatival force : e. g. Pers. 2. 4. 4 etiam respicis? 'won't you look round?' Ter. Ad. 4. 2. 11 etiam taces? 'hush!'

(4) Nimis = 'very' : e. g. Most. 1. 3. 20 nimis tu quidem stulta's mulier ; Pers. 4. 4. 74 nimis pavebam, 'I was in a fright.'

IV. Conjunctions :—

(1) Double negative : e. g. Epid. 5. 1. 57 neque ille haud obiciet mihi ; Ter. Andr. 1. 2. 34 neque tu haud dices tibi non praedictum.

This construction is only found with neque, and seems due to the fact that uneducated Romans did not realize that neque = et non. Neque and haud are always separated by a word, e. g. neque ille haud.

(2) Nec for non : e. g. Bacch. 1. 2. 11 tu dis nec recte dicis. Cf. necopinans, negotium (nec-otium), res nec mancipi, &c.

(3) Ut in wishes for utinam (cf. ὅπως in commands) : e. g. Poen. 4. 2. 90 bene ut sit tibi ; Ter. Eun. 2. 3. 11 ut illum di deaeque senium perdant.

(4) Atque = 'all at once : ' e.g. Epid. 2. 2. 33 quom ad portum venio atque ego illam illi video praestolarier ; Most. 5. 1. 9 quom eum convocavi, atque illi me ex senatu segregant.

IV. HOW A ROMAN COMEDY WAS PUT ON THE STAGE.

Dramatical representations did not take place at Rome, as with us, throughout the whole year. They were only given on certain occasions, namely, at the public festivals—the Ludi Megalenses (April 4-9), Ludi Apollinares (July 6), Ludi Romani (Sept. 4-12), Ludi Plebeii (Nov. 16-18), and now and then at private celebrations, such as the funeral of a distinguished Roman. The givers of the entertainment were the magistrates who presided over the games, so that there was nothing at Rome, in republican times at least, corresponding to our theatrical managers. Indeed there was no regular theatre until the close of the Republic, 55 B.C., when Pompey built a stone theatre. Wooden structures were erected on each occasion of the games, and pulled down after they had served their purpose. The plays were performed by companies of actors (greges or catervae), one of whom, the dominus gregis, who was generally the chief actor (actor primarum, sc. partium), bought the piece from the composer, and contracted for the performance of it with the magistrate who was to give the entertainment, much in the primitive fashion that we see in the Midsummer-Night's Dream.

The wooden platform, which formed the stage, had in the foreground an altar, at which naughty slaves in Plautus' comedies often seek protection when in dread of a beating (e.g. Most. fin.), while the scene at the back represented a Greek house or houses, often with a narrow passage (angiportus) between them. In this passage actors often conceal themselves, when they wish to overhear the conversation of those on the stage. At the left side of the stage (from the spectators) was a door, which was the conventional exit and entrance for the harbour or foreign parts, and at the right side another door, supposed to lead to the rest of the town, usually the market-place. The small half-circle (orchestra) immediately in front of the centre of the stage, was reserved for senators, and was probably provided with seats; the front 14 rows were, by the Lex Roscia, 67 B.C., set aside for members of the equestrian order; while the general public stood behind (for seats did not come into use till about 150 B.C.), in row after row in the body (cavea) of the theatre, which was merely a circle of rising ground, marked off with hurdles. The prologues of the plays of Plautus, which date from 150-50 B.C., give us a lively idea of the noisy, struggling crowd that confronted the reciter of the prologue when he appeared before the curtain, and bade the herald proclaim silence (exsurge, praeco, fac populo audientiam, Poen. prol. 11), slaves pushing and fighting for a place, gossiping women, squalling children, &c., while the ushers (dissignatores) in vain attempted to introduce order into the confusion, and often, by misapplied zeal, drowned the voice of the actor by their loud remonstrances to disorderly spectators (Poen. prol.). With such a heterogeneous audience, all in the restless undisciplined state of feelings that a public holiday engenders, every precaution had to be taken to make the plot of the play clear. And so we find that the prologues of Latin Comedies explain the play with a minuteness and repetition which an English audience would not tolerate, and indeed often tell beforehand everything that is going to happen on the stage. Besides, there were several stage conventions which helped to make the action of the play clear to spectators who might fail to catch what the actors said. Each stock character of comedy had its peculiar colour of dress<sup>1</sup>, old men white, young men parti-coloured, parasites grey, &c. (Donatus, Commentarius de Comoedia, p. 11 sq.), and (when masks were introduced, c. 150 B. C.) its peculiar style of mask. Actors entering by the left-hand door of the stage were, as we said before, understood to be coming from foreign parts, actors entering by the right, from the town itself. Moreover, the want of variety in the plots of Latin comedy, though tedious to an English reader, was another thing which made the action of a piece easy to follow. As soon as the needy parasite, the swaggering soldier, the young man of fashion, or the cunning slave appeared on the boards, one would have a pretty clear notion of what was going to happen.

<sup>1</sup> The dress of the actors in Plautus' and Terence's comedies, which were professed adaptations from the Greek, was the Greek ὑμᾶτιον, (in Latin pallium), from which this class of comedy was called the Comoedia palliata, as opposed to original pieces, dealing with Roman, and not with Greek life, which were called Fabulae togatae because the actors in them wore the Roman toga.

It would be dangerous to try the patience of such an audience with intervals between the scenes, and it seems likely that Roman plays were not (at least until the time of Cicero) divided into acts and scenes at all, but went on without a break from beginning to end. The acts and scenes, which we find in our modern editions of Plautus and Terence, are the invention of grammarians of a later age. The only division of a play that a Roman of Plautus' time would recognize was that into plain dialogue (diverbium) and musical passages (cantica), and this distinction is indicated in some of the oldest MSS. by the letters DV before dialogue passages, and C before the others. For music played a much greater part in a Roman comedy than we are apt to imagine. Three-fourths of a Plautine play, one-half of a play of Terence, are ordinarily composed of cantica, so that a Roman comedy must have been more like a modern operetta than a modern comedy; and the Westminster School performance needs the aid of Sullivan's music before it can claim to reproduce its Latin original. The music was indeed of a very simple kind, the only instrument used being the double flute (tibiae), and the only variety possible being that in more serious plays (such as the Captivi), the Lydian flute (tibiae dextrae or Lydiae) was used; in lively pieces, the tibiae sinistrae or Sarranae, and in plays where grave and gay were intermingled, the tibiae impares. (See the art. Music in Dict. of Antiquities.) But the music was considered so important a part of the play that the name of the performer at the first celebration of a play was always stated after the title in Roman editions of Plautus and Terence; and many such names have been preserved for us in MSS. of these authors. The title-page, for example, of a Roman copy of the Phormio of Terence would read:—Acta ludis Romanis L. Postumio Albino L. Cornelio Merula aedilibus curulibus. Egit L. Ambivius Turpio [the actor primarum.] Modos fecit Flaccus Claudi [sc. libertus] tibiis imparibus, etc.; and this title-page, or didascalia, as it is called, has been preserved in the Bembine MS. of Terence. The musical parts of a play are easily known from their not being in iambic trimeters. This was the metre of dialogue passages (diverbia), while all variations from it come under the head of cantica. But we must distinguish between those cantica which were sung to music (mutatis modis cantica, in lyric metres, such as Capt. 195 sqq., 497 sqq.), and the much more frequent class, where the music played a subordinate part, which were rather recited or intoned than sung, viz. passages in trochaic tetrameters, iambic tetrameters, &c., e.g. Capt. 240 sqq. and passim. From a passage in Livy (7. 2), there would seem to have been a custom on the Roman stage for actors to have remained silent during cantica (probably the lyric cantica only), and to have occupied themselves with the suitable gesticulation alone, the actual words being left to a singer stationed, we may suppose, behind the scenes. But how far this custom prevailed we do not know. It was the singer (cantor) who came forward at the fall (or rather rise<sup>1</sup>) of the curtain, and asked the applause of the spectators in the words plausum date or plaudite, although sometimes the whole troupe of actors appeared on the stage at the close of the performance and delivered a regular Epilogue (as in the Captivi).

<sup>1</sup> The curtain was lowered at the commencement, and raised at the end of a Roman play.

T. MACCI PLAVTI
C A P T I V I.

---

GRAECA [ANAXANDRIDII]

ARGVMENTVM.

Captúst in pugna Hégionis fílius.
Aliúm quadrimum fúgiens seruos uéndidit.
Patér captiuos cónmercatur Áleos
Tantúm studens ut gnátum recuperét [suum],
Et ín ibus emit ólim amissum fílium.
Is sũo cum domino uéste uorsa ac nómine
Vt [is] ámittatur fécit : ipso pléctitur.
Et is reduxit cáptum et fugitiuóm semul,
Indício quóius álium agnoscit fílium.

---

PERSONAE.

ERGASILVS PARASITVS
HEGIO SENEX
LORARII
PHILOCRATES CAPTIVOS
TYNDARVS CAPTIVOS
ARISTOPHONTES CAPTIVOS
PVER
PHILOPOLEMVS ADVLESCENS
STALAGMVS SERVOS
CATERVA.

PLAUTI CAPTIVI.

PROLOGVS.

(SCENE. A street in Calydon in Aetolia with Hegio's house in the background. At the side of the stage are two Elean captives, heavily fettered. TIME. The morning.) (Enter PROLOGUE.)

Hos quós uidetis stáre hic captiuós duos, Vinctí quia astant, hí stant ambo, nón sedent.
Hoc uós mihi testes éstis me uerúm loqui.
Senéx qui hic habitat, Hégio, (pointing to Hegio's house)
est huiús pater (pointing to Tyndarus).
Set ís quo pacto séruiat suo síbi patri, 5
Id ego híc aput uos próloquar, si operám datís.
Seni huíc fuerunt filii natí duo :
Aliúm quadrimum púerum seruos súrpuít
Eumque hínc profugiens uéndidit in Álide [Dominó] patri (pointing to Philocrates) huiusce. iam hóc tenetis? óptumumst. 10
Negat hércle [uero] ille últimus. accédito.
Si nón ubi sed eas lócus est, est ubi ámbules,
Quando histriónem cógis mendicárier.
Ego mé tua causa, ne érres, non ruptúrus sum.
Vos quí potestis ópe uostra censérius 15
Accípíte relicuom : álieno uti níl moror.
9. uendidit. 16. relicuom : 4 syllables (as always in the older writers).

Fugitiuos ille, ut díxeram ante, (pointing to Philocrates)
huiús patri

Domo quém profugiens dóminum apstulerat, uéndidit.

Is póstquam (pointing to Tyndarus) hunc emit, dédit eum (pointing to Philocrates) huic gnató suo

Pecúliarem, quía quasi una aetás erat. 20

Hic núnc domi seruit sũo patri nec scít pater :

Enimuéro di nos quási pilas hominés habent.

Ratiónem habetis, quó modo unum amiserit.

Postquám belligerant [aútem] Aetoli cum Áleis,

Vt fít in bello, cápitur alter filius. 25

Medicús Menarchus émit ibidem in Álide.

Coepít captiuos cónmercari hic Áleos,

Siquém reperire póssit, qui mutét suum :

[Illum captiuom : hunc suum esse nescit qui domist]

Et quóniam heri indaudíuit, de summó loco 30

Summóque genere cáptum esse equitem ex Álide,

Nil prétio parsit, flíio dum párceret: 30

Recónciliare ut fácilius possét domum,

Emít de praeda hosce ámbos a quaestóribus.

Hisce aútem inter sese hunc confinxerúnt dolum, 35

Quo pácto hic seruos sũum erum hinc amittát domum.

Itaque ínter se conmutant uestem et nómina :

(pointing to Tyndarus) Illíc uocatur Philocrates, (pointing to Philocrates) hic Týndarus :

Huius ílle, hic illius hódie fert imáginem.

Et hic hódie docte expédiet hanc falláciam 40

Et sũum erum faciet líbertatis cónpotem :

Eodémque pacto frátrem seruabít suum

Reducémque faciet líberum in patriam ád patrem

Inprúdens : itidem ut saépe iam in multis locis

Plus ínsciens quis fécit quam prudéns boni. 45

Set ínscientes [hí] sua sibi fallácia

Ita cónpararunt ét confinxerúnt dolum,

[Itaque hí conmenti dé sua senténtia]

Vt in séruitute hic áput suum maneát patrem :

Ita núnc ignorans [dõmi] suo sibi seruít patri. 50

[Homúnculi quantí sunt, quom recógito.]

Haec rés agetur nóbis, uobis fábula.

Set étiamst paucis uós quod monitos uóluerim.

Profécto expédiet fábulae huic operám dare :

Non pértractate fáctast neque item ut céterae, 55

Neque spúrcidici insunt uérsus inmemorábiles :

Hic néque periurus lénost nec meretríx mala

Neque míles gloriósus. ne uereámini,

Quia béllum Aetolis ésse dixi cum Áleis :

Foris íllic extra scénam fient praélia. 60

Nam hoc paéne iniquomst, cómico chorágio

Conári desubito ágere nos tragoédiam.

Proin síquis pugnam expéctat, litis cóntrahat :

Valéntiorem náctus aduorsárium

Si erít, ego faciam ut púgnam inspectet nón bonam, 65

Adeo út spectare póstea omnis óderit.

Abeó. ualete, iúdice*s* iustíssumi

Domí, duellique dűellatores óptumi. (exit Prologue.)

60. fõrs il | lic.

ACTVS I.

ERGASILVS.

(Enter ERGASILUS, a diner-out, dressed in grey, looking very lean and woe-begone.)

Iuuéntus nomen índidit Scortó mihi,
 Quia ínuocatus sóleo esse in conuúio. 70
 Scio dictum apsúrde hoc dérisiones dícere.
 At ego áio recte. nam ín conuiuió sibi
 Amátor, talos quóm iacit, scortum ínuocat. 5
 Estne ínuocatum an nón [est? est] planíssume.
 Verum hércle uero nós parasiti plánius, 75
 Quos númquam quisquam néque uocat neque ínuocat :
 Quasi múres semper édimus alienúm cibum.
 Vbi rés prolatae súnt, quom rus homínés eunt : 10
 Semúl prolatae rés sunt nostris déntíbus.
 Quasi quóm caletur cóchleae in occultó latent, 80
 Suó sibi suco úfuont, ros si nón cadit :
 Ítém parasiti rébus prolátis latent
 In ocúlto, miseri uíctitant sucó suo, 15
 Dum rúri rurant hómines quos ligúrriant.
 Prolátis rebus párasiti uenátici 85
 Canés sumus : quando rédierunt, Molóssici Odiósicique ét múltum incommodéstici.
 Et híc quidem hercle, nísi qui colaphos pérpeti 20
 Potís parasitus frángique aulās ín caput,
 Vel éxtra portam trígeminam ad saccum flicet. 90

Quod mīhi ne eueniat nōn nullumst perīculum
 Nam pōstquam meus est rēx potitus hōstium, patron
 (Ita [enīm] belligerant nūnc Aetoli cum Áleis: 25

Nam Aetólia haec est: (pointing to his right) illist captus in Álide

Philopólemus huius Hégionis fīlius 95

Senís qui (pointing to Hegio's house) hic habitat: quae aédes lamentáriæ

Mihi sūnt, quas quotiensquómque conspició, fleo)

Nunc híc occepit quaéstum hunc fili grátia Stave 30

Inhonéstum, maxume álienum ingenió suo:

Hominés captiuos cónmercatur, sí queat 100

Aliquem ínuenire, sūum qui mutet fīlium.

Quod quídem ego just much nimis quam cúpio [senex] ut ímpetret:

Nam ni íllum recipit, níhil est quo me récipiam. 35

Nullá iuuentutis spés est: sese omnés amant.

Ille démum antiquis ést adulescens móribus, 105

Quoíus nūmquam uoltum tránquillauí grátiis.

Condígne pater est ēius moratus móribus.

Nunc ád eum pergam. (moves toward the door of Hegio's house, but stops halfway, hearing the sound of its being opened from the inside.) sét aperitur óstium,

Vnde sáturitate saépe ego exiui ébrius. 41

mōratus - charact - mor

de car - mor

HEGIO. LORRAIVS. ERGASILVS.

(Enter HEGIO from his house with an overseer of slaves. He talks to the overseer without observing Ergasilus.)

HE. Aduórte animum huc sis: (pointing to the inside of the house) istos captiuós duos 110

Slaves - If you please

Herí quos emi dé praeda a quaestóribus,
His índito caténas singulárias, <sup>the light crown?</sup>

Istás maiores quíbus sunt uincti démito.

Sinito ámbulare, sí foris, si intús uolent:

5

Set uti ádsuerentur mágna diligéntia. <sup>take up in a noble</sup> 115

Libér captiuos áuis ferae consímilis est:

Semél fugiundi sí datast occásio,

Satis ést: post illam númquam possis préndere.

LO. Omnés profecto líberi lubéntius 10

Sumus quám seruimus. HE. Nón uidere ita tú quidem. 120

LO. Si nón est quod dem, méne uis dem ipse ín pedes?

HE. Si déderis, erit extémplo mihi quod dém tibi.

LO. <sup>will be a great one</sup> Áuis mé ferae consímilem faciam, ut praédicas.

HE. Ita ut dícis: nam si fáxis, te in caueám dabo. <sup>easy</sup> 15 Set sátis uerborumst: cúra quae iussi átque abi (exit over- seer). 125

Ego íbo ad fratrem ad álios captiuós meos:

Visám ne nocte hac quípiam turbáuerint.

Inde mé continuo récipiam rusúm domum. (is moving off).

ER. (aloud) Aegrést mi hunc facere quaéstum carcer-árium 20

Proptér sui gnati míseriam miserúm senem. 130

Set si úllo pacto ille húc conciliari potest,

Vel cárnuficinam hunc fácere possum pérpeti.

HE. (turning round) Qui hic lóquitur? ER. Ego, qui tũo maerore máceror,

Macésco, consenésco et tabescó miser. 25

Ossa átque pellis súm miser aegritúdi- 135

Neque úmquam quicquam mé iuuat quod edó domi:

(aside) Forís aliquantillum étiam quod gusto íd beat.

HE. Ergásile, salue. ER. (weeps) Dí te bene ament Hégio.

HE. Ne flé. ER. Egone illum nón fleam? ego non défleam 30

Talem ádulescentem? HE. Sémper sensi filio 140

Meo té esse amicum et illum intellexí tibi.

ER. Tum dénique homines nóstra intellegimús bona, Quom quae ín potestate hábuimus ea amísimus. 35

Ego, póstquam gnatus túus potitust hóstium, felice
Expértus quanti fúerit, nunc desidéro. 145

HE. Aliénus quom eius incómodum tam aegré feras, Quid mé patrem par fácerest, quoi illest únicus?

ER. Ego álienus? aliénus ille? ah, Hégio, 40

Numquam ístuc dixis néque animum induxis tuum :
Tibi ille únicus, mihi etiam único magis únicust. 150

HE. Laudó, malum quom amíci tuum ducís malum. alas

Nunc hábe bonum animum. ER. Ofeĩ: huic illút dolet, Stam eardem
Quia nunc remissus ést edundi exercitus. bon frui 45

HE. Nullúmne interea nánctu's, qui possét tibi
Remíssum quem dixti ímperare exercitum? 155

ER. Quid crédis? fugitant ómnes hanc prouínciam, Quoi optígerat, post Philopólemus quam captúst tuus.

HE. Non pól mirandumst fúgitare hanc prouínciam. 50

Multís et multigénerebus opus ést tibi
Milítibus: primumdum ópus Pistoriénsibust: 160

Eorum áliquot genera súnť Pistoriénsium :
Paníceis opus est, ópus Placentínís quoque,

Opus Túrdetanis, ópust Ficedulénsibus: 55
Tum máritumi omnes milítes opus súnť tibi.

ER. Vt saépe summa ingénia in occultó latent: 165
Hic quális imperátor nunc priuátus est.

HE. Habe módo bonum animum. nam illum confidó domum

- In hīs diebus mē reconciliāssere. 60
- Nam ecclūm captiuom hunc ādulescentem [emi] Āleum
 Prognātum genere sūmmo et 'summis dītiis: 170
 Hoc illum me mutāre confidō fore.
- ER. Ita dī deaeque fāxint. HE. Set numquó foras
 Vocātus [es] ad cénam? ER. Nusquam, quód sciam. 65
 Set quíd tu id quaeris? HE. Quía mist natalís dies:
 Proptérea te uocāri [ad me] ad cenám uolo. 175
- ER. Facéte dictum. HE. Sét si pauxillúm potes Conténtus esse. ER. Ne perpauxillúm modo: (to the audience) Nam istóc me adsiduo uíctu delectó domi. 70
- HE. Age sís roga. ER. Emptum, nísi qui meliorem ádferet
- Quae mi átque amicis pláceat conditió magis: 180
 Quasi fúndum uendam, mēis me addicam légibus.
- HE. Profúndum uendis tú quidem, hau fundúm mihi.
 Set sí uenturu's, témpери. ER. Hem, uel iam ótiumst. 75
- HE. I módo, uenare léporem: nunc ictím tenes.
 Nam méus scruposam uíctus conmetát uiam. 185
- ER. Numquam ístoc uinces me, Hégio: ne póstules Cum cálceatis déntibus ueniám tamen.
- HE. Aspér meus uictus sánest. ER. Sentisne éssitas? 80
- HE. Terréstris cenast. ER. Sús terrestris béstias.
- HE. Multís holeribus. ER. Cúrato aegrotós domi. 190 (turning to go) Numquíd uis? HE. Venias témpери. ER.
 Memorém mones. (exit Ergasilus by the right-hand door of the stage.)
- HE. Ibo íntro atque intus súbducam ratiúnculam, Quantillum argenti míhi aput trapezitám siet. 85 Ad frátrem, quo ire díxeram, mox íuero. (Hegio goes into his house.)

ACTVS II.

LORARI. CAPTIVI (PHILOCRATES.
TYNDARVS).

(Enter from Hegio's house two overseers of slaves leading PHILOCRATES and TYNDARUS, and followed by some of the slaves of the house. Philocrates and Tyndarus are dressed as in the Prologue, viz. Philocrates as a slave, Tyndarus as an Elean of the upper class. The dialogue until v. 239 is sung, or chanted to a musical accompaniment, by persons behind the stage, while the actors merely go through the appropriate gestures.)

LO. Si di immortales id uoluere, uos hanc aerumnam éxequi, 195

Decét pati animo id aéquo: si id faciétis, leuior lábor
erit.

Domi fũistis credo líberi:

Nunc séruitus si euénit, ei uos mórigerari mós bonust
Eamque étiam erili império ingeniis uóstris lenem réddere. 5

Indígna digna habénda sunt, erus quae facit. 200

CA. Oh. LO. Éiulatione haut opus est: óculis † multa miraclitis.

In ré mala animo sí bono utare, ádiuuat.

CA. (showing the chains on their wrists) At nós pudet quia cúm catenis súmus. LO. At pígeat póstea

Nóstrum erum, [nunc] sí uos éximat uínculis 10

Aút solutós sinat quós argento émerit. 205

197. dõmĩ fũis | tis.

CA. Quid [ille] a nobis métuit? scimus nós nostrum officiúm quod est.

LO. Át fugam fíngitis: séntio quam rém agitis.

CA. Fúgiamus nos? quó fugiamus? LO. In patriam.

CA. Apage, hau nós id deceat Fúgitiuos imitári. LO. Immo edepol, si érit occasio, haút [id] dehortor. 15

CA. Vnum exoráre uos sínite nos. LO. Quidnam id est? 210

CA. (pointing to the slaves) Vt sine hisce <sup>obscuro</sup> árbitris átque uobís locum

Détis nobís loqui.

LO. Fiat. (to the slaves) apscédite hínc. (the slaves re-enter the house) nós concedámus huc. (the overseers go aside.)

Sét breuem orátionem incípisse. PH. Hém mi istuc, Cértum erat: (to Tyndarus) concède huc. LO. (to Tyndarus) Ábi tu istim.

TY. (to the overseers) Obnoxii 215

Ámbo uobís sumus própter hanc rém, quom quae 21
Vólumus nos cópiae fácitis nos cónpotes.

PH. (going with Tyndarus to the other side of the stage from the overseers) Sécede huc núnc iam, si uidetúr, procul,

Ne árbitri dícta nostra árbitrarí queant

Neú permanét palam haec nóstra fallácia. 220

Nám doli nón doli súnt nisi astú colas, 26

Sét malum máximum, si íd palam prouenit.

Nám si erus tú mihi's átque ego esse mé tuum

Séruom adsimuló, tamen uíso opust, caúto opust.

Vt sóbrie hoc sineque árbitris 225

Adcúrate agátur, docte ét diligénter. 31

Tanta íncepta rés est : hau sómniculóse hoc Agúndumst. TY. Ero út me uolés esse. PH. Spéro.

TY. Nam tú nunc uidés pro tuó caro cápíte
Carum ófferre [mé] meum capút uilitáti. 230

PH. Scio. TY. Át memento scíre, quando id quód uoles habébis. 36

Nám maxuma párs fere mórem hunc hominés habent :

Quód uolunt, dum ímpetrant

Síbi, boni súnt : set ubi iám penes sése habent,

Éx bonis péssumi et fraudulentíssumi 235

Fíunt. nunc út mihi té uolo esse aútumo. 40

Quód tibi suádeam, suádeam měo patrí.

PH. Pól ego te, si aúdeam, měum patrem nóminem :

Nám secundúm patrem tú's pater próxumus.

TY. Aúdio. PH. Et proptérea saepiús ted ut memíneris moneo : 240

Nón ego erus, set tíbi conseruos súm. nunc opsecró te hoc unum : 45

Quóniam nobis di ínmortales ánimum ostenderúnt suum,
Vt qui erum me tíbi fuisse atque ésse nunc conseruóm uelint :
Quom ántehac pro iure ímperitabam měo, nunc te oro
pér precem,

Pér fortunam incértam et per mei te érga bonitatém patris 245

Pérque conseruítium, [mihi] quod hóstica euenít manu, 50
Né me secus honóre honestes, quám quom seruibás mihi, Átque ut qui fuerís et qui nunc síś memínisse ut mémineris.

TY. Scío quidem me té esse nunc et té esse me.

PH. Hem istuc sí potes 250

Mémoriter meminísse, est nobis spés in hac astútia.

HEGIO. PHILOCRATES. TYNDARVS.

(Enter HEGIO from his house.) not used

HE. Iam égo reuortar íntro, si ex his quae uolo ex-quisiúero.

(looking about) Vbi sunt isti, quós ante aedis iússi huc producí foras?

PH. (coming forward and rattling his chains) Édepol tibi ne in quaéstione essémus cautum intéllego: facth

Íta uinclis custódiisque círcummoenití sumus. 4

HE. Quí cauet ne décipiatur, uíx cauet, quom etiám cauet. 255

Étiám quom caúisse ratus est, saépe is cauator cáptus est. re

Án uero non iústa causast út uos seruem sédulo, re

Quós tam grandi sím mercatus praésenti pecúnia? re

PH. Néque pol tibi nos, quía nos seruas, aéquomst uitio uórtere, blues 9

Néque te nobis, si hínc abeamus, sí fuat occásio. 260

HE. Vt uos hic, itidem illi aput uos méus seruatur filius.

PH. Cáptust? HE. Ita. PH. Non ígitur soli nós ignaui fúimus.

HE. Sécede huc: nam súnt quae [ego] ex te sólo scitarí
uolo,

Quárum rerum té falsilocum míhi esse nolo. PH. Nón ero, 14

260. fuāt.

262. fúimus.

Quód sciam: <sup>What I don't know.</sup> siquíd nescibo, id nescium tradám tibi. (goes aside with Hegio.) 265

TY. (watching them and speaking to the audience) Núnq̄ senex est ín tonstrina: núnc iam cultrum áttinet. <sup>cover</sup> 266

Ne id quidem inuolúcri inicere uóluit, uestem ut ne inquinet. 267

Sét utrum strictimne áttonsurum dícam esse an per péctinem <sup>comb</sup> 268

Nescio: uerúm si frugist, úsque admutilabít probe. 19 269

HE. Quíd tu? seruosne ésse an liber máuelis, memorá mihi. <sup>navolo = volo</sup> 270

PH. Próximum quod sít bono quodque à malo longíssime, Íd uolo: quamquám non multum fűit molesta séruitus. Néc mihi secus erát quam si essem fámiIiariis fíliús. <sup>son of the house</sup> 271

TY. (aside) Eúgepae: Thalém talento nón emam Mí- lésium: 24 272

Nám [pol] ad sapiéntiam huius nímius nugatór fuit. 275

Vt facete orátionem ad séruitutem cóntulit. 276

HE. Quó de genere gnátust illi Phlócrates? PH. Poly- plúsio, 277

Quód genus illist únum pollens átque honoratíssimum. 278

HE. Quíd ipso hic? quo honórest illi? PH. Súmmo atque ab summís uiris. 29 279

HE. Tum ígitur ei quom in Áleis est grátia tanta, ut praédicas, 280

Quíd diuitiae, súnne opimae? PH. Vnde éxcoquat sebúm senex. <sup>The old man is cooking the drippings of the pig.</sup> 281

HE. Quíd pater? uiútné? PH. Viuom, quom índé abimus, líquimus: 282

Núnc uiuatne nécne, id Orcum scíre oportet scilicet. 283

TY. (aside) Sálua res est: phlósofatur quóque iam, non mendáx modost. 34 284

Sens. Gold out of treasure of gold.

HE. Quid erat ei nomén? PH. Thensaurochrýsonicochrýsides. 285

HE. Videlicet propter diuitias índitum id nomén quasist?

PH. Ímmo edepol propter auaritiam ipsíus atque audáciam.

[Nam illic quidem Theodoromedes fuit germano nomine.]

HE. Quid tu ais? tenaxne pater est eius? PH. Immo edepol pértinax: 39

Quín etiam ut magis nóscas, genio sũo sibi quando sácrificat, 290

Ád rem diuinám quibus opus est Sámiis uasis útitur, Né ipse genius súbrupiat: proinde áliis ut credát uide.

HE. Séquere hac me igitur. ěadem ego ex hoc quae uolo exquisúero. (approaches Tyndarus)

Phílocrates, hic fécit hominem frúgi ut facere opórtuit. 44

Nám ego ex hoc quo génere gnatus sís scio: hic fassúst
mihi. 295

Haéc tu eadem si cónfiteri uís, tua [e] re féceris,

Quae tamen scito scíre me ex hoc. TY. Fécit officium híc suum,

Quóm tibist conféssus uerum, quámquam uolui sédulo

Měam nobilitatem óccultare et génus et diuitiás meas, 49

Hégio: nunc quándo patriam et líbertatem pėrdidí, 300

Nón ego me istunc pótius quam te métuere aequom cénseo.

Vís hostilis cum ístoc fecit měas opes aequábilis.

Mémini quom dicto haút audebat: fácto nunc laedát licet.

Sét uiden? fortúna humana fíngit artatque út lubet. 54

Mé qui liber fúeram seruom fécit, e summo ínfumum: 305

Qui ímperare insuéram, nunc altérius imperio ópsequor.

Ėt quidem si prőinde ut ipse fui ímperator fámiliae

Hábeam dominum, nón uerear ne iniúste aut grauiter mi ímperet.

Hégio, hoc te mónitum, nisi forte ípse non uis, uólueram.

HE. Lóquere audacter. TY. Tam égo fui ante líber quam gnatús tuus. 310

Tám mihi quam illi líbertatem hostílis eripuit manus. 61

Tám ille aput nos séruit, quam ego núnc hic aput te séruio.

Ést profecto éus, qui quae nos gérimus auditque ét uidet.

Ís, uti tu me hic hábueris, proinde íllum illi curáuert. 64

Béne merenti béne profuerit, mále merenti pár erit. 315

Quám tu filiúm tuum, tam me meus patér desíderat.

HE. Mémini ego istaec. sét faterin éadem quae hic fassúst mihi?

TY. Égo patri meo fateor ésse súmmas diuitiás domi

Méque summo génere gnatum. sét te optestor, Hégio,

Né tuum animum auáriorem fáxint diuitiaé meae, 320

Né, tametsi unicús sum, magis decére uideatúr patri, 71

Mé saturum seruíre aput te sumptu et uestitú tuo

Pótius quam illi, ubi mínime honestumst, méndicantem uíuere.

HE. [Ego uirtute deum et maiorum nostrum diues sum
satis.] 74

Nón ego omninó lucrum omne esse útile homini exístumo. 325

Scío ego, multos iám lucrum homines <sup>debetis</sup> lúculentos réddidit :

Ést etiam ubi profecto damnum praestet facere quám lucrum.

Ódi ego aurum : múlta multis saépe suasit pérperam. <sup>acc. wrong</sup>

Núnc hoc animum aduórte, ut ea quae séntio paritér scias. 79

Fílius meus illi aput uos séruit captus [in] Álide : 330

Ēum si reddis mīhi, praeterea [tu] ūnum nummum né dūis :
 Ét te et hunc amittam hinc. alio pácto abire nōn potes.

TY. Óptimum atque aequíssimum oras óptimusque hominum és homo.

Sét is priuatam séruitutem séruit illi an púplicam? 84

HE. Priuatam medicí Menarchi. TY. (aside) Pól is quidem huius ést cluens: dependent 335

(to Hegio) Tam hóc quidem tibi ín procliuiſt, quam ímber est, quandó pluit.

HE. Fác is homo ut redimátur. TY. Faciám. sét ted oro [hoc], Hégio,

HE. Quid uis faciam? dum <sup>from the redoubt</sup> áb re nequid óres. TY.
 Auscultá, scies.

Égo me amitti, dónicum ille huc rédierit, non pósulo: 89
 Vérum, te quaeso, aéstumatum (pointing to Philocrates)

hunc mīhi des, quám mittam ad patrem, 340

Vt is homo redimátur illi. HE. Immo álium potius mísero Hínc, ubi erunt indútiae, illuc, túm qui conueniát
 patrem,

Quí tua quae iussís mandata ita út uelis [ei] pérferat.

TY. Át nihil est ignótum ad illum mittere: operam lúseris. 344

Húnc mitte, hic transáctum reddet ómne, si illuc uénerit. 95

Néc quemquam fidéliorem néque quoi plus credát potes

Mittere ad eum, néc qui magis sit séruos ex senténtia,

Néque adeo quoi túm concredat fílium hodie audácus.

Né uereare: mēo periclo ego húius experiár fidem

Frétus ingenio ěius, quod me esse scít erga se béne-uolum. 350

HE. Míttam equidem istunc aéstumatum túa fide, si ús.

TY. Volo :

101

Quám citissumé potest, tam hoc cédere ad factúm uolo.

HE. Númquae causast quín, si ille huc non rédeat, uigintí minas

Míhi des pro illo? TY. Óptuma immo. HE. (to the overseers) Sóluite (pointing to Philocrates) istum núnc iam, 104

Átque utrumque. TY. Dí tibi omnes ómnia optata ófferant, 355

Quóm me tanto honóre honestas quómque ex uinclis éximis.

Hóc quidem hau moléstumst iam, quod cóllus collarí caret.

HE. Quód bonis benefít beneficium, grátia ea grauidást bonis.

Núnc tu illum si illó's missurus, doce, demonstra, praécipe,
Quae ád patrem uis núntiari. uín uocem huc ad té?

TY. Voca. 360

HE. (approaching Philocrates) Quae rés bene uortat míhi meoque fílio

Vobísque: uolt te nóuos erus operám dare

Tuo uéteri domino, quód is uelit, fidéliter.

Nam ego aéstumatum huic dédi te uigintí minis: 4

Hic aútem te ait mittere hinc uelle ád patrem, 365

Meum ut illi redimat fílium, mutátio

Intér me atque illum ut nóstris fiat fíliis.

PH. Vtróqueuorsum réctumst ingeniúm meum,

Ad te átque [ad] illum: pró rota me utí licet. 9

Vel ego húc uel illuc uórtar, quo imperábitis. 370

HE. Tu tibi tuopte ingénio prodes plúrumum,

Quom séruitutem férs ita ut ferrí decet.

Sequere: (goes with Philocrates towards Tyndarus) én tibi hominem. TY. Hábeo gratiám tibi,

373. Hiatus, on change of speaker.

Quom cópiam istam mi ét potestatém facis, 14
 Vt ego ád parentis hunc remittam núnrium, 375

Qui mé quid rerum hic ágitem et quid fierí uelim, Patrí meo ordine ómnem rem illuc pérferat.

Nunc íta conuenit ínter me atque hunc, Týndare,
 Vt te aéstumatum in Álidem mittam ád patrem: 19
 Si nón rebitas, huíc ut uigintí minas 380

Dem pró te. PH. Recte cónuenisse séntio.

Nam páter expectat aút me aut aliquem núnrium,
 Qui hinc ád se ueniat. TY. Érgo animum aduortás uolo, Quae núnriare hinc té uolo in patriam ád patrem.

PH. Phslocrates, ut adhúc locorum féci, faciam sédulo, 25
 Vt potissumúm quod in rem récte conducát tuam 386
 Íd petessam id pérsequarque córde atque animo et uíribus.

TY. Fácis íta ut te fácere oportet: núnc animum aduortás uolo.

Ómnium primúm salutem dícito matri ét patri 29
 Ét cognatis ét siquem alium béneuolentem uíderis: 390
 Me híc ualere et séruitutem séruire huíc homini óptumo, Quí me honore honéstiozem sémper fecit ét facit.

PH. Ístuc ne praecípias, facile mémoria meminí tamen.

TY. Nam équidem nisi quod cústodem habeo líberum me esse árbitor. 394

Dícito patrí, quo pacto míhi [nunc] cum hoc conuénerit 35
 De húius filiό. PH. Quae memini, móra merast monériem.

TY. Vt eum redimat ét remittat nóstrum huc amborúm uicem.

PH. Méminero. HE. At quam prímum poterit: ín rem utriquest máxume.

PH. Nón tuum tu mágis uidere quam ílle suum gnatúm cupit. 39

HE. Méus mihi, suus quoíquest carus. PH. (turning to go) Númquid aliut uís patri 400

Núntiari? TY. (detaining him) [Me hic ualere et tute audacter dicito, Tyndare, inter] Nós fuisse ingénio hau discordábili, Néque te conmeruísse culpam néque me aduorsatúm tibi,

Béneque ero gessísse morem in <sup>spectat hunc</sup> tántis aerumnís tamen, 44
Néque med umquam désuísse té neque factis néque fide 405

Rébus in dubiís, egenis. haéc pater quandó sciet, Týndare, ut fuerís animatus érga suum gnatum átque se,
Númquam erit tam auárus, quin manu te emíttat gratiís.
Ét mea opera, si hínc rebito, fáciam ut faciat fácilius :

Nám tua opera et cómitate et uírtute et sapiéntia 410
Fécisti ut redíre liceat ád parentis dénuo, 51

Quóm aput hunc conféssus es et génuS et diuitiás meas :
Quó pacto emisísti e uinclis túum erum tua sapiéntia.

PH. Féci ego ita ut conmémoras, et te méminisse id
gratúmst mihi. 54

Mérito [tuo] tibi ea éuenerunt á me. nam nunc, Phlócrates, 415

Sí ego item memorém quae me erga múlta fecistí bene, Nóx diem adimat: nám quasi seruos méus sis, nihilo sétius

Ópsequiosus míhi fuisti sémper. HE. (aside) Di uostrám fidem,

Hóminum ingenium líberale. ut lácrumas excutiúnt mihi.
Videas corde amáre inter se : quántis [hic modo] laúdibus 420

Súum erum seruos cónlaudauit. TY. Pól istic me haut centénsumam 61

Pártem laudat, quam ípse meritust út laudetur laúdibus.

HE. Érgo quom optumé fecisti, núnc adest occásio
Bénéfacta cumuláre, ut erga hunc rém geras fidéliter. 64

PH. Mágis non factum póssum uelle quam ópera exper-iar pérsequi: 425

Íd uti scias, Iouém supremum téstem do [tibi], Hegio, Me infidelem nón futurum Phílocrati. HE. Probus és homo.

PH. Néc me secus umquam éi facturum quícquam quam memét mihi.

TY. Ístaec dicta te <sup>to faire un grand service</sup> expédire et óperis et factís uolo, 69
Éi quom minus dixí quam uolui dé te, animum aduortás
uolo 430

Átque horunc uerbórum causa cáue tu mi iratús fuas.
Sét, te quaeso, cógitato hinc mēa fide mittí domum Te aéstumatum et méam esse uitam híc pró te positam pígneri,

Né tu me ignorés, quom extemplo meo é conspectu apscésseris, 74

[Quom me seruom in seruitute pro te hic reliqueris] 435

Túque te pro líbero esse dúcas, pignus déseras, Néque des operam pró me ut huius réducem facias fílium.
Scíto te hinc mínis uiginti aéstumatum mítier.

Fác fidele sís fidelis, cáue fidem fluxám geras.

Nám pater, scio, fáciet quae illum fácere oportet ómnia. 80
Sérua tibi in perpétuom amicum me átque hunc inuentum ínueni. 441

(taking Philocrates' hand in his) Haéc per dexterám tuam te délixera retinéns manu

Ópsecro, infidélior mi né fuas quam ego súm tibi.

Hóc age [sis]: tu míhi nunc erus es, tú patronus, tú pater: 84

Tíbi conmendo spés opesque mēas. PH. Mandauistí
satis. 445

Sátin habes, mandáta quae sunt fácta si referó? TY.
Satis.

PH. Êt tua (nodding at Hegio) et tua (nodding at Tyn- darus) húc ornatus réueniam ex senténtia.

Númquid alíut? TY. Vt quam primum póssis redeas.

PH. Rés monet.

HE. Iám [tu] sequere mé, uaticum út dem a trapezitá
tibi: 89

Ėadem opera a praetóre sumam sýngraphum. TY. Quem sýngraphum? 450

HE. Quem híc ferat secum ád legionem, hinc íre huic ut liceát domum.

(to Tyndarus) Tu íntro abi. TY. Bene ámbulato. (Tyn- darus goes in.) PH. Béne uale. HE. Edepol rém meam

Cónstabiliui, quom íllos emi dé praeda a quaestóribus.

Ėxpediui ex séruitute fílium, si dís placet. 94

Át etiam dubitáui hos homines émerem an non emerém
diu. 455

(calling to those inside) Séruate istum súltis intus, séruí, ne quoquám pedem

Ėcferat sine cústodela. [iám] ego apparebó domi,

Ád fratrem modo [ád] captiuos álios inuisó meos.

Ėadem percontábor, ecqui hunc ádulescentem nóuerit. 99

Séquere tu: te ut ámittam, ei rei prímum praeuortí
uolo. 460

(Exeunt Hegio and Philocrates by the right-hand side of the stage.)

ACTVS III.

ERGASILVS.

(Enter ERGASILUS from the right, returning from the market-place.)

Miser homost, qui ipsús sibi quod edit quaérit et id aegre ínuenit.

Sét illest miseriór, qui et aegre quaérit et nihil ínuenit.

Ílle miserrumus ést, qui, quom esse cúpiit, quod edit nón habet.

Nam hércle ego huic dié, si liceat, óculos ecfodiám lubens :
Íta malignitáte onerauit ómnis mortalís mihi. 465

Néque ieiuniósiozem néc magis ecfertúm fame 6

Vídi nec-quoi mínus procedat quídquid facere occéperit :

Ita uenter guttúrque resident ésurialis férias.

Ílicet parasíticae arti máxumam in malám crucem :

Íta iuuentus iám ridiculos ínopes ab se ségregat. 470

Níl morantur iám Lacones ími supsellí uiros, II

Plágipatidas, quíbus sunt uerba síne penu et pecúnia.

Ėos requirunt, quí, lubenter quom éderint, reddánt domi.

Ípsi opsonant, quae parasitorum ánte erat prouíncia.

Ípsi de foró tam aperto cápite ad lenonés eunt, 475

Quam ín tribu sontís aperto cápite condemnánt—reos, 16

Néque ridiculos iám terunci faciunt. sese omnés amant.

Nám uti dudum hinc ábii, accessi ad ádulescentis ín foro :

‘Sáluete’ inquam : ‘quo ímus una ad prándium?’ atque illí tacent.

‘ Quis ait “ hoc ” aut quis profitetur ? ’ inquam : quasi muti silent, 480

Néque me rident. ‘ ubi cenamus [hódie] ? ’ inquam atque illi ábnuont. They shake their heads 21

Díco unum ridículum dictum dé dictis melióribus,

Quíbus solebam ménstrualis épulas ante apíscier :

Némo ridet. scíui extemplo rém de conpéctó geri. They begin to

Né canem quidem ínritatam uóluit quisquam imitárier, 25 He

Sáltem, si non árriderent, déntis ut restríngerent. 486

Ábeo ab illis, póstquam uideo mé sic ludificárier.

Pérgo ad alios, uénio ad alios, dēinde ad alios : úna rest.

Ómnes de conpécto rem agunt, quási in Velabro oleárii. On table

[Nunc redeo inde, quoniam me ibi uideo ludificárier.] 30

Ítem alii parasíti frustra obám̄bulabant ín foro. where 491

Núnc barbarica lége certumst iús meum omne pérsequi.

Cónsilium qui iniére, quo nos uíctu et uita próhibeant,

He Ís diem dicam, ínrogabo múltam, ut mihi cenás decem

Meo árbitratu dént, quom cara annóna sit. sic égero. 495

Núnc ibo ad portum hínc. est illi mi úna spes cenática 36

Si éa decolabít, redibo huc ád senem ad cenam áasperam.

(exit Ergasilus by the left.)

HEGIO. (ARISTOPHONTES.)

(Enter HEGIO from the right with Aristophontes, an Elean captive and friend of Philocrates. vv. 498-509 are sung or chanted, as vv. 195 sqq. supr.)

Quid ést suaviús quam

Bene rém gerere bōno puplicó, sicut féci

Ego herí, quom emi hosce hómines. ubi quísque uident [me hódie], 500

Eúnt obuiám gratulánturque eám rem.

Ita [núnc] me miserúm restitádo, retinédo 5

Lassúm reddidérunt :

Vix éx gratuládo misér iam eminébam. 57. 7

Tandem ábii ad praetorem. íbi uix requieuí, rogo 505

Mihi sýngraphum : datur : flico

Dedi Týndaro : ille abiit domum : 10

Inde flico praeuórtor

Domúm, postquam id áctumst.

Eo prótinus ad fratrem, mei ubi álii sunt captíui : 510

Rogó Philocratem ex Álide ecquis hóminum norit : (pointing to Aristophontes) [átque] hic

Exclámat, esse eum síbi sodalem : díco eum esse apút me. 15

Hic éxtemplo orat ópsecratque, eum síbi uidere ut líceat.

Iussi flico hunc exóluiet. inde ábii. (to Aristophontes) nunc tu séquere,

Vt quód me orauisti ímpetres, eum hóminem uti conuénias.

(Enter TYNDARUS from the house. He starts back on seeing Hegio and Aristophontes, and avoids their observation.)

TYNDARVS (aside).

Nunc íllut est, quom mé fuisse quam ésse nimio máuelim

Nunc spés opes auxíliaque a me ségregant spernúntque se.

[Hic íllest dies quom núlla uitae méae salus sperábilist :

Neque aúxilium mist néque adeo spes, quae mi hunc aspellát metum: hand re. only 519

Nec súbdolis mendáciis mihi úsquam mantellúmst meis.] <sup>5</sup>

Nec súcophantiis nec fucis úllum mantellum óbuíamst.

Neque déprecatió perfidiis mēis nec malefactis fugast.

[Nec cónfidentiae úsquam hospitiumst néc deuorticulum dolis.] quod

Opérta quae fuére aperta súnť, patent praestígiae. plan 9

Omnis palamst res: néque de hac re negótiumst, 525

Quín male occidam óppetamque péstem eri uicém malam. pro

Pérdidit me Arístophontes híc, qui intro aduenít modo:

Ís me nouit, ís sodalis Phílocrati et cognátus est.

Néque Salus seruáre, si uolt, mé potest: nec cópiast <sup>14</sup>

[Me expediundi], aristoph nísi si astutiam áliquam corde máchinor. de

Quám, malum? quid máchiner, quid cónminiscar, haéreo:

[Nísi] nugas inéptiasque iam íncipisso máxumas. 532

HEGIO. ARISTOPHONTES. TYNDARVS.

LORARII.

HE. Quo illúm nunc hominem próripiuisse fōras se dicam ex aédibus?

TY. (aside) Enimuéro nunc ego occidi: eúnt ad te hostes, Týndare. S. donec

Quid fábulabor? quíd negabo? aut quíd fatebor? [nám]
mihi 535

Res ómnis in incertó sitast: quid rébus confidám meis?

Vtinám te di prius péderent, quam périisti e patriá tua, <sup>5</sup>

Arístophontes, qui éx parata re ínparatam omném facis.

procedit hic <sup>D</sup> de

Occísast haec res, nísi reperio atrócem mi aliquam astútiam.

HE. (recognising Tyndarus. To Aristophontes) Sequere: én tibi hominem, adi átque adloquere. (Aristophontes goes forward.) TY. (aside) Quís homost me hominum míserior? (pretends not to recognise him).

AR. Quíd istuc est, quod mēos te dicam fúgitare oculos, Týndare, 541

Próque ignoto me áspnari, quási me numquam nóueris? 10
Équidem tam sum séruos quam tu, etsi égo domi libér fui, Tu úsque a puero séruitutem séruisti in Álide.

HE. Édepol minume míror, si te fúgitat aut oculós tuos Aút si te odit, qui ístum appelles Týndarum pro Phlócrate.

TY. (dragging Hegio away) Hégio, hic homó rabiosus hábitus est in Álide: 15

Né tu quod istic fábuletur aúris inmittás tuas.

Nám istic hastis ínsectatus ést domi matrem ét patrem,
Ét illic isti qui sputatur mórbus interdúm uenit. 550

Pröin tu ab istoc prócul apscedas. HE. (to the overseers)

Últro istum a me. AR. Ain, uérbero, 6

Mé rabiosum atque ínsectatum esse hástis meum memorás
patrem? 20

Ét eum mihi esse mórbum, ut qui med ópus sit insputárier?

HE. Né uerere, múltos iste mórbus homines mácerat, Quíbus insputarí saluti fúit atque is prófuit. 555

AR. Quíd, tu autem etiam huic crédis? HE. Quid ego crédam huic? AR. Insanum ésse me.

TY. (taking Hegio apart) Víden tu hunc, quam inimíco uoltu intúitur? concedi óptumumst, 25

Hégio : fit quód ego dixi : glíscit rabies : cáue tibi.

HE. Crédidi esse insánum extemplo, ubi te áppellauit Týndarum.

TY. Quín suum ipse intérdum ignorat nómen neque scit quí siet. 560

HE. Át etiam te sũm sodalem esse áibat. TY. Hau uidí magis : a really sorry

the same siet. Ét quidem Alcmaeus átque Orestes ét Lycurgus póstea 30 Vna opera mihi sũnt sodales qua íste. AR. At etiam, fúrcifer,

Mále loqui mi audés? non ego te nóui? HE. Pol planum íd quidemst :

[Non nouisse, qui istum appelles Tyndarum pro Philocrate.] 565

Quém uides, eum ignóras : illum nóminas, quem nón uides.

AR. Ímmo iste eum sese áit qui non est ésse et qui ueróst negat. 35

TY. Tu ěnim repertu's, Phílocratem qui súperes ueri-uérbio.

AR. Pól, ego ut rem uideó, tu inuentu's, uéra uanitúdine Quí conuincas. sét quaeso hercle agedum áspice ad me.

TY. En. AR. Díc modo, 570

Tén negas Týndárum esse? TY. Nego ego. AR. Tún te Philocratem ésse ais?

TY. Égo [uero] inquam. AR. Túne huic credis? HE.
Plús quidem quam tibi aut mihi : 40

Nam ille quidem, quem tú esse hunc memoras, hódie
hinc abiit Álidem

Ád patrem huius. AR. Quém patrem, qui séruos est?

TY. Et tú quidem

Séruos es, libér fuisti : et égo me confidó fore, 575

Si huius huc reconciliasso in libertatem filium.

AR. Quid ais, furcifer? tun natum te esse memoras liberum? 45

TY. Non equidem me Liberum, set Philocratem esse aio.

AR. Quid est?

Vt scelestus, Hégio, nunc iste [te] ludos facit.

Nam is est seruos ipse neque praeter se umquam ei seruos fuit. 580

TY. Quia tute ipse egés in patria nec tibi qui uiuas domist, 585

Omnis inueniri similis tui uis: non mirum facis: 50

Est miserorum, ut maleuolentes sint atque inuideant bonis.

AR. Hégio, uide sis nequid tu huic temere insistas credere:

Atque ut perspicio, profecto iam aliquid pugnae dedit: 585

Filium tuum quod redimere se ait, id ne utiquam mihi placet.

TY. Scio te id nolle fieri: ecfaciam tamen ego id, si di adiuant. 55

Illum restituam huic, hic autem in Alidem me meo patri:

Propterea ad patrem hinc amisi Tyndarum. AR. Quin tute is es: 60

Neque praeter te in Alide ullus seruos istoc nominest. 590

TY. Pergin seruom me exprobrare esse, id quod ui hostili optigit?

AR. Enim iam nequeo contineri. TY. Heus, audin quid ait? quin fugis? 60

Iam illic hic nos insectabit lapidibus, nisi illunc iubes

Conprehendi. AR. Crucior. TY. Ardent oculi: fune opus, Hégio, 'st:

Viden tu illi maculari corpus totum maculis luridis? 595

Atra bilis agitat hominem. AR. At pol te, si hic sapiat senex,

Pix atra agitet āput carnificem tūoque capiti inlūceat. 65

TY. Iām deliramēnta loquitur, lāruae stimulānt uirum. Speaks

HE. Quid, si [ego] hunc [nunc] cōprehendi iūssem?

TY. Sapiās magis.

AR. Crúciōr lapidem nōn habere mé, ut illi mastígiae Cérebrum excutiam, quí me insanum uérbis concinnát suis. 601

TY. Aúdin lapidem quaéritare? AR. Sólus te solúm
uolo, 70

Hégio. HE. Istinc lóquere, siquid uís, procul: tamen aúdiam.

TY. Námque edepol si adbítes propius, ós denasabít tibi Mórdicus. AR. Neque pól me insanum, Hégio, esse créduis. 605

Néque fuisse umquám neque esse mórbum, quem istic aúumat.

Vérum siquid métuis a me, iúbe me uincirí: uolo, 75

Dúm istic itidem uínciatur. TY. Ímmo enimuero, Hégio;

Ístic qui uolt uínciatur. AR. Táce modo: ego te, Phílocrates

Fálse, faciam, ut uérus hodie réperiare Týndarus. 610

(Tyndarus makes signs to him behind Hegio's back.)

Quíd mi abnutas? TY. Tíbi ego abnuto? . . . . .

. . . . . quíd agat, si apsis lóngius?

HE. Quíd ais? quíd, si adeam hunc insanum? TY.

Núgas: ludificábitur, he is laughing 80

Gárriet quói néque pes umquam néque caput conpáreat. he is laughing

Órnamēta apsúnt: Aiacem, hunc quóm uides, ipsúm
uides. 615

HE. Nihili facio, támen adibo (goes to Aristophontes). TY.

(aside) Núnc ego omnino óccidi,

Núnc ego inter sacrúm saxumque stó nec quid faciám scio.

HE. Dó tibi operam, Arístophontes, síquid est quod mé uelis. 85

AR. Éx me audibis uéra quae nunc fálša opinare, Hégio. Sét primum hoc med éxpurgare tíbi uolo, me insániam Néque tenere néque mi esse ullum mórbum nisi quod séruio. 621

Át ita me rex dēorum atque hominum fáxit patriae cónpotem,

Vt istic Philocratés non magis est quam aút ego aut tu.

HE. Eho, díe mihi, 90

Quís illic igitur ést? AR. Quem dúdum díxi a principiό tibi.

Hóc si secus repéries, nullam caúsam dico quín mihi 625 Ét parentum et líbertatis áput te deliquió siet.

HE. (turning to Tyndarus) Quid tu ais? TY. Me túum esse seruom et té meum erum. HE. Haut istúc rogo.

Fűistin liber? TY. Fúi. AR. Enimuero nón fuit, nugás agit? 95

TY. Qui íd tam audacter dícere audes? AR. Púerum te uidí puer. 630

TY. Át ego te maiórem uideo máior: én rusúm tibi.

Měam rem non curés, si recte fácias: num ego curó tuam?

HE. Fűitne huic patér Thensaurochrýsonicochrýsides? 100

AR. Nón fuit: neque ego ístuc nomen úmquam audiui ante húnc diem.

Phílocrati Theodóromedes fűit pater. TY. (aside) Pereó probe. 635

Quín quiescis? [í] diirectum, cór meum, ac suspénde te:

Tú <sup>prolet</sup>supsaltas, égo miser uix ásto prae formídine.

HE. Sátin istuc mihi éxquisitumst fuisse hunc seruom in

Álide

105

Néque esse hunc Philocratém? AR. Tam satis quam núnquam hoc inueniés secus.

Sét ubi is nunc est? HE. Vbi ego minume atque ípsus se uolt máxume.

640

Tum ígitur ego derúncinatus, <sup>de laud</sup>déartuatus súm miser

Húius scelesti téchinis, quí me ut lúbitumst ductauít dolis.

<sup>an gov. surt.</sup>Sét uide sis. AR. Quin éploratum díco et prouisum hóc tibi.

110

HE. Cértón? AR. Quin nihil, ínquam, inuenies mágis hoc certo cértius:

Phílocrates iam inde úsque amicus fuit mihi a pueró puer.

645

HE. Sét qua faciest túus sodalis Phílocrates? AR. Dicám
tibi:

Máclento ore, náso acuto, córpore albo, oculís nigris, 114

Súbrefust, aliquántum crispus, cíncinnátus. HE. Cónuenit.

TY. (aside) Vt quidem hercle in médium ego hodie pés-sume procésserim:

Vae illis uirgis míseris, quae hodie in térgo morientúr meo.

HE. Vérba mihi data ésse uideo. TY. (aside) Quid cessa-tis, cónpedes,

651

Cúrrere ad me méaque amplexi crúra, ut uos custódiam?

HE. Sátin illi me hodié scelesti cápti ceperúnt dolo? 120

Íllic seruom se ádsimulabat, híc sese autem líberum.

Núculeum amisí, retinui pígnéri putámina. <sup>shel</sup> 655

Íta mi stolido súsum uorsum os súbleuere offúciis.

Híc quidem me numquam ínridebit. (to the overseers)

Cólaphe, Cordalió, Corax,

Íte istinc, ecférte lora. LO. Núm lignatum míttimur? 125

HE. Inícite manicas [áctutum] huic mastígiae. (the overseers proceed to bind Tyndarus.)

TY. Quid hoc ést negoti? quíd ego deliquí? HE.

Rogas?

660

Satór sartorque scélerum et messor máxume.

TY. Non óccatorem príus audebas dícere?

Nam sémper occant príus quam sariunt rústici. 5

HE. Atát, ut confidénter mihi contra ástitit.

TY. Decet ínnocentem séruom [hominem] atque innóxiúm 665

Confídentem esse, suum áput erum potíssumum.

HE. Astríngite isti súltis uehementér manus.

TY. Tuús sum, tu has quidem [míhi] uel praecidí iube. 10

Set quíd negotist quam ób rem suscensés mihi?

HE. Quia mé meamque rém, quod in te unó fuit, 670
Tuis scelestis fálssidicis falláciis

Delácerauisti dēartuauístique opes,

Confécisti omnis rés ac rationés meas. 15

Ita mi éxemisti Phílocratem falláciis.

Illum ésse seruom crédidi, te líberum : 675

Ita uósmet aiebátis itaque nómina

Intér uos permutástis. TY. (boldly) Fateor ómnia

Facta ésse ita ut tu dícis et falláciis 20

Abísse eum aps te méa opera atque astútia :

An, ópsecro hercle te, íd nunc suscensés mihi? 680

HE. At cúm cruciatu máxumo id factúmst tuo.

TY. Dum ne ób malefacta, péream : parui [id] aéstumo
Si ego híc peribo, ast ílle, ut dixit, nón redit : 25

At erít mi hoc factum mórtuo memorábile,

[Me] méum erum captum ex séruitute atque hóstibus
Reducém fecisse líberum in patriam ád patrem, 686

Meúmque potius mé caput perículo

[Hic] praëoptauisse quam ís periret pónere. 30

HE. Facito érgo ut Acherúnti clueas glória.

TY. Qui pér uirtutem pérít, at non [is] ínterit. 690

HE. Quando égo te exemplis péssumis cruciáuero in Atque ób sùtelās tñas te morti mísero,

Vel te ínterisse uél perisse praédicent, 35

Dum péreās, nihil intérdúo aiant uíuere.

TY. Pol si ístuc faxis, haú sine poena féceris, 695

Si ille húc rebitet, sícut confido ádfore.

AR. (who has shown the greatest surprise during this conversation) (aside) Pro di ínmortales : núnc ego teneo, núnc scío

Quid hóc negotist. méus sodalis Phílocrates

In líbertatest áput patrem in patriá. benest:

Nec quísqumst mi [alius], aeque mélius quóí uelim. 700

Set hóc mihi aegrest, me huíc dedisse operám malam,

Qui núnc propter me méaque uerba uíñctus est.

HE. Votuín te quicquam mi hódie falsum próloqui? 45

TY. Votuísti. HE. Quor es aúsus mentirí mihi? 65

TY. Quia uéra óbessent ílli, quoi operám dabam: 705

Nunc fálsa prosunt. HE. Át tibi oberunt. TY. Óptumest:

At erúm seruauí, quém seruatum gaúdeo,

Quoi mé custodem addíderat erus maiór meus. 50

Set málene id factum [tu] árbitrare? HE. Péssume.

TY. At ego áio recte, qui áps te sorsum séntio: 610

Nam cógitato, síquis hoc gnató tuo

Tuus séruos faxet, quálem haberes grátiam?

Emíttresne nécne eum seruóm manu? 55

Essétne aput te is séruos acceptíssimus?

Respónde. HE. Opinor. TY. Quór ergo iratús mihi's?

HE. Quia illí fuisti [tú] quam mihi fidélior. 716

- TY. Quid? tu úna nocte póstulauisti ét die
 Recéns captum hominem, núperum et nouícium, 60
 Te pérdocere, ut mélius consulerém tibi
 Quam illí quicum una [a] púero aetatem exégeram?
HE. Ergo áb eo petito grátiam istam. dúcite 721
 Vbi pónderosas, crássas capiat cónpedis:
 Inde íbis porro in látomias lapidárias. 65
 Ibi quom álii octonos lápidés ecfodiúnt, nisi
 Cotídiano sésquiópus conféceris, 725
 Sescéntoplago nómen indetúr tibi.
AR. (coming forward) Per dēos atque homines égo te optestor, Hégio,
 Ne tu ístunc hominem pérduis. HE. Curábitur : 70
 Nam nóctu neruo uíctus custodíbitur,
 Intérdius sub térra lapides éximet. 730
 Diu ego hunc cruciabo, nón uno apsoluám die.
AR. Certúmnest tibi istuc? HE. Nón moriri cértiust.
 Abdúcite istum actútum ad Hippolytúm fabrum, 75
 Iubéte huic crassas cónpedis inpíngier.
 Inde éxtra portam ad mēum libertum Córdalum 735
 In lápicidinas fácite deductús siet:
 Atque hunc me uelle dícite ita curárier,
 Nequí deterius huic sit quam quoi péssumest. 80
TY. Quor égo te inuito mé esse saluom póstulem?
 Perículum uitae mēae tuo stat perículo. 740
 Post mórtem in morte níhil est quod metuám mali.
 Etsí peruiuo usque ád summam aetatém, tamen
 Breue spátiumst perferúndi quae minitás mihi. 85
 Vale átque salue, etsi áliter ut dicám meres.
 Tu, Arístophontes, dé me ut meruisti íta uale: 745
 Nam míhi propter te hoc óptigit. HE. (to the overseers) Abdúcite.

TY. (as the overseers are removing him) At únúm hoc quaeso, si húc rebitet Phílocrates,

Vt mi éius facias cónueniundi cópiam. 90

HE. Perístis, nisi iam hunc é conspectu abdúcitís. (the overseers drag Tyndarus off the stage.)

TY. Vis haéc quidem hercelest, ét trahi et trudi semul.
(exit Tyndarus.) 750 ade.

HE. Illést abductus récta in phylacam, ut dígnus est.

Ego illís captiuis áliis documentúm dabo,

Ne tále quisquam fácinus incipere aúdeat. 95

Quod ápsque hoc esset, quí mihi hoc fecít palam,

Vsque óffrenatum sũis me ductarént dolis. 755

Nunc cértumst nulli pósthac quicquam crédere.

Satís sum semel decéptus: speraui miser

Ex séruitute me éxemisse fílium. 100

Ea spés elapsast. pérdidi unum fílium,

Puerúm quadrimum quém mihi seruos súrpuít, 760

Neque eúm seruom umquam répperi neque fílium

Maiór potitus hóstiumst. quod hoc ést scelus:

Quasi in órbitatem líberos prodúxerim. 105

(to Aristophontes) Sequere hác: redducam te úbi fuisti.
néminis

Miseréri certumst, quía mei miseret néminem. 765

AR. Exaúspicauí ex uínclis: nunc intéllego Redaúspicandum esse ín catenas dénuo. (Hegio and Aristophontes go into the house.)

from the house.

ACTVS IV.

(Enter ERGASILVS from the left in great excitement.)

ERGASILVS.

Iúppiter suprême, seruas mé measque augés opes :

Máxumas ópimitates ópiparasque offérs mihi :

Laudém, lucrum, ludúm, iocum, festiuitatem, férias, 770

Pompám, pēnūm, potátiones, sáturitatē, gaúdium.

[Saluós sum] nec quoiquam hómini supplicáre nunc certúmst mihi : 5

Nam uél prodesse amíco possum uél inimicum pérdere.

Ita híc me amoenitáte amoena amoénus onerauít dies :

[Ita] síne sacris heréditatem sum áptus ecfertíssumam.

Nunc ád senem cursúm capessam hunc Hégionem, quói
boni 776

Tantum ádfero, quantum ípsus a dis óptat, atque etiam ámplius. 10

Nunc certa res est, eodem pacto ut cómici seruí solent,

Coníciam in collum pállium, primo éx me [ille] hanc ut rem aúdiat :

Speróque me ob hunc núnrium [esse] aetérnum adepturúm
cibum. 780

(Throws the loose end of his robe over his shoulder to prepare for running.)

HEGIO. ERGASILVS.

HE. (coming out of the house, speaking to himself, without seeing the other) Quanto in pectore hanc rem meo magis uolúto,

Tantó mi aegritúdo auctiór est in ánimo,
Ad illum modúm sublitum ós esse mi hódie:

Neque id perspicere quíui.

Quod quóm scibitúr, [tum] per úrbem inridébor. 785

Quom extémplo ad forum áduenero, ómnes loquéntur:

‘Hic illest senéx doctus, quói uerba dáta sunt.’

(recognising Ergasilus) Set Érgasilus éstne hic, procúl quem [ire] uídeo?

Conlécto quidémt palli: quidnam actúrust? 789

ER. (to himself, without seeing Hegio) Moue aps te morám [nunc], Ergásile, atque age hanc rem.

Mínor interminórque, nequis mi [hódie] opstiterit óbuiam,
Nísi qui satis diú uixisse sése homo arbitrábitur:

Nám qui opstiterit óre sistet. HE. (aside) Híc homo pugílatum íncipit.

ER. Fácere certumst. pröinde ita omnes ítinera insistánt sua,

Néquis in hac plateá negoti cónferat quicquám sui: 795

Nám meus est ballísta pugñus, cúbitus catapultást mihi,

Húmerus aries: túm genu ut quemque ícero, ad terrám
dabo.

Déntilegos omnís mortalis fáciam, quemque offéndero.

HE. (aside) Quae illaec est minátio? nam néqueo mirarí satis.

ER. Fáciam ut huius dié locique méique semper méminerit:

Quí mi in cursu opstíterit, faxo uítæ is opstíterit suæ.

HE. (aside) Quíd hic homo tantum íncipissit fácere cum tantís minis?

ER. Príus edico, néquis propter cúlpan capiatúr suam:

Cóntinete uós domi, prohibéte a uobis uím meam. 24

HE. (aside) Míra edepol sunt ni híc in uentrem sumpsit confidéntiam. 805

Vaé misero illi, quóius cibo iste fáctust imperiósior.

ER. Túm pistores scrófpasci, quí alunt furfurí sues, 25

Quárum odore praéterire némo pistrínúm potest: 26

Ėorum si quoiúsquam scrofam in púplico conspéxero, 29

Ėx ipsis dominís meis pugnis éxculcabo fúrfures. 810

HE. (aside) Básilicas edíctiones átque imperiosás habet.

Sátur homost, habét profecto in uentre confidéntiam.

ER. Túm piscatorés, qui praehibent pópulo piscis foétidos, 30

Qui áduehuntur quádrupedanti crúcianti canthério, 34

Quórum odos subbásilicos ómnis abigit ín forum: 815

Ėis ego ora uérberabo súrpiculis piscáriis, 36

Ųt sciant, aliéno naso quam éxhibeant moléstiam.

Túm lanii autem, quí concinnant líberis orbás ouis, 37

Quí locant caedúndos agnos ét dupla agninám danunt,

Quí petroni nómen indunt uérueci sectáριο: 820

Ėum ego si in uiá petronem púplica conspéxero, 41

Ėt petronem et dóminum reddam mórtalis misérrumos.

HE. (aside) Eúgepæ: edíctiones aédilicias híc quidem habet:

Mírumque adeost ni hunc Aetoli síbi fecere agoránomum.

ER. Nón ego nunc parasítus sum, set régum rex re-gálior: 825

Tántus uentri cónmeatus méo adest in portú cibus. 46

Sét ego cesso hunc Hégionem oneráre laetitiá senem?

Quí homine [hominum] adaéque nemo uíuit fortunátior.

HE. (aside) Quaé illaec est laetítia, quam illic laétus largitúr mihi? 49

ER. (goes to Hegio's door and knocks) [Púltabo aedis:] heús, ubi estis? écquis hoc aperit óstium? 830

HE. (aside) Híc homo récipit se ad me ad cenam. ER. Áperite hasce ambás foris puce ual

Príus quam pultando ássulatim fóribus exitium ádfero.

HE. (aside) Pérlubet hunc cónloqui hominem: (going forward) Ergásile. ER. (without turning round) Qui Ergasilúm uocat?

HE. Réspice [me]. ER. Fortúna tibi quod néc faciet nec [núnc] facit, 54

Hóc me iubes. set quíst? HE. Respicedum ad me: Hégio sum. ER. (turns round and sees Hegio)

Óh mihi: 835

no hole told QUántumst hominum [tu] óptume optumórum, in tempore áduenis.

HE. Néscio quem ad pórtum nanctu's, úbi cenes: eo † fastidis. you are here

ER. Cédo manum. HE. Manúm? ER. Manum, inquam, cédo tuam actutúm. HE. (giving his hand) Tene.

ER. (shaking Hegio's hand) Gaúde. HE. Quid ego gaúdeam? ER. Quia ego ímpero. (shaking it again) age gaudé modo. 59

HE. Pól maerores mi ánteuortunt exced gaúdiis. ER. . . . Iám ego ex corpore éxigam omnis máculas maerorúm tibi: 841 (shaking it again) Gaúde audacter. HE. Gaúdeo, etsi níl scio quod gaudeam.

Stant
ER. Béne facis: iubé . . HE. Quid iubeam? ER. Ígnem ingentem fíeri.

HE. Ígnem ingentem? ER. Íta díco, ut sit mágnus.

HE. Quid? me, uólturi, 64

Tűan causa aedis incensurum cénset? ER. Noli iráscier.

Iúben an non iubés astitui aúlas, patinas élui, saucipans 846

Láridum atque epulás foueri curare foculis in feruéntibus, washed

Álium piscis praeferre praestínatum abíre? HE. (to the audience)

Hic uigilans sómniat.

ER. Álium porcinam átque agninam et púllos gállináceos? 69

HE. Scís bene esse, sí sit unde. ER. Múraenam atque

ophthalmiam, saucipans ophthálmiam, sting 850

Hóraeum, scumbrum scombrum ét trugonum et cétum et mollem

cheese cáseum? cheese

HE. Nóminandi istórum tibi erit mágis quam edundi cópia

Híc apud me, Ergásile. ER. Mean me caúsa hoc censes dícere?

HE. Néc nihil hodie néc multo plus tu híc edes, ne

frustra sis: frustra sis frústra sis: 74

Próin tu tui cotídiani uícti uentrem ad me ádferas. 855

ER. Quín ita faciam ut túte cupias fáceré tolle sumptum, etsi égo uotem.

HE. Égone? ER. Tu ne. HE. Túm tu mi igitur érus es. ER. Immo béneuolens.

Vín te faciam fórtunatum? HE. Málim quam miserúm quidem.

ER. Cédo manum. HE. En manúm. ER. Di te omnes

adiuuant ádiuuant. HE. Nil séntio.

ER. Nón enim es in sénticeto, eó non sentis. sét iube 80

Vása tibi pura ádparari ád rem diuínám citó 861

843. fieri.

854. frustră.

861. Hiatus, at end of first half of trochaic tetrameter.

Átque agnum [huc] adféri propere pínguem. HE. Quor?

ER. Vt sácrufices.

HE. Quóí deum? ER. Mihi [quidem] hércle: nam ego nunc tibi sum summus Iúppiter:

Ídem ego sum Salús, Fortuna, Lúx, Laetitia, Gaúdium.

Próinde tu deum hunc sáturitate fácias tranquillúm tibi. 85

HE. Éssurire míhi uidere. ER. Míhi quidem essurio, nón
tibi. 866

HE. Iúppiter te díque perdant. ER. Te hércle—mi aequomst grátias

Ágere ob nuntiúm: tantum ego nunc pórtó a pórtu tibi

boni.

Nunc tu míhi placés. HE. Abi stultus, séro post tempús uenis. 870

ER. Ígitur olim si áduenisset, mágis tu tum istuc díceres. 91

Nunc hanc laetitiam áccipe a me quám fero: nam fílium Tűum modo in portú Philopolemum uíuom, saluom et sóspitem

Vídi in puplicá celoce ibidémque illum adulescéntulum

Áleum una et tűum Stalagmum séruom, qui aufugít domo, 875

Quí tibi subrupuít quadrimum púerum filiolum tuum. 96

HE. Ábi in malam rem, lúdis me. ER. Ita me amábit sancta Sátoritas,

Hégio, itaque sũo me semper cóndecoret cognómine,

Út ego uidi. HE. Měumne gnatum? ER. Tűum gnatum et geniúm meum. 879

HE. Ét captiuom illum Álidensem? ER. Mά τὸν Ἀπόλλω.

HE. Et séruolum

100

Měum Stalagmum, mẽum qui gnatum súbrupuit? ER.

Ναὶ τὰν Κόραν.

102 HE. † Iam diu? ER. Ναὶ τὰν Πραινέστην. HE. Vénit?

ER. Ναὶ τὰν Σιγνίαν.

HE. Cérton? ER. Ναὶ τὰν Φρουσινῶνα. HE. Víde sis.

ER. Ναὶ τὰν 'Αλάτριον.

HE. Quid tu per barbáricas urbis iúras? ER. Quia enim item áspærae 104

Súnt, ut tuum uictum aútumabas ésse. HE. Vae aetatif tuaæ. 885

ER. Quíppe quando míhi nil credis, quód ego dico sédulo.

HE. Díc, bonan fidé tu mi istaæc uérba dixistí? ER.
Bona. 890

HE. Di ínmortales, íterum natus uídeor, uera si aútumas. 111

ER. Āin tu? dubium habébis etiam, sáncte quom ego iurém tibi?

Póstremo, Hegió, si parua iúri iurandóst fides,

Víse ad portum. HE. Fácere certumst: tu íntus cura quód opus est:

Súme, posce, próme quiduis: té, facio cellárium. 895

ER. Nam hércle, nisi ego mánticinatus próbe ero, fusti péctito. 116

HE. Aéternum tibi dápinabo uíctum, uera si aútumas.

ER. Vnde id? HE. A me mēoque gnato. ER. Spónden tu istut? HE. Spóndeo.

ER. At ego tuum tibi áduenisse fílium respóndeo. 119

HE. Cúra quam optumé potes. ER. Bene ámbula et redámbula. (exit Hegio by the left-hand door.)

Íllic hinc abiit: míhi rem summam crédidit cibárium. 901

Di ínmortales, iam út ego collos praétruncabo tégoribus.

Quánta pernis péstis ueniet, quánta labes lárído, basen

Quánta sumini ápsumedo, quánta callo cálamitas, 12 m 124

Quánta laniis lássitudo, quánta porcináriis: 905

Nam ália si memorém, quae ad uentris uíctum conducúnt, morast.

Nunc ibo [in meam] praefecturam, ut ius dicam laro Et quae pendent indemnatae pernae, eis auxilium ut feram. (enters the house.)

(One of Hegio's SERVANTS runs out of the house in great agitation.)

PVER. (to the audience.)

Diéspiter te díque, Ergasile, pérđant et uentrém tuum Parasítosque omnis ét qui posthac cénam parasítis dabit.
Cladés calamitasque, íntemperies módo in nostram aduenít domum. hisce actum 911

Quasi [sí sit] lupus esúriens, metui ne ín me faceret ín-petum.

Nimisq̄ue h̄ercle ego illum m̄ale formidabam: ita frendebat d̄entibus.

Adueniens deturbauit totum cum carni carnarium.

Arrípuit gladium, détruncauit tríbus tegoribus glándia. 915

Aulās calicesque omnis confregit, nisi quae modiales erant:

Cocúm percontabátur, possent sériæ feruésce.

Cellás refregit ómnis intus reclúsitque [omne] armárium. 10
Adséruate istunc súltis, serui: ego íbo ut conueniám senem:

Dicam [ílli] ut sibi penum áliut ornet, sí quidem sese uti uolet: 920

Nam [in hóc], ut hic quidem adórnat, aut iam nřhil est aut iam nřhil erit. (re-enters the house.)

ACTVS V.

(Enter HEGIO from the left-hand door with his elder son, accompanied by Philocrates. The runaway slave follows.)

HEGIO. PHILOPOLEMVS. PHILOCRATES.
STALAGMVS.

HE. (to his son) Iouí disque agó gratiás merito mágnas,

(counting on his fingers) Quom té reducem [núnc] tuo patrí reddidérunt

Quomque éx miseriís plurumís me exemérunt,
Quas, dúm te caréndum hic fuít, sustentábam, 925
Quomque húncc [ego] conspício in potéstate nóstra 5
Quomque húius repértast fidés firma nóbis.

PHILOP. Sátis iam dolui ex ánimo et cura sátis me et lacrumis máceraui:

Sátis iam audiui túas aerumnas, ád portum mihi quas memorasti.

Hóc agamus. PHILOCR. Quíd nunc, quoniam técum seruauí fidem 930

Tíbique hunc reducem in líbertatem féci? HE. Fecisti út
tibi, 10

Philocrates, numquám referre grátiam possím satis,
Pröinde ut tu proméritu's de me et filio. PHILOP.
Immó potes,

Páter, et poteris ét ego potero et dí potestatém dabunt,
 Vt beneficium béne merenti nóstro merito múnères, 935 meriti id bene

Sicut tu huic potés, pater mi, fácere merito máxume. 15

HE. Quíd opust uerbis? língua nullast quá negem quidquíd roges.

PHILOCR. Póstulo aps te ut mi íllum reddas séruom, quem hic relíqueram

Pígnus pro me, míhi qui melior quá m sibimet sempér fuit, Pró benefactis éius ut ei prétium possim réddere. 940

HE. Quóm bene fecistí, referetur grátia id quod póstulas:
 Ét íd et aliut quód me orabis ímpetrabis. átque te 21
 Nólím suscensére, quod ego irátus ei fecí male.

PHILOCR. Quíd fecisti? HE. In lápicidinas cónpeditum cóndidi,

Vbi rescui míhi data esse uérba. PHILOCR. Vae miseró
 mihi: 945

Própter meum capút labores hómíni euenisse óptumo. 25

HE. Át ob eam rem míhi libellam pró eo argenti né duis: libellam

Grátiis a me, út sit liber, dúcito. PHILOCR. Edepol, Hégio,

Fácis benigne: sét quaeso hominem ut iúbeas arcessí.

HE. Licet. certatim

(goes to the door of the house and calls to those within) Vbi uos estis? íte actutum, Týndarum huc arcés site. 950

Vós ite intro: intéribi ego ex hac státua (pointing to Stalagmus) uerbereá uolo 30

Érogitare, měo minore quíd sit factum filio.

Vós lauare intéribi. PHILOP. Sequere hac, Phílocrates, me intró. PHILOCR. Sequor. (Philopolemus and Philocrates go into the house.)

HE. (to Stalagnus) Áge tu illuc procéde, bone uir, lépidum <sup>hne</sup> stmancupiúm meum.

ST. Quid me facere opórtet, ubi tu tális uir falsum aútu-mas? 955

Fúi ego bellus, lépidus, bonus uir númquam neque frugí bonae st

Néque ero umquam: ne [tu ín] spem ponas mé bonae frugí fore.

HE. Própemodum ubi locí fortunae túae sint facile intéllegis. 5

[Si eris uerax, tua ex re facies, ex mala meliusculam.]

Récta et uera lóquere: set neque uére [tu] neque récte adhuc 960

Fécisti umquam. ST. Quód ego fatear, crédin pudeat quom aútumes?

HE. Át ego faciam ut púdeat: nam in rubórem te totúm
 dabo.

ST. Éia, credo ego, ínperito plágas minitarís mihi: 10 Tándem ista aufer. díce quid fers, út feras hinc quód petis.

HE. Sátis facundu's: sét iam fieri dícta conpendí uolo. 965 Hóc agamus. iam ánimum aduerte ac míhi quae dicam edíssere.

Sí eris uerax, éx tuis rebus féceris meliúsculas. 15

ST. Núgae istaec sunt: nón me censes scíre quid dignús siem?

HE. Át ea supterfúgere potis es paúca, si non ómnia. 970

ST. Paúca ecfugiam, scío: nam multa euénient, et meritó meo,

Quía [ego] et fugi et tíbi subrupui fílium et eum uéndidi.

HE. Quóí homini? ST. Polyplúsio Theodóromedi in Álide

Séx minis. HE. Pro di ínmortales: ís quidem huius ést pater

Philócrati. ST. Quin mélius noui quáam te et uidi saépius. 975

HE. Sérua, Iuppitér supreme, et méd et meum gnatúm mihi. (goes to the door of the house and calls.)

Philócrates, per túum te genium ópsecro, exi: te uolo.

Jura

PHILOCRATES. HEGIO. STALAGMVS.

(Philocrates comes out.)

PH. Hégio, adsum: síquid me uis, ímpera. HE. Hic gnatúm meum

Túo patri ait se uéndidisse séx minis in Álide.

PH. Quám diu id factúmst? ST. Hic annus íncipit uicénsumus. 980

PH. Fálfa memorat. ST. Aút ego aut tu: nám quadri-mulúm tibi

• Túus pater pecúliarem páruolo pueró dedit. 5

PH. Quíd erat ei nomén? si uera dícis, memoradúm
mihi.

ST. Paégnum uocitátust: post uos índidistis Týndaro.

PH. Quór ego te non nóui? ST. Quia iam mós est obliuisci hóminibus 985

Néque nouisse, quóius nihili sít faciunda grátia.

PH. Díc mihi, isne istíc fuit quem uéndidisti mēo patri, 10
Quí mihimet pecúliaris dátus est? ST. Huius fílius.

HE. Víuitne is homo? ST. Argéntum accepi, níl curaui céterum.

977. Hiatus, at end of first half of trochaic tetrameter.

985. oblīvisc' (two syllables: cf. audissem for audivissem).

HE. Quid tu ais? PH. Quin ístic ipsust Týndarus tuus fílius, 990

Vt quidem hic arguménta loquitur. nam ís mecum a puero
puer

Béne pudiceque éducatust úsque ad adulescéntiam. 15

HE. Êt miser sum et fórtunatus, sí uos uera dícitís.

Ëo miser sum, quía male illi féci, si gnatús meust.

Êheu, quom ego plús minusque féci [illi] quam aequóm fuit. 995

Quód male feci, crúciór: modo si inféctum fieri póssiet.

Sét eccum incedit húc ornatus haút ex suis uirtútibus. 20

L. a. quia uol ueris & h. deus

(Enter TYNDARUS heavily fettered, carrying a pickaxe.)

TYNDARVS. HEGIO. PHILOCRATES.
STALAGMVS.

TY. (to the audience) Vídi ego multa saépe picta quae
Ácherunti fierent

Crúciamenta: uérum enimuero núlla adaequest Ácheruns

Átque ubi ego fui in lápicidinís. illic ibi demúmst locus,

Vbi labore lássitudost éxigunda ex córpore. 1001

Nam úbi illo adueni, quási patriciís púeris aut rockdams monédulae

Aút ducks anátés aut cóturnices 10.12 dántur quicum lúsitent: 6

Ítidem mi adueniénti haec crane upupa quí me delectém datast.

(seeing Hegio) Sét erus eccum ante óstium, et erus álter eccum ex Álide 1005

Rédiit. HE. Salueto, éxoptate gnáte mi. TY. (in surprise) Hem: quid, gnáte mi?

Áttat, scio quor té patrem esse adsímules et me fílium:

Quía mi item ut paréntes lucís dás tuendi cópíam. 11

upupa - rockdams - pickaxe - crane

quodammodo

PH. Sáľue, Tyndare. TY. Ět tu, quouis caúsa hanc aerumnam éxigo.

PH. Át nunc liber ín diuitias fáxo uenies: nam tibi 1010
Páter hic est: hic séruost qui te huic hínc quadrimum súrpuit, Véndidit patrí meo te séx minis. is té mihi 15
Páruolum pecúliarem páruolo pueró dedit.

Íllic indicium fécit: nam hunc ex Álide huc redúcimur
Quín huius filium íntus eccum, frátrem germanúm tuum.

TY. Quid tu ais? addúxtine illum cáptiuom huius fílium?

PH. Quín, inquam, íntus híc est. TY. Fecisti édepol et recte ét bene. 1017

PH. (pointing to Hegio) Núnc tibi pater hic ést: (pointing to Stalagmus) hic fur est túus, qui paruom hinc te ápstulit. 21

TY. Át ego hunc grandis grándem natu ob fúrtum ad carnuficém dabo.

PH. Meritus est. TY. Ergo édepol [merito] méritam mercedém dabo. 1020

Sét dic, oro [té], pater meus tún' es? HE. Ego sum, gnáte mi.

TY. Núnc demum in memóriam redeo, quóm mecum recógito 25

[Nunc edepol demum in memoriam regredior audisse me]
Quási per nebulas Hégionem měum patrem uocárier.

HE. Égo sum. PH. Conpedibús [te] quaeso ut tíbi sit leuior fílius 1025

Átque hic grauior séruos. HE. Certumst príncipium id praeuórtier.

Ěamus intro, ut árcessatur fáber, ut istas cónpedis 30

Tíbi adimam, huic dem. ST. Quoi peculi níhil est, recte féceris. (exeunt omnes.)

(All the actors appear on the stage, and address the audience.)

CATERVA.

Spēctatores, ād pudicos mōres facta haec fābulast.
Hūius modi paucās poetae réperiunt comoédias,
Vbi boni meliōres fiant, nūnc uos, si uobis placet
Ēt si placuimūs neque odio fuimūs, signum hoc mītite:
Quī pudicitiae ésse uoltis praémium, plausúm date. 1036

METRA HVIVS FABVLAE.

- Ver. 1 ad 194 iambici senarii (◡ ◡)
- „ 195 et 196 iambici octonarii
- „ 197 iambicus dimeter acatalectus
- „ 198 et 199 iambici octonarii
- „ 200 et 202 iambici senarii
- „ 201 et 203 iambici octonarii
- „ 204 et 205 cretici tetrametri acatalecti (◡ ◡ —)
- „ 206 iambicus octonarius
- „ 207 creticus tetrameter acatalectus
- „ 208 et 209 trochaici octonarii (◡ ◡)
- „ 210 et 211 cretici tetrametri acatalecti
- „ 212 creticus dimeter acatalectus
- „ 213 ad 224 cretici tetrametri acatalecti
- „ 225 iambicus dimeter acatalectus
- „ 226 ad 230 bacchiaci tetrametri acatalecti (◡ ◡ —)
- „ 231 iambicus septenarius
- „ 232 creticus tetrameter acatalectus
- „ 233 creticus dimeter acatalectus
- „ 234 ad 239 cretici tetrametri acatalecti
- „ 240 et 241 trochaici octonarii
- „ 242 ad 360 trochaici septenarii
- „ 361 ad 384 iambici senarii
- „ 385 ad 497 trochaici septenarii
- „ 498 bacchiacus dimeter acatalectus
- „ 499 ad 502 bacchiaci tetrametri acatalecti
- „ 503 bacchiacus dimeter acatalectus
- „ 504 bacchiacus tetrameter acatalectus
- „ 505 iambicus senarius
- „ 506 et 507 iambici dimetri acatalecti
- „ 508 iambicus dimeter catalecticus
- „ 509 bacchiacus dimeter acatalectus
- „ 510 ad 515 iambici septenarii

- Ver. 516 ad 524 iambici octonarii
„ 525 iambicus senarius
„ 526 ad 532 trochaici septenarii
„ 533 ad 540 iambici octonarii
„ 541 ad 658 trochaici septenarii
„ 659 ad 767 iambici senarii
„ 768 et 769 trochaici septenarii
„ 770 ad 780 iambici octonarii
„ 781 ad 783 bacchiaci tetrametri acatalecti
„ 784 iambicus dimeter catalecticus
„ 785 ad 790 bacchiaci tetrametri acatalecti
„ 791 ad 908 trochaici septenarii
„ 909 ad 921 iambici octonarii
„ 922 ad 927 bacchiaci tetrametri acatalecti
„ 928 et 929 trochaici octonarii
„ 930 ad 1036 trochaici septenarii.
-

Clarendon Press Series

T. MACCI PLAVTI

CAPTIVI

WITH INTRODUCTION AND NOTES

BY

W. M. LINDSAY, M.A.

FELLOW OF JESUS COLLEGE

PART II—NOTES

SECOND EDITION

Oxford

AT THE CLARENDON PRESS

1892

NOTES.

Personæ. Four actors would be required for this piece. The parts would be allotted as follows:

- I. Hegio.
- II. Philocrates, Aristophontes, Puer (?).
- III. Tyndarus, Philopolemus.
- IV. Ergasilus, Stalagmus.

There would also be 'supers' to represent the Lorarii, the slaves in Act 2. init. etc.

Argumentum. The Arguments prefixed to the plays of Plautus were not written by Plautus himself, but in a later age. (See Ritschl Prolegomena, chap. xix.)

Prologus. The Prologues to Plautus' plays were, like the Arguments, not written by Plautus himself, but in the last century of the Republic, when the comedies of Plautus, Terence, and Caecilius were the favourites on the Roman stage. We might guess that our prologue was not the work of Plautus from the fact that there is a mention in v. 12 of seats, and we know that a theatre with seats for the spectators did not exist at Rome till long after Plautus' time.

The prologue was spoken by the manager of the company (dominus gregis), or by one of the inferior actors. The person who delivered it wore a special dress (ornatus prologi), but we do not know exactly what it was. He sometimes had a hard task to get a hearing. We can see from vv. 11 sqq. that a disturbance in the back of the theatre was a thing that could be counted upon with tolerable certainty, so that the lines in the prologue would always come in appropriately. The digression is very convenient for the prologue to this play, for it gives the speaker an opportunity of repeating the rather intricate plot (vv. 17 sqq.), and of pressing upon the audience the difference between Philocrates and Tyndarus.

vv. 38 sq. illic vocatur Philocrates, hic Tyndarus:
huius ille, hic illius hodie fert imaginem, etc.

The Scene, which is unchanged throughout the play, is a street (v. 795) in some Aetolian town, say Calydon, with Hegio's house and others. On the left hand of the stage (from the spectators) is a door used by characters going to or coming from the harbour. On the right is another door through which they pass to or from the market-place. The action of the play begins in the forenoon (v. 127) before the πληθούσης ἀγώρας (10-12 o'clock). See vv. 191, 478.

1. Hos quos uidetis for hi quos uidetis. This inverse attraction, as it is called, that is to say, attraction of the demonstrative into the case of the relative, is not uncommon in Latin. Well-known instances are Virg. Aen. 1. 573 urbem quam statuo vestra est; Ter. Eun. 4. 3. 11 eunuchum quem dedisti nobis, quas turbas dedit. It finds its explanation in the old Latin usage of repeating the demonstrative in the relative clause: e.g. Plant. Mil. 140 nam unum conclauē concubinae quod dedit miles—in eo conclauē ego perfodiui parietem: cf. such legal formulas as quam rem praetor ex hac lege egerit si eam rem, etc. The full phrase would be quam urbem statuo vestra est haec urbs: quem eunuchum dedisti nobis quas turbas hic eunuchus dedit.

The attraction of the relative into the case of the demonstrative is frequent in Greek, being in fact the regular usage of Attic writers, e.g. χρῶμαι οἷς ἔχω βιβλίοις, but rare in Latin, e.g. Hor. Sat. 1. 6. 14 notante Iudice quo nosti populo.

2. Vincti quia astant. The Prologue is making fun of poor Philocrates and Tyndarus who are standing in some painful, constrained attitude at the side of the stage; tied to a post, let us suppose, with their hands bound behind their backs, and heavily chained (v. 113). An English comedian might say,

This pair of captives you see standing here,— Bound as they are, are almost bound to stand;
I think you'll all admit the force of that.

The plot of the play, turning as it does on the interchange of parts between Philocrates and Tyndarus, would be hard for an ordinary Roman audience to follow, and so the two are brought on the stage at the first, although they do not say anything, that the audience may have time to examine them and get familiar with their appearance. But they are not seen after the Prologue until Act 2. Sc. 1.

5. Set = sed.

suo sibi. In colloquial Latin suus sibi, 'his own,' was used as a stronger expression than the simple suus, 'his;' the sibi being in no particular grammatical construction. A prose-writer would use proprius. So v. 46 sua sibi fallacia; 50 suo sibi seruit patri; 81 suo sibi suco uiuunt, etc.

8. Alium for alterum. By a similar negligence we often say in English 'the best of two things' instead of 'the better of two things.' In post-classical Latin alius often takes the place of alter in such phrases as Tac. Hist. 4. 73 ne quis alius Ariovistus regnum Galliarum poteretur — 'a second Ariovistus.'

NOTES. LINES 1-16.

seruos = servus. Nouns of the second declension in Latin originally ended in -os, like the second declension in Greek. The o became in course of time u, but was retained when a v (w) preceded, for the Romans liked the sound of o after v (cf. v. 703).

surpuit = surripuit. Cf. v. 760.

9. Alide. The 'Doric' form would of course be the form used by the Eleans themselves, and so by the Romans. Alēus = Elēus in v. 22, etc., shows the same shortening of the vowel as we get in platēa = πλατεῖα, etc.

10. Domino. Some word is required to eke out the metre of the line as it stands in the MSS., and domino, 'master,' is as good as any. The word is enclosed in brackets to shew that it is not certainly the original word.

iam hoc tenetis? optumumst: 'do you take me? very good.' The Prologue asks the spectators if they understand the plot as he has just explained it to them; they nod assent, and he expresses himself satisfied, when he is interrupted by a noisy fellow in the back of the theatre.

11. Negat hercle, etc. 'There is a man at the back says he does not (sc. take me). Tell him to come this way. If you cannot get a seat, sir, you may move about here.' When the Prologue says est ubi ambules, he points to the passage between the tiers of seats, where the man might stand or walk about, if he liked, and watch the play quietly. A proposed reading is abscedito: 'Tell him to go out then. No room here, sir, but plenty of room outside. So, be off!'

13. Quando histrionem cogis mendicari: 'if you will make the actor take to the begging line,' i.e. drop his acting for the moment and beg of you not to make a disturbance. This is a far more natural sense to give to the words than to suppose them to refer to the next line, ego me tua causa, etc.: 'for really you will bring the actor to beggary,' i.e. you will make him lose his voice in trying to be heard above your disturbance, and then, his occupation being gone, he will be reduced to beggary. Another explanation is that beggars in Rome, who had regular standing-places (Trin. 423), were often asked the way by strangers. 'You make the actor turn beggar and shew you the way to your seat.'

14. ne erres, i.e. 'to keep you from misunderstanding the plot.' Se rumpere = 'to crack one's lungs.'

15. Vos qui, etc. 'You who pay rates and taxes' (while 'ultimus illic' has not a ratepayer's income): lit. you whose means entitle you to be entered on the censor's list.

16. Accipite reliquum—a technical phrase of money transactions: 'let me discharge my debt;' i.e. let me tell you the rest of the plot. Cf. Cist. i. 3. 40 nunc quod reliquum restat uolo persolvere, | ut expunga-

PLAUTI CAPTIVI.

tur nomen nequid debeam. In early Latin the word reliquus was of four syllables.

alieno uti nil moror: 'none of the credit system for me.'

17. dixeram=dixi or dicebam. We often find the pluperfect in the comedians where we should expect the perfect: cf. infr. 194 dixeram; 305 fueram; 938 reliqueram. In Most. 3. 1. 134 Simo says of his house eo pretio empti fuerant olim, 'I gave a long price for it when I bought it,' using empti fuerant where in strict language empti sunt should have been said. Tranio pretends to understand him to imply that the house is no longer his. In Cicero we hardly find traces of this loose use of the pluperfect, but it is very common in Sallust and Tacitus, especially the former: e.g. Cat. 18 transtulerant; 24 concusserat; Jug. 57 muniverat; 64 accenderat.

18. dominum: 'his young master.'

20. quasi: 'about,' = fere, a common use of the word in Plautus, e.g. Most. 3. 1. 91 debet quasi quadraginta minas.

22. 'Aye! the gods make shuttlecocks of us.' Cf. the Greek proverb, θεῶν παίγνια ἀνθρώποι.

24. Postquam belligerant. The historical present after postquam quum, etc. is more frequent in the conversational style of the comedians than in prose-writers. We have postquam video infr. v. 487; postquam occasiost Mil. 124; postquam abs te abit ib. 1330.

25. fit. In early Latin poetry the long vowel of fīo is preserved in the third sing. fit. In the classical period fit was pronounced short, like other third singulars in -t.

27. hic: i.e. Hegio.

conmercari: 'buy up.'

28. qui: the locative, here used for the abl. quo, 'hoping to find one to exchange for his son—his prisoner son, I mean, for he knows nothing of this son (pointing to Tyndarus) he has at home.'

30. indaudiuit. This old Latin preposition indu, cudo (a form of in) appears also in indipiscor, indugredi, induperator; Lucr. 4. 967 induperatores pugnare et proelia obire.

loco: 'rank.'

32. 'To save his son he would not save his money.'

33. Reconciliare: 'to get back.' Concilio, lit. 'to call together,' from cum and √cal-, as in calata comitia, clamo, καλέω, (cf. concilium), has in old Latin the sense of 'to procure,' especially 'to procure by purchase,' and is a common word for buying in Plautus.

34. quaestoribus: the quaestores urbani were the officials who received the booty taken in war, and sold it by public auction (sub hasta).

35. Hisce=hi. In old Latin we often find -o stems forming their plural in s, like consonant stems, e.g. Mil. 44 triginta Sardis, sexaginta Macedones; ib. 374 non possunt mihi minis tuis hisce oculis ecfodiri.

NOTES. LINES 17-58.

36. amittat: amitto=dimitto in old Latin; cf. Arg. 7 ut is amittatur fecit; infr. v. 332 et te et hunc amittam hinc; 460 te ut amittam, etc. Even Virgil uses the word in this sense, quisquis es, amissos hinc iam obliviscere Graios A. 2. 148.

38. illic=ille. See v. 261.

40. expediat: 'will carry out this trick.'

45. insciens. The classical word inscius is not used by Plautus and Terence.

46. sua sibi. See note to v. 5. and cf. v. 50 below.

48. 'So they have devised by their own wit,' i.e. without help from anyone.

51. 'Aye! men are paltry things when one thinks of it.' quanti, gen. of price.

52. 'All this will be fact on the boards, fiction for the benches.' Lit. 'this (haec by attraction for hoc) will be acted—a reality for us actors, a story, or play, for you.'

53. paucis: with monitos. 'One other thing I would briefly suggest.'

54. operam dare: 'to attend to' this play,—the regular phrase in Plautus; cf. supr. v. 6.

55. Non pertractate: 'not in the hackneyed style.' Tracto=to handle; pertracto= 'to handle again and again.' But pertracto generally means 'to study carefully,' and so some would read nam pertractate, 'for it has been written with care.'

56. 'It has no filthy lines that one must not repeat.' Adjectives in -bilis are great favourites with Plautus. We have infr. v. 302 aequabilis, 402 discordabilis; Mil. 544 incogitabilis, 1144 adiutabilis; Most. 859 utibilis, 1162 impetrabilis; Trin. 25 conducibilis; Aul. 191 inlocabilis, 533 intolerabilis, 633 uerberabilissime, etc. They have often (as inmemorabilis here and uerberabilissime Aul. 633) the sense of 'must,' 'ought,' and not merely of 'can.' They are further sometimes active, e.g. adiutabilis Mil. 1144; sometimes passive, as utibilis Most. 859.

58. ne uereamini is of course a joke. A Roman audience would rather relish a spectacle of the kind, as we know from Horace's account of the popular play of the day, Epp. 2. 1. 189 sqq.:

*Quatuor aut plures aulaea premuntur in horas, dum fugiunt equitum turmae peditumque catervae;
mox trahitur manibus regum fortuna retortis;
esseda festinant, pilenta, petorrita, naves;
captivum portatur ebur, captiva Corinthus:*

and the Prologue goes on in v. 61 to apologize for depriving the spectators of the pleasure.

61. iniquomst: 'would be unfair,' like longum est, 'it would be tedious,' morast (v. 906), 'it would be waste of time.

choragium: the scenery, dresses, etc.

62. desubito, an old Latin form. Cf. derepente. The difference between these and the classical forms, subito, repente, is like that between 'of a sudden' and 'suddenly' in English.

64. aduorsarium. See v. 703. 'Those who are all for a battle-scene should go to law. If they can get some good strong rival I promise them a pretty battle-scene that will give them a distaste for battles for the future.'

68. 'And so good-bye to you, kind critics at home, brave fighters in the field.' Duellum is the old form of bellum, from duo, just as bis points to an older form duis. Horace had a curious liking for this piece of old Latin, Od. 3. 5. 38 pacem duello miscuit, ib. 3. 14. 18 cadum Marsi memorem duelli; ib. 4. 15. 8 vacuum duellis | Janum Quirini clausit: cf. Ep. 1. 2. 7; 2. 1. 254; 2. 2. 98.

In Plautus' time it seems to have been a word of two syllables, dvellum (pronounce dwel-), like tinguō, linguō, etc., and so this line scans:

dōmī | duēllī | quē duēll | ātō | rēs ōp | tūmī.

ACT I. SCENE 1.

Enter Ergasilus, a parasite ('diner-out'), dressed in grey or black (as the parasiti always were on the stage), looking miserably hungry, lean (v. 135), and woebegone. He complains of the difficulty in getting a dinner in these times, and laments the absence of his generous young patron, Philopolemus, who has been taken prisoner by the Eleans.

69. nomen indidit Scorto. The nominative, and not the dative, is the usual construction in Cicero in nomen est mihi, etc., e.g. Verr. 4. 53 cui nomen Arethusa est, but in other writers the dative is the favourite usage. Ovid has a curious freak of employing the nom. in phrases like nomen habet, etc., e.g. Met. 6. 400 Marsya nomen habet; 15. 96 actas, cui fecimus aurea nomen; and he is followed by later prose-writers.

70. The pun on inuocatus, 'uninvited,' and inuocatus, 'invoked,' is difficult to reproduce in English.

71. derisores: 'wags,' 'my brother-parasites,' as in Hor. Ep. 1. 18. 11 imi Derisor lecti. 'The wags call it, I know, a poor joke, but I say it is to the point.'

apsurde: absurdus is lit. 'out of tune' (cf. Cic. de Or. 3. 11. 41 vox absona et absurda).

73. A lover called out the name of his mistress for luck before he threw the dice, just as another man would invoke a god or goddess in the same circumstances. We get an example in Curc. 2. 3. 75.

77. 'We poor mice who nibble, nibble at other men's larders.'

78. res prolatae: 'Vacation,' lit. 'business adjourned;' the regular phrase in Latin.

79. Semul = simul (cf. v. 292), 'our grinders have Vacation too.'

80. caletur: this impersonal use of the passive of intransitive verbs is especially found with verbs of motion, e.g. ventum est, aditum est, etc. Ut valetur? 'how do you do?' was a common greeting. 'They say snails crawl off to their holes in the dog-days.'

84. rurant: a coinage of Plautus. (The common word is rusticari). Cf. dentio in Mil. 1. 1. 34 ne dentes dentiant.

86. redierunt, sc. res, the regular expression for the resumption of business. Cf. Cic. post Red. 11. 27 cum res rediissent.

87. Odiosici and incommodestici are funnily coined words after the style of uenatici and Molossici (of which last indeed the usual form is Molossi), as if they were names of breeds of dogs. 'Aye! in Vacation we diners-out are keen as beagles. We're wolf-hounds when it's over, and dear-hounds too, yes! and bore-hounds.' The Molossi were properly watch-dogs (Hor. Sat. 2. 6. 114).

88. hic: 'here at Calydon.'

89. frangi. A more careful and logical writer than Plautus would have said frangi sinere.

aulas: the old form of ollas.

90. The porta Trigemina (so called from its three archways) was in one of the busiest parts of Rome, the Salinae, at the corner of the Aventine. Porters and message-carriers had a stance there, and Ergasilus says that he will have to take his place among them to earn a living. Roman porters, like English porters, had a bag (saccus) in which to carry smaller articles entrusted to them:

'Then hey! for Three Arches and the porter's bag.'

Archways were also, as they are now-a-days, favourite places for beggars, and that is what is referred to in Trin. 423 pater quom peregre ueniet in portast locus. Some editors think saccus in our line means 'a beggar's wallet,' and quote this line of the Trinummus as a parallel.

92. rex: the conventional term applied by a client to a patron down to Imperial times, like βασιλεὺς at Athens.

est potitus hostium: 'fell in with the enemy,' just as one might say nactus est hostes. We find the active potire aliquem alicujus in Plautus, e.g. Amph. 178 cum nunc potiuuit pater seruitutis, and potitus est hostium is usually explained as if it were the corresponding passive construction to this: 'was captured by the enemy.' But it would be in that case postquam mei sunt regis potiti hostes, 'after the enemy were put in possession of my son.'

Potior, like most Latin deponents, is really a middle or reflexive rather than a passive form. Potior alicujus means, 'I make myself master of, put myself in possession of something.' Utor, fruor, 'I avail myself;' vescor, pascor, 'I feed myself;' fungor, 'I occupy myself,' etc. The abl. after these words is really the abl. of instrument.

94. illist = illi est = illic est (cf. v. 261). Ergasilus would point to his right as he said this, for the stage door to the left hand of the spectators, and the right of the actors, was that which was supposed to lead to foreign parts and the harbour; whereas the door to the spectators' right was the conventional road to the market-place.

96. lamentariae: a Plautine coinage.

98. Occipio is common in Plautus where Cicero would use incipio, 'to begin.'

quaestum: viz. of a slave-dealer, mango, a hated class at Rome.

101. qui. Cf. v. 28.

102. nimis quam = perquam, 'very much,' in colloquial Latin. It is a mixture of the two phrases nimis cupio (a common expression of colloquial Latin, e.g. Most. 1. 3. 19 nimis uelim lapidem, 'I should like a stone') and quam cupio, 'how I wish!' cupio ut seems not to be used by Plautus, so the reading here is probably wrong.

103. A pun on recipio, 'to recover,' 'get or take again' (accipio of course is our English 'receive') and se recipere, 'to betake oneself':

'For he must be recovered, or I shall never recover.'

105. 'He is a young gentleman of the good old school. Ille demum, 'he and only he,' 'he especially.'

106. gratiis: always trisyllabic in the Comedians, in classical Latin gratis (cf. dis for diis), is abl. of price, 'for mere thanks,' 'for nothing but thanks;' ingratiis, a quadrisyllable, is abl. of manner, 'with thanklessness,' 'against one's will,' e.g. Mil. 449 PH. mittin me an non mittis? SC. immo ui atque inuitam ingratiis, | nisi uoluntate abis, rapiam te domum. But sometimes gratis is abl. of manner and means 'with thankfulness,' 'pleasantly.'

Tr.: 'Never did I smoothe the wrinkles from his brow for nothing,' sc. with my jokes.

107. Condigne has elsewhere in Plautus a bad sense: e.g. Men. 906 condigne autem haec meretrix fecit, ut mos est meretricius.

mōratus, from mōrcs, 'character;' mōratus, from mōra, 'delay.'

ACT I. SCENE 2.

Hegio comes on the stage with the two captives, attended by lorarii. He gives Ergasilus an invitation to dinner, which the latter accepts conditionally in default of a better.

110. The lorarius was the overseer of the slaves, so called from the whip of thongs (lora, n. pl.) with which he punished them, the 'flogger.' The word was obsolete after Plautus' time. Cf. Aul. Gell. 10. 3. 19 tanquam in scenicis fabulis qui dicebantur 'lorarii' quos erant iussi vinciebant aut verberabant.

sis, from si vis, 'if you wish,' 'if you please,' the v being dropped, as in audii for audivi, redii for redivi, etc., and the ii being contracted to i, as in gratis for gratiis. The plural is sultis, i.e. si vultis, e.g. infr. v. 456 servate istum sultis intus, servi.

istos captivos duos: by inverse attraction. Cf. v. 1.

112. catenas singularias: 'the light irons.' Both this and catenae maiores seem to be technical terms for different sorts of fetters used for slaves and criminals.

115. uti adseruentur, with ellipse of date operam, or videte; 'see that they are kept.' Cf. ὅπως in Greek in such sentences as νῦν ὅν ὅπως σώσεις μ' ἐπεὶ κἀπώλεσας Ar. Nub. 1177. With ellipse of cupio, ut with the subj. is a common formula for wishes in old Latin, e.g. Ter. Eun. 2. 3. 11 ut illum di deaque senium perdant. In classical Latin utinam (i.e. uti or ut with the particle nam as in quisnam, etc.) became the established expression in such cases, although ut is used by the poets now and then; e.g. Ov. Her. 13. 161 quod ut videam canis albere capillis.

uti (always ī in Plautus) is the old form of ut, still seen in utinam.

116. Similis, dissimilis, consimilis, etc. take the gen. in Plautus. Even in classical Latin the gen. seems to be the favourite construction with similis, proprius, etc., with which the English idiom requires the dat., 'like to a person,' 'proper to a person,' etc.

Tr.: 'A prisoner with the prison door open is a regular wild-bird.'

119. lubentius = libentius. See v. 292.

120. Non uidere ita tu quidem: 'you do not look like it,' i.e. like preferring to be free than to be a slave. Hegio means that, if the lorarius did prefer freedom, he would save up his peculium and purchase his freedom. The lorarius says he has not money to purchase his freedom, and jocularly asks Hegio (with a play on the word dare) if he would advise him to run away. Hegio replies that he will be punished if he tries it. 'Aye! we'd all far rather be free than slaves.—Faith! you do not look like it.—Shall I pay my adieux, then, if I can't my ransom? —I'll pay you out, if you do.'

123. 'I'll be a wild-bird, as you said just now.'

124. Ita ut dicis: 'just so; and I'll clap Mr. Wild-bird in a cage.'

faxis: faxo, faxim, amasso, amassim, ausim, etc. seem to be formed with eso or ero, the future of sum (originally csum), just like fecero, fecerim, amavero, amaverim, etc. It is a law of the Latin language that s between two vowels becomes r, e.g. onustus but oneratus, arbustum but arboretum, Etrusci but Etruria, so that feceso, fecesim, etc. would come to be pronounced by a Roman fecero, fecerim. In the forms faxo, faxim, etc. the e had been dropped, just as it was dropped in the forms dextra, infra, etc. but retained in the forms dextera, inferi, etc., and the s coming between a consonant and a vowel (c and o), and not between two vowels (e and o), would be retained in Roman pronunciation. Amasso is ama(v)so, just as amâro is ama(v)ero, amassim is ama(v)sim, just as amârim is ama(v)erim; ausim should be aussim, just as causa should be, or rather was in the classical period, caussa, etc.

127. quipiam: 'in any way' = quî + pe + jam, whereas quippiam = quid + pe + jam.

turbo, the slang word in Latin for 'making a row.'

128. rusum = rursum. See v. 656.

'Ah! I grieve to see this poor gentleman turned slaves' gaoler through his son's troubles.'

129. Aegre est mi is a common phrase in colloquial Latin, showing the same use of the adverb with sum as bene esse (v. 850), frustra esse (v. 854, etc.).

131. conciliari. Cf. v. 33.

'And yet, and yet, could the lost but be found, he might turn their hangman too. I should not mind.'—A magnanimous sentiment on Ergasilus' part!

135. 'Who's this'—It's I, whom grief for you has made to dwindle, peak, and pine.'

136. 'What I eat at home does me no good. [Aside] The merest morsel elsewhere sets me up.' Poor Ergasilus has no food at home, whether he could relish it or not.

142. 'Ah! we never know our blessings till once they have gone from our hands.'

144. potitust hostium. Cf. v. 92.

147. quoi = cui. The stem of the Latin Relative is quo-; the gen. sing. was originally quo-ius, then cuius, the dative quoî, then cui, the locative quo-î, then quî.

149. dixis, induxis. See v. 124.

151. quom ... ducis. Causal quom, 'since,' 'because,' takes the ind. in old Latin, the subj. in the classical period. Its compound quoniam

(i.e. quum or quom + jam or iam) takes the ind. in both. So does quando and its compound quandoquidem. Other examples of causal quum in this play are vv. 356, 374, 922.

152. huic: at this word Ergasilus pathetically lays his hands on his stomach. 'Ah! it comes hard on this poor friend. They've disbanded his regiment of Beefeaters.' Or else this may be a use of hic=ego, so common in colloquial Latin.

dolet. The impersonal use of verbs of feeling is commoner than the personal in old Latin. We even get me veretur for vercor.

153. Quia=quod. This is a usage of colloquial Latin. Cicero has it in his letters, e.g. Fam. 5. 14. 2 doleo, quia doles.

155. Imperare exercitum was the phrase for summoning the Comitia Centuriata (which was in its origin a military organisation); remittere exercitum, for dismissing the same.

156. Quid credis? 'Would you believe it?'

157. Quoi refers to Philopolemus.

159. multigeneribus: a Plautine word.

162 sqq. A regular volley of puns on pistor, 'a miller' (bakers were unknown in Plautus' time), and Pistoria, a town in Etruria; panis, 'a loaf,' and Panna, a town in Samnium; placenta, 'a cake,' and Placentia in Gallia Cispadana; turdus, 'a thrush,' and Turdetani, a people in S. Spain; ficedula, 'a becafico' (a small bird esteemed a great dainty by epicures: cf. Mart. 13. 5 cerea qui patulo lucet ficedula lumbo). Where Ficedulae was is unknown.

164. opus sunt. This construction of opus is found in all periods of Latin. In a negative sentence or after quid in an interrogative sentence the abl. is almost invariably found.

165. Cf. 'the world knows nothing of its greatest men': Philip van Artevelde.

166. 'What a military genius lies under this civilian's cloak!'

168. in his diebus: 'in a few days'; a common Latin expression.

reconciliassere. Cf. v. 124.

169. eccum=ecce cum. So eccam=ecce eam; eccillum=ecce illum; ellum, ellam=ecce illum, ecce illam, etc.

171. me mutare confido fore: for confido fore ut mutem,—an almost unparalleled construction in Latin.

173. Nusquam (i.e. ne, the oldest form of the negative + usquam, just as nefastus = ne + fastus, neuter = ne + uter, nullus = ne + ullus, nemo = ne + homo, etc.) means 'not in any place,' 'nowhere,' and sometimes, as here, 'not to any place,' 'no-whither,' = non quoquam. The loose usage of colloquial Latin often confuses the adverbs of rest in a place with those of motion to a place or from a place. Thus intus, which properly means 'within,' as in vv. 114, 192, 456, 894, etc., has the sense of 'from within' in Most. 675 euoca aliquem intus ad te, Amph. 770, etc.: peregre means 'to foreign parts' in Trin. 596 gestandust peregre clupeus; 'from foreign parts,' Trin. 2. 4. 21 quom peregre ueniet. In English we say 'where are you going?' instead of 'whither are you going?'

quod sciam: the subjunctive is used in phrases that restrict or limit a general statement. It is of the same nature as the potential subj. 'velim,' 'I could wish,' etc. Phrases with attinet, posse, and esse, however, generally take the ind., e.g. quod ad me attinet, quod potero. Cic. Brut. 17. 65 Catonem vero quis nostrorum oratorum, qui quidem nunc sunt, legit?

174. mist=mi est. The contracted form mi (for mihi, cf. nil for nihil) is used by preference before words beginning with a vowel in the Comedians.

176. Facete dictum: 'Happy thought!' the copula (est) is only omitted by Plautus in exclamations like facete dictum here, emptum infr. v. 179, etc. It is not omitted in the comic style in expressions like aequom est, opus est, certum est, etc.

pauxillum has the same sense as pauxillo would have, 'that is if you can be content with very poor fare.'

177. esse can hardly be inf. of edo.

Ne . . . modo=dummodo ne.

178. adsiduo: adv.=semper.

179. Hegio treats his invitation to dinner as if it were a bid for the sale of an estate. 'Come on then, name your price.—It's a bargain, in the event of no other offer more suitable to the party or parties concerned.'

nisi qui, etc. seems to be a legal formula which Ergasilus, to whom a dinner is a serious matter, recites with comical gravity.

roga and emptum are also technical words. Cf. Bacch. 881 CH. roga hunc tu, tu promitte huic. NI. promitto, roga. CL. ducentos nummos aureos Philippus probos Dabin? CH. 'dabuntur' inque; responde. NI. dabo, and Epid. 3. 4. 39 estne empti mi haec? PE. his legibus habeas licet.

182. hau. The Romans of Plautus' day used hau before consonants, haud before vowels. Cf. hauscio, a compound like nescio.

'For sale one most capacious acher' is about as bad a pun in English as the pun on profundum (i. e. venter) and fundus.

183. temperi: the locative case of tempus, 'in time,' 'early.'

'Well, if you are coming, come early.—Oh! I've nothing to do.'

184. 'No! no! go and fish for your herring; you've only got a sprat as yet,' if we may so render leporem, 'a hare,' and ictim, 'a weasel.'

185. commētat: frequentative of commeo. 'My table keeps the stony path.'

188. essitas: frequentative of edo.

189. 'Tis of the earth, earthy: Your pig is a beast of the earth [so pork will be included in your bill of fare].—I mean, mostly vegetables.—Open a hospital then.' Hegio's dinner was to be like Horace's, Epp. 1. 5 init.:

Si potes Archiacis conviva recumbere lectis, Nec modica cenare times olus omne patella.

191. Numquid uis? the regular formula of leave-taking. 'Is that all then?'

193. siet=sit. This is really an optative form like εἴην, which was originally **εἰσίνην*, as sien was originally **esiem*. The ie is contracted to i (cf. v. 247) in sim, and in the other subjunctives in -im, e. g. duim (v. 947), velim, edim, etc.; 'to see the state of my little account at the banker's.'

194. ire dixeram for me iturum esse dixeram. This construction is common in the Comedians, and is used side by side with the regular one in Most. 621 dic te daturum ut abeat. TH. egon dicam dare? The difference between the two is like the difference between the syntax of 'I said I would go' and 'I spoke of going' in English. And we say, 'I hope to go' as well as 'I hope I shall go.'

dixeram for dixi. Cf. v. 17.

iuero for ibo. The use of the fut. pf. for the fut. is a feature of colloquial Latin. Cf. Mil. 3. 2. 50 reuenero; Trin. 3. 1. 24 abscessero, etc.

ACT II. SCENE I.

The captives, being left with the overseers on the stage, get permission to have a private talk. They discuss their plot to personate each other, so that Philocrates may get his liberty and Tyndarus be left as a hostage. This scene is a canticum, i.e. a song, or musical recitative, as opposed to a diverbiū, i.e. a dialogue unaccompanied by music. (See Introduction, p. 21.)

195. Si: 'since,' not 'if.' So often si quidem.

199. The reading duramque erili imperio has been suggested: 'a master's order makes it hard to bear, but you can soften it by the temper you bear it with.'

201. What the true reading is that lies hidden in the multa miraculitis of the MSS. is hard to say. Perhaps multam iram editis.

203. pudet... pigeat alludes to the saying nimio id quod pudet facilius fertur quam illud quod piget Psend. 281 (cp. Trin. 345).

quia. Cf. v. 153.

cum catenis esse: 'to be in chains;' a common Latin expression.

Cf. cum telo esse.

206. quod est. Cicero would say quid sit.

210. 'Let us get one favour from you.'

211. Some of Hegio's slaves had come out with the lorarii to get a look at the captives.

214. incipisso is a word peculiar to Plautus; 'but do not start a long talk.—Ah! no, I never meant to.'

215. istim was the old adverb for 'from the place where you are.' In the classical period its compound with the enclitic particle -ce was used, istinc (= istim + ce, like hujusce, haec = hae + ce, etc.). The similar formation illim, e.g. Most. 2. 2. 26, was discarded for illinc, although olim (derived from olle, the old form of ille) was retained, in the sense, however, not of 'from that place,' but of 'in that time,' 'then,' 'formerly.' Hinc points to an obsolete **him*; deinde (i. e. de + im + de), exinde, inde (i. e. im + de), dein, deinde, exin, or exim, exinde, proin, proinde, etc. to another such formation from the pronoun is. We have utrinque, altrinsecus, extrinsecus, but utrim, alterim, exterim were dropped, although interim was retained (in the sense of 'in the inside time,' not of 'in the inside place') along with intrinsecus.

Obnoxii: 'obliged.'

216. quom... facitis. Cf. v. 151.

quae uolumus = eorum quae volumus.

218. iam after nunc was pronounced as a dissyllable, as it was after quum or quom, quoniam, and after et, etiam.

219. arbitrari: this is the oldest sense of arbitror, 'to be an eyewitness (arbiter) of something.' Arbiter itself is usually derived from ad and an old verb bīto, 'to go,' (cf. meridies from medius and dies), and means 'one who goes to see something,' 'an eyewitness.'

230. offerre... uilitati, i. e. offer for sale at a low price.

232. maxuma pars... homines, a variation of maxuma pars... hominum.

233. impetrant. Notice the force of the present tense: 'are trying to obtain.'

236. Some lines appear to have been lost here.

238. si audeam: 'if I chose.' Audeo, i. e. **avideo* from avidus had originally the sense of 'to have a mind to,' and it retains this sense often in Plautus. Sodes, 'if you please,' is really si audes. Cf. Mil. 231 auden participare me quod commentu's?

240. Audio: a common expression in colloquial Latin to cut short another's remarks, 'I know, I know.'

ted. See v. 976.

243. Vt qui = ut. See v. 553.

fuisse: 'have been,' i.e. am no more, like v. 516 nunc illud est, quom me fuisse quam esse nimio mavelim, and Virgil's fuimus Troes (A. 2. 325); sed fortuna fuit (A. 7. 413).

246. hostica. In early Latin hostis had (like hospes, our 'guest') the meaning of 'stranger,' and passed from this sense to that of 'enemy.' In Plautus hosticus means sometimes 'hostile' (as here), sometimes 'strange,' as in Mil. 2. 5. 40 hosticum hoc mihi domiciliumst, Athenis domus est.

247. seruibas = serviebas, as i = ie in the voc. of nouns in -ius, or as mi (voc. of meus) = mie = mee.

'Do not treat me with any more ceremony than I treated you when you were my slave.' Philocrates is afraid that his faithful slave will betray himself in the scene with Hegio by showing him respect. Tyndarus from the first strikes one as being totally different from the ordinary saucy slave of Plautus' comedies, and we are quite prepared for his turning out in the last scene to have been really a gentleman's son.

ACT II. SCENE 2.

Hegio comes and falls into the trap the captives have laid for him. Philocrates, whom he supposes to be the slave, is sent to Elis to procure the release of Philopolemus, Tyndarus being left as hostage.

251. Iam: 'soon.'

253. Philocrates, true to his assumed character as Tyndarus, talks throughout this scene like a saucy slave, while Tyndarus speaks in the dignified tone of a gentleman in distress.

'Faith! you've made sure of not having to look far for us. We've a regular barricade here of gaolers and irons.'

in quaestione esse alicui, 'to be to seek' (cf. in expectatione esse Mil. 1279), is a frequent expression with Plautus.

255. quom etiam = etiam quum, as quum praesertim = praesertim quum.

256. cauisse = se cavisse. Cf. v. 194.

cautor, the old form of cautor.

captus est: 'is taken in.' Capio has often the sense of 'cheating' in colloquial Latin.

257. ut = cur.

sedulo, from se (i.e. sine) and dolus. Cf. v. 886 dico sedulo with Trin. 90, 480, etc. non dicam dolo.

258. praesenti pecunia. We have praesentarium argentum in Most. 2. 1. 14; Trin. 4. 3. 74.

259. uitio uortere: 'to reckon as a fault,' 'to blame one for,' is a common expression in Latin.

260. fuāt. The line is a trochaic septenarius and scans :

Nēquē tē | nōbīs | sī hinc ābē | āmīs | sī fū | āt ōc | cāsī | ō.

The third sing. subj. in Latin had originally the vowel in the final syllable long as in Greek, fuāt, φύη(τ), but this final syllable came to be shortened, like so many other final syllables in Latin, owing to the tendency of the Latin language to throw back the accent from the end of the word. Cf. pātēr and πατήρ.

261. illi. The locative case of ille (stem illo-). The particle -ce (like γε in ἔγωγε) was often attached to pronouns in Latin. In the earlier language it might be attached or not attached at pleasure, illi and illice or illīc ; illim and illimce or illine ; illud and illudce or illuc : but in course of time the usage came to be stereotyped that certain forms should have the particle and certain should not. Thus illi was limited to the dative, illīc to the adverb (i.e. locative) ; haec to the nom. sing. fem., hae to the nom. plur. fem., etc., etc.

262. Ita : 'yes!' So ita vero.

fūimus : the ū was originally long. Indeed the oldest form of the perfect was fūvi, as in Ennius' well-known line, nos sumu' Romani, qui fūvimus ante Rudini. 'So we've not been the only laggards in war.'

264. Quarum rerum : objective genitive.

265. Quod sciam. Cf. v. 173.

nescibo. See v. 785.

nescium : 'unknown.' Nescius, ignotus, notus, gnarus, dubius are found both in an active and in a passive sense, i.e. both of persons and things. Cf. Rud. 275 loca nescia ; Tac. Ann. 1. 5 gnarum id Caesari, etc. 'Whatever I do not know, I shall give you for unknown.'

266. The helplessness of a man in the barber's hands, or of a sheep while being shorn, made tondeo a common expression for 'to cheat' in Latin. Cf. our 'to fleece.'

'Now the old fellow is in the barber's hands ; see ! the scissors are at his head ; not a scrap of a towel on his shoulders to protect his coat ! Will it be a close crop, I wonder, or just a little off ? Sure, if he knows his duty, he'll dock him well.'

attinet has its original sense 'holds to,' 'holds near.'

268. strictim attondere = ἐν χρῶ κείρειν.

269. admutilabit : 'will crop thoroughly.'

probe : a slang Latin word, like our 'thrash soundly,' 'a good beating,' etc. The -e is sometimes short in Plautus, like benē, malē.

270. mauelis. See v. 516.

272. servitus : in Elis.

273. familiaris filius : 'son of the house,' like paterfamilias, materfamilias, filiusfamilias.

274. Eugepae = εὖ γε, παῖ. Greek slang was fairly familiar to the lower orders at Rome, owing to the number of Greek-speaking slaves and the trade with Greek-speaking countries.

Thalem: the paragon of wisdom (cf. Rud. 4. 3. 64). We should say, 'Solomon.' There is an assonance on Thalem and talento.

275. ad: 'compared with,' = πρὸς.

276. Lit. 'how cleverly he suited his language to a slave's condition, to the slave's part that he is playing.' 'That was neatly turned by Mr. Slave to suit his part.'

277. illi. See v. 261. Cf. infr. v. 279.

Polyplusio: 'the Goldacres, far and away the most influential and respected family in these parts.'

279. ipsus. See v. 317.

ab: 'sprung from,' 'descended from.' It is certainly wrong to understand the words as honor qui proficiscitur ab summis viris.

280. gratia: 'influence.'

281. The play on opimae (connected with πίων, πῖμελή, pinguis), (1) 'fat,' (2) 'rich,' may be rendered, 'then about his property—a pretty rich one, eh?—Rich! old Goldacre could get dripping out of it.'

282. abimus. Cf. v. 24.

284. Salua res est: 'it's all right:' the regular phrase in colloquial Latin.

285. Thensaurochrysonicochrysidēs, a ludicrous compound of θησαυρός, χρυσός, νίκη, and χρυσός: 'son of gold, outvying treasures of gold.' It would sound like 'Lord Augustus Plantagenet Vere de Vere' in English.

286. quasi with propter diuitias.

287. Philocrates is afraid that Hegio will try to get a large ransom-money from his father, and so takes a new tack.

288. Theodoromedes Polyplusius was the real name of Philocrates' father (see vv. 635 and 970 infra).

289. pertinax: tenax: pertineo: teneo.

290. quando = si quando.

291. Samiis: of earthenware. Cf. Bacch. 2. 2. 24; Cic. Mur. 36.

292. subrupiat = subripiat. The vowels in Latin were far more liable to change than those in Greek. One evidence of this is that the vowel is weakened in a compound verb in Latin, ago, exigo, but not in Greek, ἄγω, ἐξάγω. The weakest of the Latin vowels is i, and almost any vowel might be ultimately weakened to i. Thus the a of rapio was first weakened to u in subrupio, and then to i in subripio; o becomes i in ilico = i (loc. of is) loco: u becomes i, e.g. optumus became optimus; e becomes i, e.g. unde and undique.

293. eadem : 'at the same time.' Both eadem opera and eadem alone are used.

exquisiuiro. Cf. v. 194.

296. e re = 'to one's advantage;' a re = 'to one's disadvantage.'

297. 'I may tell you I have heard it all already from your slave.'

302. cum istoc = cum istius opibus. Grammarians give the name of compendiary comparison to this construction.

303. Memini quom = μὲννημαι ὅτε.

304. artat : 'narrows,' from artus. 'Look you! chance moulds and pinches us as it chooses.'

305. fueram = fui or eram. Cf. v. 17.

307. proinde ut. Plautus does not use proinde ac.

familiae. The word familia seems here to have its original meaning 'the slaves (famuli) of a household.'

309. nisi forte ipse non uis : 'if you do not mind.'

uolueram. Cf. v. 17.

310. The audience would see the suitableness of the comparison better than Tyndarus himself.

314. habueris and curauerit have very much the same meanings. Cf. Lucr. 2. 31 iucunde corpora curant and 5. 1394 iucunde corpora habebant.

315. profuerit. Cf. v. 194.

317. faterin = faterisne. Final s was pronounced very faintly in Latin, like final s in French, and tended to be dropped altogether. In early Latin poetry it was elided (i.e. not pronounced) before a word beginning with a consonant, and even in prose such forms as ain, viden got a secure footing. Words like ipse = ipsus, necesse = necessus, ille = ollus, legere and legeris, legebare and legebaris, etc. show the same loss of final s. A final consonant faintly pronounced like s was very easily dropped in a language like Latin which never accented final syllables, and not only final consonants, but final vowels, e.g. final ē in faterin = faterisne, dic = dice, hic = hice, nec = neque, etc. The English language resembles the Latin in throwing the accent as far back as possible, while French, like Greek, accents final syllables; and so we have in modern English dropped the final e that we see in Chaucer's 'Aprille,' etc.

324. uirtute : 'kindness.'

327. Est . . . ubi = ἔστιν ὅπου, 'in some cases.'

329. hoc may be acc. after animum aduerte, but it is more probably = huc. Cf. v. 480.

pariter : sc. mecum.

331. duis. See v. 947. The pres. subj. with ne in prohibitions is only used in classical Latin when the prohibition is a general one, 'do not steal,' 'thou shalt not steal,' 'steal not;' but not, as here, where the prohibition is addressed to a definite person. In such a case the perfect subj. is used, 'ne dederis,' or 'noli' with the pres. inf.

332. amittam. Cf. v. 36.

333. oras. 'Say,' the old sense of the word, for oro is derived from os, 'the mouth.' Cf. Virg. A. 10. 96 talibus orabat Iuno. Orator in old Latin 'an ambassador,' 'spokesman,' e.g. Liv. 1. 15, etc.

334. seruitutem seruit: a favourite construction with Plautus. Cf. messem mectere Trin. 1. 1. 11; sermones serere Mil. 3. 1. 105; statuam statuere Bacch. 4. 3. 1, etc.; cf. infr. 358 benefit beneficium.

illi = illic.

335. In the excitement of the discovery Tyndarus rather forgets the part he is acting and breaks out into slave-slang. [Aside] 'The dependant of my master here. [To Hegio.] Why! the thing's easy, as ready to hand as rain when it pours.' A servant in an English comedy would probably say 'as plain sailing as a ship in smooth water.'

336. inproclui = 'easy.' Plaut., Ter., Sall. = proclivis Cic. Lit. 'on a slope,' and so easily rolled down, the opposite of 'uphill work.'

338. ab re, 'to my disadvantage.' Cf. v. 296.

339. donicum. In Plautus' time donicum was used before a word beginning with a vowel, donec (a shortened form of donicum, as nihil of nihilum) before a word beginning with a consonant. The intermediate form donique we get in Lucretius, e.g. 2. 1116 donique ad extremam crescendi perfica finem | omnia perduxit rerum natura creatrix.

340. aestumatum: 'let me have him under a forfeit,' to be paid to Hegio in the event of his not coming back.

341. misero. Cf. v. 194.

344. nihil est: 'it is no good;' a common phrase in every-day Latin e.g. Hor. S. 2. 3. 6 dic aliquid dignum promissis, incipe. Nil est: | cul-pantur frustra calami, etc.

operam luseris = operam perdideris.

345. transactum reddet = transiget. Periphrases of this kind for the future are common in colloquial Latin, especially with dabo, e.g. bene coctum dabit Mil. 209; pulcre ego hanc explicatam rem dabo Pseud. 926; hoc tibi inuentum dabo Ter. Andr. 683. Similarly habeo with the perf. part. pass. answers to the perfect, e.g. Mil. 886 regionem consili repertam habere. The auxiliary verbs in the languages derived from the Latin are merely stereotyped usages of such a kind.

347. ex sententia: 'to one's mind;' a common phrase in Latin.

348. adeo: 'moreover,' 'further.'

hodie: 'at all,' used to strengthen a negative, e.g. Virg. Ecl. 3. 49 nunquam hodie effugies.

349. meo periculo: 'at my risk.'

350. ingenio: 'natural disposition,' from in and gigno. 'I'll trust the goodness of his heart.'

351. tua fide: 'at your warrant;' a common phrase.

352. I. e. 'come to its performance,' 'come to be performed,' 'come to pass.'

potest is impersonal.

353. Numquæ causast quin: 'have you any objection?' the regular phrase in colloquial Latin.

354. Optuma immo: sc. causa est cur dem.

355. Atque: 'in fact,' almost like immo vero. Cf. v. 585.

356. Quom . . . honestas. Cf. v. 151.

357. collus. In colloquial Latin we do not find the gender of substantives so strictly defined as in the classical speech. We get hic dorsus Mil. 2. 4. 44; hic papauer Trin. 410; hi corii Poen. 1. 1. 11. Nasum is always neut., guttur always masc. in Plautus.

358. gratia: 'service.' 'Do a good deed to a good man, and the service done will bring a crop of good.'

ea=eius rei. Cf. Virg. A. 2. 171 nec dubiis ea signa dedit Tritonia monstribus; ib. 4. 237 hic nostri nuntius esto.

361. quæ res bene uortat was the invariable prayer which a pious Roman would utter at the commencement of any undertaking. 'Your new master—and heaven bless the plan to me, my son, and you—wishes you to obey your old master's wishes faithfully.' The quæ res refers to what comes after, uolt te, etc., and the construction, simple enough in this passage, throws some light on another construction, which is not so patent, viz. the use of quod in entreaties; e.g. Hor. Ep. 1. 7. 94 quod te per genium dextramque deosque Penates | obsecro et obtestor, uitæ me redde priori, where the antecedent of quod is uitæ me redde priori: 'put me back in my old life, a thing which I beg,' etc.

365. uelle: for se velle. Cf. v. 194.

368. rectum: p. p. p. of rego.

371. prodes: from prosum.

372. Quom fers. Cf. v. 151.

376. Qui me quid . . . agitem . . . perferat=qui quid ego agitem perferat; a common construction in the Comedians and indeed in all Latin. Cf. Trin. 2. 2. 96 scin tu illum quo genere natus sit? infr. 557 uiden tu hunc quam inimico uoltu intuitur? etc.

The Greek construction is the same οὐκ οἶδα σ' ὅστις εἶ, etc.

380. rebitas. In old Latin there was a verb 'to go,' bæto (or bîto), of the third. conj., connected with the Greek βαίνω. We have here one of its compounds, rebitère; in v. 604 we have another, adbitère.

From adbitēre, or its other form arbitēre, was derived the noun arbiter. Cf. v. 211.

382. pater. Philocrates does not say pater tuus.

385 sqq. Philocrates and Tyndarus have a long and earnest conversation about Philocrates' departure, in which Tyndarus, as plainly as he can without arousing the suspicions of Hegio, implores Philocrates not to forget him when once he has effected his own escape, and Philocrates answers his faithful servant that he will take the earliest possible steps to procure his release from Hegio. Observe the change of the metre to suit the changed situation.

385. adhuc locorum. This partitive (like ποῦ γῆς; etc.), loci, locorum, with adverbs of time and place, is especially frequent in colloquial Latin.

390. benevolentem: a common word for 'a friend' in the Comedians. Indeed benevolens seems to be always a subst. in Plautus, just as bene-merens is always an adj. The classical form of benevolens is benevolus. Cf. insciens and inscius.

393. ne praecipias. Cf. v. 331.

tamen: last word in the sentence, as often in the Comedians, e. g. Mil. 3. 2. 52; Trin. 2. 4. 16.

394. nisi quod. Cf. v. 621.

396. mora merast: 'it is pure waste of time.' Mora est is a common phrase in every-day Latin. Cf. inf. v. 906.

397. uicem: a preposition, really the acc. of an old noun vix, 'a turn,' 'shift.' All prepositions were originally adverbs, and most adverbs were originally cases of nouns, e. g. χάριν, acc. of χάρις; ergo (e. g. illius ergo Venimus Virg. A. 6. 670) abl. of **ergum* = ἐργον; supra, infra abl. fem. of superus, inferus, etc., etc.

401. tute = tu + te, as iste = is + te.

Me . . . inter are probably a later insertion and should be omitted.

405. 'Never did I fail you in word or deed in the darkest hour.'

408. Numquam is in colloquial Latin used like our 'never' in strong denials, 'he will surely never be so stingy.' Cf. v. 657 infr. Very often hodie is added, cf. v. 348.

gratiis. Cf. v. 106.

418. Hegio is amusingly in the dark about all these repeated allusions to the faithful slave being rewarded. His suum erum seruos conlaudavit (v. 421) must have raised a laugh.

Di uostram fidem: fides, from meaning 'promise,' comes to mean 'promise of protection,' and simply 'protection.'

420. corde: 'from the heart,' 'heartily.'

421. centensumam: n before s is very often dropped in Latin, e. g.

formosus is in old Latin formonsus, centesimus is centensumus, etc. Mostellaria, the name of Plautus' comedy, should be Monstellaria, for it comes from monstrum, and means literally 'the play about the spectre;' or, as the title would probably be in English, 'The Haunted House,' (alluding to the story told by Tranio to Theopropides that his house was haunted). For quotiens we often get the spelling quoties, and on inscriptions we have COSOL, CESOR, etc. We can easily account for this dropping of n before s by the help of a remark of Cic. (Or 48. 159), that a vowel before us was pronounced long. This dwelling on the sound of the vowel obscured the sound of the nasal.

423. occasio . . . cumulare = occasio cumulandi; a frequent construction in colloquial Latin. Cf. Pers. 725, Curc. 59, Poen. 5. 4. 42.

425. opera: 'in deed.' Opera experiri is a common expression, e. g. Trin. 826.

429. operis: the plural of abstract nouns is often found in Plautus, e. g. opulentiae Trin. 2. 4. 89; industriæ Most. 2. 1. 1; perfidiae infr. 522.

433. pigneri = pignori. Neuter nouns in -us wavered between the older declension in -oris, and the later form in -eris (cf. vorto and verto). We have pignus -oris, tempus -oris, etc., but foedus -eris, scelus -eris, etc. But we occasionally find pignus -eris, as here, and the locative case of tempus survives in the adverb temperi (v. 183 supr.); cf. tempestas, intempestus, etc.

434. quom extemplo = ἐπεὶ τάχιστα, is frequent in Plautus (cf. v. 786 infr.), though it is not used by Terence.

439. fidele = fideliter, like facile = faciliter, a very rare word.

441. hunc: i. e. Hegio, 'and do not lose this one you have found.'

444. Hoc age. Cf. v. 930 infr.

446. Satin habes: 'are you content?' the regular phrase.

447. ornatus: 'provided, i. e. accompanied by Philopolemus. Orno really means 'to equip,' 'to provide' in Latin, not 'to adorn.'

448. Numquid aliut? Cf. v. 191.

449. uiaticum: 'money for the road.'

trapezita: a Greek word. The native Latin word for a banker is argentarius. Roman bankers did very much the same business as English bankers. A Roman would deposit his money with an argentarius, and when he wanted money for any purpose would either go in person or send a cheque (perscriptio) for the amount required.

450. Eadem opera. Cf. v. 293.

syngraphum. It must be remembered that Aetolia and Elis were at war. We have another allusion to the Greek use of passports in Aristophanes Av. 1213 σφραγιδ' ἔχεις παρὰ τῶν πελαργῶν;—τί τὸ κακόν;—

οὐκ ἔλαβες;—ὑγιαίνεις μὲν;—οὐδὲ σύμβολον ἐπέβαλεν ὀρνίθαρχος οὐδεὶς σοι παρῶν;

452. Bene ambulato: a common way of taking leave, 'a pleasant journey to you!' the German glückliche Reise! the French bon voyage!

456. sultis. Cf. v. 110.

457. Ecferat: the full form of the preposition, 'out of,' was ex in Latin as it was ἐξ in Greek. In composition with a verb beginning with a consonant it became ec- in Latin, ἐκ- in Greek, e.g. ecfero, ἐκφέρω. In the classical period of Latin the c- of ec- was assimilated to the initial consonant of the verb, effero.

459. Eadem. Cf. v. 293.

460. praeuorti: a common word in the Comedians; 'I'll despatch this business first.' Cf. Merc. 2. 3. 41 mandatis rebus praeuorti uolo; Cist. 5. 8 praeuorti hoc certumst rebus aliis omnibus. The thing 'despatched' is in the dat. or (with pronouns) the acc., e.g. ei rei, id; the things postponed are also in the dative, e.g. ceteris rebus.

ACT III. SCENE 1.

Ergasilus returns in depressed spirits from the market-place, where he has been prowling about in search of a better invitation to dinner than Hegio's, and rails at the changed times and the inhospitable spirit of the younger generation.

461. edit. See v. 947.

464. die: for diei. See v. 800.

'Oh! if I could, I would tear this day's eyes out; such a load of stinginess to me has it laid on every living soul. A more hungry day, more crammed with starvation, I never, never saw. A day when every undertaking comes to a standstill! It is Fast-holiday for my inside and no mistake.'

466. ieiuniosus is a Plautine coinage, 'hungry.'

ecfertum. Cf. Anl. 1. 2. 6 ita inaniis sunt oppletae atque araneis.

467. quoi, sc. diei. He transfers to the day all his own experiences.

468. resident ... ferias: a common expression, e.g. feriae residentur Cic. Leg. 2. 22. 55; cf. Tusc. Disp. 3. 12; Liv. 2. 29.

469. Illicet: from √i (as in ire) and licet (cf. scilicet, videlicet) takes here the construction of ire licet, viz. licet arti ire in crucem. So scilicet in Lucr. e.g. 2. 469 scilicet esse globosa tamen, and videlicet in 1. 210 esse videlicet in terris primordia rerum.

470. ridiculos: a substantive (cf. v. 477 infr.). They are the derisores of v. 71.

471. Lacones: because they had wooden benches to lie on: cf. Cic. pro Murena 35, 74 Lacedaemonii ... cotidianis epulis in robre accumbunt.

imi supselli: 'at the far end of the table.' Another reading is uni (= unius), but it is difficult to see what this would mean. It is explained that parasites and inferiors were not allowed to sit on the guests' couches (lecti) at dinner, but only on benches (subsellia) placed beside the couches. If this be referred to in uni, we might translate it 'who get nothing but the benches.'

472. 'Those Sir Knock-me-downs, with nothing but their talk to live by.' He talks of the diners-out as if they belonged to a noble family, the Plagipatidae (like the Collicrepidae, 'collar rattlers' of Trin. 4. 3. 14).

473. reddant, i. e. 'return the invitation.'

474. opsōno = ὀψωνῶ, is a common word in the Comedians for 'buying victuals,' 'catering,' 'marketing.'

prouincia: in Plautus' time meant simply any charge or duty entrusted to a magistrate. Cf. Mil. 1159. The derivation of the word is uncertain.

476. in tribu: i. e. at the Comitia Tributa in its legal capacity as a court.

477. terunci: 'a farthing.' The teruncius was  $\frac{1}{4}$  as, 3 unciae.

478. dudum: 'a short time ago' (common in the Comedians and Cicero), viz. after the conversation with Hegio at the end of Act 1.

479. atque: 'and all at once;' a common expression in every-day Latin. 'At the word they're dumb.' Cf. Most. 1050 quom eum conuocauit, atque illi me ex senatu segregant.

480. hoc = huc. Hoc was the original form both of the sing. neut. and of the adverb 'hither' (which was nothing but the acc. sing. neut.). In the classical period it became the usage to confine hoc to the pronoun, huc to the adverb. Still Virg. A. 8. 423 has hoc tunc ignipotens caelo descendit ab alto. 'Who says "to my house?"' 'Who makes an offer?'

481. me rident: 'laugh at my joke.'

abnuont: 'they shake their heads.' Abnuo is the regular word in Latin to indicate refusal; caput quatit or quasso indicates sorrow or anger, e.g. iamque caput quassans grandis suspirat arator, Lucr. 2. 1164.

482. unum. The numeral takes the place of the indefinite article in colloquial Latin, but never quite got this footing in the classical language, although in the Romance languages of course it is the regular indefinite, as ille or hic became the regular definite article.

483. menstrualis epulas: 'free board for a month.'

apiscier = apisci, in classical Latin adipisci.

484. de conpecto = de compacto, but the right spelling is compectus from compeciscor, and compactus from compingo.

486. dentis ut restringerent: 'by showing their teeth.' Cf. stringere

III. 1. 27—3. 1. NOTES. LINES 472–516.

gladium. He means, 'They did not accord me the faintest possible smile.'

487. postquam uideo. Cf. v. 24.

488. rest = res est. The pronunciation of est was often slurred over in Latin, as that of is in English, and the verb joined to the preceding word, e.g. rest (i.e. res'st), amicust (i.e. amicus'st), as in English 'it's,' 'there's,' etc.

489. I.e. as the oil-sellers in the Velabrum, the market for delicacies of the table at Rome, combined to keep up the price of salad-oil.

491. obambulabant: 'were walking about.'

492. barbarica, i. e. Romana. Plautus is fond of making his characters (who of course were Greeks) speak of the Romans as barbari (Βάρβαροι). Cf. infr. 884 quid tu per barbaricas urbis iuras? Mil. 212 nam os columnatum poetæ esse indaudiui barbaro, | quoi bini custodes semper totis horis occubant (referring to Naevius). In the prologue to the Trinummus we have, v. 20, Philemo scripsit, Plautus vortit barbare.

The Roman law referred to is the law of the Twelve Tables prohibiting all societates that would tend to the prejudice of the state.

494. Is = iis. Cf. gratis = gratiis.

495. egero. Cf. v. 194.

497. decolabit, from colum, 'a sieve,' lit. 'trickle through a sieve.' 'If this last hope ooze away.'

ACT III. SCENE 2.

Hegio comes in radiant along with Aristophontes, another noble captive from Elis, and sings a song in lively, cheerful measure, describing his successful despatch of the pretended 'Tyndarus' and the congratulations that are showered on him.

499. bono publico: abl. of attendant circumstances, 'to the public weal.' Cf. Liv. 2. 1. 3 pessimo publico, 'to the detriment of the state.'

500. ubi quisque uident: a plural verb with quisque is common in colloquial Latin. Epid. 212 filios suos quisque visunt, etc.

504. eminebam: 'emerged.'

511. atque. Cf. v. 481.

514. exoluiet = exsolvi.

ACT III. SCENE 3.

Tyndarus, knowing that Aristophontes will recognise him and discover the plot to Hegio is in despair. He tries to hide in a corner of the stage.

516. fuisse: 'to have been,' i. e. to be no more, like Virgil's fuimus Troes. Cf. v. 240.

nimio. Cf. v. 102.

mauelim = malim. The Latin v, like the (similarly pronounced) Greek digamma, and English w, was often absorbed by a neighbouring vowel, e.g. dītor = divitior, jūnior = juvenior, rūrsus = reversus, brūma = **brevima*, Jūpiter = **Jov-pater*, nūndinae = **novemdinæ*, nūper = **noviper*, nūntius = **noventius*, denuo = de novo.

517. spernunt has here its original sense of 'separate,' 'remove,' as in Mil. 1232 ille illas spernit, segregat ab se omnis extra te unam.

519. adeo, 'moreover,' 'further.'

aspellat: from aspellere (abs-pello), 'drive away;' a verb in common use in Plautus and Terence.

521. obuiamst would be in Cicero in promptu est.

522. deprecatio, 'prayer for pardon.'

perfidii. Cf. v. 429.

526. malam with pestem.

528. Philocrati may be gen. (cf. Herculi Most. 4. 2. 68; Charmidi Trin. 744), or dat. (cf. v. 509 supr.).

529. si = ctsi. Ne Salus quidem servare me potest was a proverbial saying at Rome. Cf. Most. 2. 1. 4.

copia: 'chance.'

530. nisi si = nisi, found in all periods of Latin.

531. malum: an interjection, 'plague take it!'—frequent in colloquial Latin.

ACT III. SCENE 4.

Tyndarus tries to persuade Hegio that Aristophontes is mad, and should not be listened to; but his plot is finally detected by Hegio, and he is condemned to severe labour in the stone quarries.

533. Tyndarus has gone to the extreme corner of the stage to escape detection if possible.

537. perderent for perdidissent, like Virgil's obruerent Rutuli telis.

periisti in its literal sense 'to disappear from,' 'go away from,' (as in Rud. 1111 quibuscum parua Athenis periit) with allusion to its common use as passive of perdo, 'to be destroyed.' Perhaps ἡρρησας (from ἔρρω) stood in the Greek original, 'you went fatally.'

'If only Death had taken you off before you took yourself off from Elis.'

541. Aristophontes thinks Tyndarus' affected ignorance of him is the 'uppishness' of a slave towards a gentleman in distress. Tyndarus' face all through this scene must have been a study; first, his expression of terror when Hegio and Aristophontes come towards the corner where he is skulking; then his attempts to conceal it from Aristophontes; then the sudden gleam of hope that would lighten it when the idea occurs to him to persuade Hegio that Aristophontes is a lunatic. Masks did not come into use on the Roman stage till after the time of Terence, and certainly the fun of a great many of Plautus' scenes would be lost if the facial expression of the actor were not seen.

548. istic. See v. 761. Cf. illic 550.

auris inmittas tuas: the acc. governed by the in- of inmittas, as Lucr. 1. 117 an pecudes alias diuinitus insinuet se.

550. qui sputatur morbus: lit. 'the malady which is spat on,' i.e. 'the malady cured by spitting on the patient' (cf. v. 554), 'that ailment with the spitting cure.' The malady referred to was probably melancholia; cf. Galen 19. p. 706. Sputo is the frequentative of spuo. But perhaps the right reading is qui insputatur morbus.

551. Ultro istum a me: sc. arcete, prohibeto. 'Keep him off! keep him off!' Ultro has here its literal sense, as in ultro citroque, 'to the further side,' just as citro = 'to this side,' intro = 'to the inside.' From meaning 'to the further side,' it came to mean 'furthermore,' 'besides,' e.g. Virg. A. 2. 145 his lacrimis uitam damus et miserescimus ultro; and gradually acquired the sense of 'besides what one required to do,' 'of one's own accord.'

Ain = aisne. See v. 317.

553. ut qui. The adverb qui, 'how,' came to be used in colloquial Latin as a mere particle with certain conjunctions and adverbs (cf. its use with 'as' in vulgar English 'as how'), e.g. hercle qui, edepol qui, utqui, nequi (v. 738 infr.), atqui. Of these compounds only the last established itself in the classical language.

556. etiam: 'still.'

557. intuitur: from intuor, a byform of intueor Most. 3. 2. 150. So contui ib. 3. 2. 152; obtuere ib. 1. 1. 66; 3. 2. 151.

concedi optumumst: 'you had better retire.'

560. siet. See v. 193.

561. Hau uidi magis: 'a likely story!' an ironical expression of disbelief, common in colloquial Latin. Cf. Amph. 2. 2. 47, the full phrase would be hau uidi qui magis sodalis meus sit.

562. Alcmaeus. It is more probable that the form Plautus would use is Alcumaeus or Alcumæus; for the Romans of his time seem to have been unable to pronounce such combinations of consonants in Greek words without inserting a vowel. Ἀσκληπίος became Aesculapius, τέχναι techninae, μνᾶ mina, δραχμή drachuma. In still earlier times the attempts to Latinise Greek names were often ludicrously wide of the mark, Polluces for Πολυδεύκης, Catamitus for Γανυμήδης, Proserpina for Περσεφόνη, etc.

In Plautus' own time Greek names were learnt, not as in earlier times from intercourse with Greek merchants, etc., but from Greek books, and so the Latin forms he uses in his plays correspond very nearly with the Greek, the most patent differences being this insertion of a vowel to facilitate the pronunciation of a guttural combined with λ, μ, ν (when such a combination followed a short vowel), and the transliteration of θ, φ, χ by t, p, c, of υ by u, and of ζ by ss (for the letters th, ph, ch, y, z did not come into use till Cicero's time to express θ, φ, χ, υ, ζ.) A word like κύκνος would be in Plautus' time Latinised in the form cucinus, e.g. Men. 854 barbatum tremulum Tithonum, qui cluet Cucino patre. In Cicero's time it would be cygnus, the cn of the Greek being found too hard for a Roman mouth to pronounce and so changed into gn.

Alcmaeus atque Orestes et Lycurgus: a famous trio of madmen, cf. Anacr. 31

θέλω, θέλω μανῆναι | ἐμαίνετ' Ἀλκμαίων τε
χῶ λευκόπους Ὀρέστης, | τὰς μητέρας κτανόντες.

Lycurgus is the Thracian king of that name who was driven mad by Dionysus.

563. Vna opera: 'as much.' Both una and una opera are found in this sense in every-day Latin; cf. eadem and cadem opera (see v. 293). We get the full phrase, of which una opera is a contraction, in Pseud. 1. 3. 84 pol qua opera credam tibi, Una opera adligem fugitiuam canem agnitis lactibus.

furcifer: 'scoundrel.' The furca was a heavy forked piece of wood placed as a punishment on a slave's neck, his hands being tied to the two ends.

567. uero = re vera.

569. uera, acc. pl. neut.

uanitudine = fallacia. Vanus often = fallax, e.g. Virg. A. 11. 715 vane Ligus; 2. 80 vanum etiam mendacemque improba finget.

573. Alidem = in Alidem.

574. Quem patrem, qui seruos est: 'father! of a man who is a slave?'—for the slave had no parentage in the eyes of the Roman law.

575. fuisti. Cf. v. 516.

577. 'Do you call yourself free man?—No! I call myself Philocrates, not Freeman.' We might reproduce the pun in this way in English; but it must of course be noticed that Liber is the God Bacchus.

579. iudos facere: aliquem, as here, Aul. 2. 2. 75, etc., or alicui as Most. 427, etc., 'make game of.'

581. qui: the adverb.

583. bonis: 'respectable people,' as opposed to the needy classes (miseri).

584. insistas: 'set about.'

585. aliquid pugnae dedit = aliquid pugnavit, 'has made a hit or two.' Pugnam dare is slang Latin for 'to trick,' 'play a piece of mischief.' Cf. Ter. Eun. 899 dabit hic pugnam aliquam denuo.

586. redimere se ait. Cf. v. 194.

ne utiquam: always to be scanned in Plautus with the first syllable short, the e being elided and not forming a diphthong with the u.

592. Enim is often found at the beginning of the sentence in the Comedians, and in the sense that was in classical Latin confined to the compound enimvero, 'indeed,' 'of a truth.' Cf. Trin. 5. 2. 10 enim me nominat; Mil. 2. 5. 19, PA. quid metuis? SE. enim ne nosmet perderimus uspiam. It has the same sense in Virg. A. 8. 84 quam pius Aeneas tibi enim, tibi, maxima Iuno, | mactat, sacra ferens; G. 2. 508 hunc plausus hiantem | per cuneos geminatus enim plebisque patrumque | corripuit.

We get quia enim, ut enim, ne enim, etc. in colloquial Latin, e.g. infr. v. 884 quia enim item asperae | sunt; Mil. 834 quia enim obsorbui. Indeed enim seems never to have the sense of 'for,' 'because' in Plautus, and only seldom in Terence.

audin quid ait. See v. 669.

593. insectabit. Cf. v. 935.

597. The tunica molesta is alluded to here, a form of punishment which consisted in smearing the criminal with pitch, and setting fire to it. Cf. Juv. 1. 155 taeda lucebis in illa, | qua stantes ardent, qui fixo gutture fumant.

598. lārŭāe. In Plautus' time this word was of three syllables. Laruatus = 'possessed by evil spirits,' 'mad,' e.g. Men. 5. 4 num laruatust aut cerritus?

600. mastigiae, a Greek word, (nom. μαστιγίας), from μάστιξ, 'a scourge.' The Latin equivalent is verbero.

601. concinnat: colloquial Latin for reddit. Cf. v. 818 qui concinnant liberis orbas ouis.

602. te uolo is the regular phrase in colloquial Latin for 'I wish to speak with you.' 'A word with you alone!'

604. adbites. See v. 380.

605. creduis. See v. 947.

611. abnutas: the frequentative of abnuo. Plautus is very fond of frequentative verbs.

614. quoi neque pes, etc.: a Latin proverb like our 'what no one can make head or tail of.' Cf. Cic. Fam. 7. 31 res ita contractae ut nec caput nec pedes; Asin. 3. 3. 139 nec pes nec caput sermonum apparet.

615. 'Look at him, and you see Ajax Furens, all but the get-up.'

Ornamenta : the regular word for a stage-dress, e.g. Pers. 1. 3. 79 πόθεν ornamenta?—Abs chorago sumito; Trin. 4. 2. 16, etc.

617. inter sacrum saxumque : a proverb for a perilous situation, like that of an animal about to be sacrificed, 'between the altar and the flint knife of the priest.' (Cf. Liv. 1. 24. 9 porcum saxo silice percussit.) 'The knife is at my throat.'

619. audibis. See v. 785.

620. expurgare. We get both the classical forms purgo, iurgo, etc. and the older forms purigo, iurigo in Plautus.

624. dudum. Cf. v. 478.

625. nullam causam dico quin. Cf. v. 353.

626. deliquio siet, lit. 'it turn to the loss of.' Or else deliquio may be nom. of a deliquio -onis, which would stand to deliquium in the same relation as obsidio to obsidium, contagio to contagium, etc. We have delicuius in the sense of 'lost,' 'missing,' in Cas. 2. 2. 33 quando tibi nil domi delicuom est.

631. rusum=rursum : 'tit for tat!' The form in -us, rursus, was hardly in use in Plautus' time. He uses both prorsus and prorsum, advorsus and advorsum, but only sursum, seorsum, sorsum, quorsum, exadvorsum, aliovorsum, etc. Of course rursum=reversum, 'towards turning back,' 'in a backward direction,' 'back again,' 'again.'

635. probe : 'finely.' See v. 269.

636. i diirectum : lit. 'go to hang yourself up (erectum) in spread-eagle fashion (di-).' The word was perhaps pronounced by Plautus as a trisyllable, dīērectum.

637. supsaltas : 'leaping up again and again.' 'throbbing.' Cf. Aul. 4. 3. 3 continuo meum cor coepit artem facere ludicram, Atque in pectus emicare.

641. deruncinatus : lit. 'planed down,' from runcīna, 'a plane.' Cf. deascio Plaut.

deartuatus : lit. 'torn limb from limb,' from artus, 'a limb.'

643. uide sis : 'are you sure?' lit. 'see, if you please' (si vis), sc. that you are speaking correctly. This is a common phrase in colloquial Latin.

644. magis . . . certius : common enough in colloquial Latin, e.g. Mil. 613 magis non potest esse aliud ad rem utibilius, and of course 'more surer' is not unknown, in vulgar English.

647 sq. We get an idea from these two lines of the 'get-up' of a young gallant on the Roman stage. 'Thin features, sharp nose, complexion fair, eyes black, hair reddish, in locks, and curled here and there.'

649. Vt . . . processerim depends on conuenit, which Hegio uses in the sense of 'the description agrees or tallies,' but which Tyndarus takes in the sense 'it is agreed or determined.'

in medium: 'out' from his hiding-place (vv. 533 sqq.).

655. nuculeus = nucleus. Cf. periculum and periculum, etc.

656. susum uorsum: 'upwards.' Susum or sursum = subuorsum or subversum, 'to the from-under turning,' 'in the upward direction,' so that in this phrase the uorsum occurs twice; rusum or rursum = reversum, 'to the back turning,' 'backwards;'; deorsum = deuorsum, 'to the down-from turning,' 'downwards.' (Sursum deorsum = 'topsy turvy,' 'upside down,' e.g. Ter. Eun. 2. 2. 47.)

os subleuere offuciis. The trick of smearing the face of a man, drunk or asleep (cf. Virg. Ecl. 6. 22), supplies a frequent metaphor for deception or trickery of any kind. Examples of this and similar metaphors will be found in Excursus xvi. of Ramsay's edition of the Mostellaria.

657. numquam. Cf. v. 408.

Colaphe, from κόλαφος, 'a box on the ear.'

Cordalio should perhaps be Cordulio, from κορδύλη, 'a cudgel,' or Condalio, from condalium, a slave's ring, Trin. 1014.

Corax, κόραξ, 'the knocker on a door.'

'Here! Slap! Cuff! Knocker! come out and bring the straps.—Are we to go for wood?' Hegio, of course, means the lora to be used for flogging Tyndarus.

660. Quid hoc est negoti? The partitive gen. after neuter pronouns is common in old Latin, e.g. Aul. 1. 2. 39 quid rerum geram? Mil. 4. 8. 1 quid modi flendo facies? Amph. 2. 1. 26 quid hoc est hominis?

The Germans would say not 'what is this of a business?' but 'what is this for a business?' was ist dies für eine Arbeit?

661. sartor = sarritor, 'hoer,' 'weeder.' 'You prime sower and hoer and reaper of the mischief.—Could you not manage to slip in "harrower"?' A farmer always harrows before he hoes.'

662. audebas. Cf. v. 238.

664. Atāt, an exclamation of surprise. 'Hallo!'

667. sultis. Cf. v. 110.

669. quam ob rem suscenses: the ind. is used in indirect questions in old Latin as it is in Greek. An early language always shows the form of construction that is called Parataxis, viz. making two clauses stand side by side, instead of subordinating the one to the other. The two clauses quid negotist and quam ob rem suscenses mihi stand unconnected in old Latin; classical Latin subordinates the latter to the former, and writes the latter quam ob rem suscenses mihi. Cf. Most. 876 scio quo properas; Mil. 612 uolo scire, eodem consilio . . . num geremus rem; Aul. 773 nunc quid uis, id uolo noscere, etc., etc.

670. quod=quoad.

672. deartuauisti. Cf. v. 641 supr.

683. ast, an old Latin particle='and if,' 'but if.' It is found in old laws: e.g. Lex Serv. Tullii SEI PARENTEM PVER VERBERIT, AST OLE PLORASSIT, PVER DEIVEIS PARENTOM SACER ESTO, i.e. si parentem puer verberet, si autem ille ploraverit, puer divis parentum sacer esto. It is used now and then by Cicero in his Letters, and by Virgil, but by both as a synonym of at, with which no doubt ast is etymologically connected. It seems to be 'at-s-te,' just as absque is 'ab-s-que.' But the word appears in Plautus' time to have been confined to legal and ceremonial language, and the reading here is probably wrong.

687. periculo . . . ponere, like pigneri ponere v. 433.

688. These moral sentiments would probably 'bring down the house.' Plautus strikes a higher note in the Captivi than in any other play, and in the Epilogue (vv. 1029 sqq.) he takes credit to himself for having avoided the low buffoonery of his other comedies.

689. Ācherunti, a locative case, like Karthagini Poen. 5. 2. 78; Sicyoni Cist. 1. 3. 8. Cf. v. 998 infr.

clueas. In old Latin there was a verb clueo, like the Greek κλύω in its special sense of 'to be spoken of,' e.g. Trin. 2. 2. 33 uictor uictorum cluet; Lucr. 1. 120 coronam, | per gentes Italas hominum quae clara clueret. 'Go, get your glorious name then in Acheron.'

gloria is abl. of manner.

690. per=propter.

interit, 'is ruined or undone;' a common word in the Comedians.

691. exemplis pessumis: a common phrase in every-day Latin. Cf. Most. 1. 3. 35 di me pessumis exemplis interficiant.

692. morti=ad mortem. Cp. Virg. A. 2. 85 demisere neci, etc.

694. interduo. See v. 947.

696. adfore, sc. eum.

700. aeque melius: a confusion between melius alone and aeque bene, very common in colloquial Latin, e.g. infr. 828 qui homine hominum adaeque nemo uiuit fortunatior; Mil. 552 nam ex uno puteo similior nunquam potis | aqua aequae sumi.

701. dedisse operam malam: 'have done a bad turn to;' often occurs in colloquial Latin.

703. Votuin=vetuine. The Romans liked the sound of o after v, and so, when preceded by v, this vowel was retained in words where it had previously existed (cf. v. 8), and often substituted for other vowels, as for e in voto, vorto, volo (inf. velle), for a in vocivus (= vacuus), voco (= vaco), etc., just as in English a takes the sound of o after w in war, water, etc. (Latin v had of course the sound of English w.)

704. Quor. See v. 862.

705. 'Because the truth would have hurt the person I wished to serve.'

706. Optumest and bene est are stock expressions: 'all is well; I desire nothing more.'

708. custodem addiderat: addo is the verb regularly used in this phrase in Latin. Cf. Virg. A. 6. 90 nec Teucris addita Iuno | usquam aberit. 'Made me his attendant.'

710. sorsum=se (equivalent of sine) + uorsum or uersum, 'to the away turning,' 'in the contrary direction,' 'otherwise.' The compound of sub and versum is sursum. Cf. v. 656.

712. faxet: faxit is probably the true reading.

713. Emitteresne . . . manu: 'would you manumit?' Emittere manu is the regular phrase in the Comedians.

714. Essetne=nonne esset? Nonne is seldom found in Plautus.—The true relation of the three particles -ne, nonne, num, to each other is this: -ne is the particle of interrogation. In questions that expected a positive answer non was generally inserted, just as we insert 'not' in English, 'is not this the case?' hocne non ita se habet? or nonne hoc ita se habet? and in course of time the use of non with ne became the stereotyped form for such questions. Num is simply the adverb of time 'now,' which in classical Latin only appears in the form strengthened by the particle -ce, viz. nunc (= numce), but which is seen in a shorter form in such phrases as nudius tertius, etc.=num dies tertius, 'it is now the third day since.' It stands to nunc in the same relation as the Greek enclitic νυν to the adverb νῦν. In questions that expected a negative answer num or nunc was generally inserted, just as we insert 'now' in English, 'now is this the case?' num hoc ita se habet? and so its use in such questions became the rule in classical Latin.

717. postulauisti=ἤξιώςας.

718. nuperum. Nuperus is an ante-classical word, but it survives in the adverb nuper=nuper-um (cf. nihil=nihilum), being, of course, derived from novus, like nūntius=**noventius*, Jūpiter=**Jov-pater*, etc.

nouicium= 'a newly purchased slave;' the regular word.

719. Te perdocere=perdocere. Cf. v. 739.

723. latomias lapidarias. The Greek and Latin words stand curiously side by side here. In fact the whole of Roman comedy has a hybrid appearance, half Greek and half Latin. The plays are translations from the Greek, and the scene is laid in Greece; the actors wore the Greek pallium, not the Roman toga; and Greek words occur in every dozen lines.

725. Cotidiano=quotidie, very rare.

sesquiopus: 'half as much work again.'

726. Sescentoplago nomen indetur tibi: 'you'll be nicknamed. "Forty stripes save one."' For the construction see v. 69.

728. Curabitur: 'we'll look after him; never fear.' Hegio pretends to understand perduis in the sense of 'lose.'

729. neruo: 'prison' (lit. 'thong'), a common word in Plautus and Terence.

custodibitur. Cf. v. 785.

730. Interdius, an adverb = interdiu. Cf. v. 835.

731. apsoluam: 'let him off.'

738. Nequi. Cf. v. 553. 'That he get as good allowance as the man who gets the heaviest.'

740. tuo stat periculo: lit. 'stands at the price of, i. e. costs, a risk to you.'

743. minitas. Cf. v. 935.

751. recta: adverb = 'straight,' 'directly.'

754. apsque in old Latin is always accompanied by esset, foret, etc., and has the sense of 'but for,' = si sine, e.g. Trin. 832 nam absque foret te, sat scio in alto | distraxissent disque tulissent satellites tui me miserum foede. The word is not used by classical writers, but reappears in silver Latin with the sense of 'without,' = sine. It is derived from abs, a form of ab, and the same particle que as appears in quisque, quandoque, etc., in the sense of the English 'ever,' and to which the Homeric τε in ὅς τε, οἷά τε πολλά, etc. corresponds.

757. Satis sum semel deceptus = satis est me semel deceptum esse.

760. surpuit = surripuit. Even Horace uses the contracted form of this verb, e.g. Od. 4. 13. 20 quae me surpuerat mihi.

762. potitus hostiumst. Cf. v. 92.

quod hoc est scelus: 'what a piece of ill luck is this!' Scelus and scelestus seem often to have this sense of misfortune arising from guilt, besides their usual sense of guilt itself. Cf. Virg. A. 7. 307 quod scelus aut Lapithas tantum aut Calydonia merentem?

763. in orbitatem: 'in order to be childless,' 'all to be left childless in the end.'

764. neminis: neither neminis nor nemine are used by classical authors, nullius and nullo taking their place.

766. Exauspicau and Redauspicandum are Plantine coinages, like redambulo v. 900; re-spondeo 898. We should expect deponent forms. (Cf. v. 935.)

ACT IV. SCENE 1.

Ergasilus comes from the harbour, where he has just met Philocrates returned from Elis with Philopolemus, and hastens to give the joyful tidings to Hegio.

769. opiparus = 'sumptuous,' an ante-classical word.

770. festiuitatem: 'feasting.'

771. Pompam: viz. of message-boys bringing the many articles ordered for the dinner that must commemorate the occasion. 'Train of victuals.'

774. amoenus dies. Ergasilus' opinion of the day has changed since his violent abuse of it in vv. 464–7 Nam hercle ego huic die, si liceat, oculos ecfodiam lubens, etc.

775. sine sacris hereditatem: a Roman proverb for 'a rose without a thorn.' Roman estates were so often encumbered with religious dues, (just as a Roman Catholic estate might be now-a-days) that an estate not so encumbered was a singularly lucky windfall. Cf. Trin. 2. 4. 83 cena hac annonast sine sacris hereditas.

aptus: from apiscor.

ecfertissumam: from effertus, p. p. p. of effercio, or effarcio, 'to stuff,' 'fill out.'

778. certa res est = certum est, freq.

779. Coniciam in collum pallium: i.e. to run the easier. Only slaves would run in the street. Cf. Poen. 3. 1. 19 liberos homines per urbem modico magis par est gradu | ire: seruoli esse dico, festinantem currere. Terence Eun. prol. 36 talks of the currens seruus as one of the stock parts of Roman comedy, currentes seruos scribere | bonas matronas facere, meretrices malas, | parasitum edacem, gloriosum militem.

785. scibitur = sciatur. In the classical period the true future in -bo was only used with verbs of the first and second conjugation, while the subjunctive form was used instead of the future in those of the third and fourth, e.g. capiam, sciam. But this rule was not observed at Plautus' time, so we have the fut. of the 4th conjugation in -bo in his plays. We even find a third conjugation future in -bo, viz. reddibo in Men. 5. 7. 49. but this is due to the form of the future of the simple verb, dabo.

786. Quom extemplo. Cf. v. 434 supr.

790. age hanc rem = hoc age. Cf. v. 930.

791. interminor: 'forbids with threats.'

793. ore sistet: 'will be laid flat on his face;' sisto is here nenter.

798. quisque = quis + que, a particle that answers to our English

'ever' = 'whoever.' (See v. 754.) From this its original meaning (as here) it came to mean 'everyone,' 'each.' The suffix -cunque took the place of -que, cf. quandoque and quandocunque; quisque and quicunque. The word cumque in Hor. Od. 1. 31. 15 mihi cumque salve | rite vocanti is probably 'whenever,' being compounded of quum and this particle que.

Dentilegos: a Plautine coinage, i. e. they will have to gather up their teeth from the ground. 'Tooth-pickers.'

800. die = diei. Julius Caesar, in his book on Latin Grammar, entitled 'De Analogia,' held this to be the correct form. The -e is a contraction of -ei, as we have -u for -ui in second supine forms (pulcher visui = pulcher visui), or in curru, Virg. A. 1. 156 flectit equos curruque volans dat lora secundo. Similarly rei is always one syllable in Plautus. Cf. Lucr. 3. 918 aut aliae cuius desiderium insideat rei.

805. Mira sunt ni, or mirum est ni, like the later nimirum (which is not found in Plautus), has an affirmative sense, 'I should be surprised if a thing were not the case, e.g. Trin. 861 mira sunt | ni illic homost aut dormitator aut sector zonarius. On the other hand, mirum quin has a negative sense, 'it's a wonder, a pity, that a thing is not the case,' e.g. Trin. 476 mirum quin tu illo tecum divitias feras, 'it's a pity you cannot take your wealth with you to the after-world.' Mirum quin always has a suggestion of irony:

'I'll be sworn he's got some assurance put into his inside.'

806. cibo: abl. of instr.

807. pistores scrofpasci: 'millers who keep swine.' Cf. v. 160. Swine would be rather useful animals to keep at a mill to eat up the chaff.

furfuri: furfur in the sing. means 'husk,' 'chaff;' in the plur. (v. 810), 'bran.' See v. 914. The final vowel of the abl. sing. was originally long.

808. odore = prae odore. Cf. Most. 828 aetate non quis optuerier: Virg. A. 11. 568 neque ipse manus feritate dedisset.

809. quousquam: quisquam is regularly used in negative sentences. We find it, however, sometimes in conditional sentences, as here, and Catullus 102. 1 Si quicquam tacito commissum est fido ab amico.

811. 'Right royal, imperious proclamations! He's had a dinner; yes! he's stowed away some assurance inside.'

813. praehibent = praebeant. So dehibeo Trin. 426 for debeo. Cf. prendo and prehendo; vemens and vehemens; nil and nihil; mi and mihi, etc.

814. crucianti, i. e. torturing the rider by its uneasy motion, 'jolt-ing.'

815. odos. The stem of this and similar words ends in s, odos-, but this became odor- in the oblique cases, because s between two vowels in Latin always becomes r, and in course of time the r found its way into the nom. too. The s remained longest in monosyllables, e. g. flos, mos, and in old poetry it is retained for the sake of metre in words that make an iambus, e. g. cōlōs, ōdōs, vāpōs (Lucr. 6. 953).

subbasilicanos: 'loungers in the arcade.' Cf. Curc. 4. I. II. The first basilica, 'portico,' 'arcade,' (from the Greek βασιλική στοά, where the ἄρχων βασιλεύς transacted business), that we know of at Rome was built by Cato the Censor, in 184 B.C., the year of Plautus' death, and called the Basilica Porcia. Hence some editors have, but without reason, denied the genuineness of this line.

816. surpiculis: 'reed baskets.'

819. dupla: pecunia. 'At double the right price.'

danunt: the letter n is often used to form the present tense in Greek and Latin as well as in other Indoeuropean languages, e. g. δέικ-νυμι, μάρναμαι, φθάνω, ἰκνέομαι, λανθάνω, lino, sino, etc. This verb dano is a formation of the same kind, which, however, became obsolete in the classical period. Cf. praestino v. 848.

820. 'Who pass off a tough old ram (petro, fr. πέτρος, 'a stone') as a prime wether.'

823. aedilicias: the aediles had the supervision of the markets at Rome as the ἀγορανόμοι had in Greek states. 'Bravo! posts his notices like any clerk of the market!'

Euge = εὖ γε.

824. Mirumque adeost ni. Cf. v. 805.

826. cibus may be gen. of a fourth declension form, cibus -ūs (cf. v. 855), but it is more probably nom. in apposition to commeatus.

827. cesso never means 'to cease,' 'leave off a thing' (desino, desisto), but 'to loiter,' 'be slow about beginning a thing.' 'Let me go at once and make Hegio's old heart overflow with joy!'

828. adaeque . . . fortunatior. Cf. v. 700.

832. assulatim: 'piecemeal,' 'in splinters,' (assulae).

834. A play on the two senses of respicio, (1) 'look back at,' (2) 'regard favourably,' e. g. Hor. Od. I. 2. 36 sive neglectum genus et nepotes | respicis auctor. There were temples to Fortuna Respiciens on the Palatine, and on the Esquiline.

835. Respicedum: the enclitic dum is often found in old Latin after imperatives, e. g. respice dum, age dum (v. 570), and in the classical period after adverbs of time, e. g. interdum, dudum, vixdum, nondum. Perhaps it was originally the acc. of dius, a form of dies (cp. interdiu, diurnus), and meant 'for a day,' 'for awhile.'

836. Quantumst hominum: 'the whole world;' a common phrase of every-day Latin. Cf. Catullus. 2.2 et quantum est hominum venustiorum. The Latin language has a liking for the partitive genitive; cf. quid negotii est?, adhuc locorum, etc.

840. anteuortunt: 'take the precedence of.'

843. Bene facis = 'thank you!' Benigne facis is another common phrase of the kind.

844. uolturi, i. e. 'you greedy fellow.' We should probably say, 'you greedy wolf!' This -i of the voc. is really a contraction of -ie, and so uolturi = volturie, mi = mie = mee.

846. astitui = 'to be set near' (the fire).

848. praestinatum. Both praestino and destino are common words for 'buying' in Plautus, e.g. Most. 3. 1. 113 eas quanti destinat? They are compounds of **stano*, a nasalized present tense of sto, just as danunt (v. 819) is a nasalized present form from do. Praestino means literally 'to settle, bargain for, beforehand.'

850. bene esse: 'to enjoy yourself.' Cf. Men. 484 minore numquam bene fui dispendio.

si sit unde: 'if you have the means.'

852. Nominandi istorum. This construction stands midway between the old construction nominandi ista (e.g. Trin. 869 herele opinor mi aduenienti hac noctu agitandumst uigilias; Lucr. 1. 111 aeternas quoniam poenas in morte timendumst), and the classical construction nominandorum istorum. Other examples of it are Cic. Phil. 5. 3. 6 agitur utrum M. Antonio facultas detur . . agrorum suis latronibus condonandi; Lucr. 5. 1223 poenarum grave sit solvendi tempus adultum; Ter. Heaut. 29 novarum qui spectandi faciunt copiam. It is only found with the gen. of the gerund, and perhaps only with a plural noun.

854. frustra esse = 'to be mistaken'; a common phrase in colloquial Latin.

855. uicti = victus. Many words which in the classical period were declined according to the fourth declension only were in early Latin declined also according to the second, e.g. senati, quaesti, tumulti, etc. The double declension has forced itself into the classical language in the case of domus, which is always 2nd decl. in Plautus.

856. uotem. Cf. v. 703.

857. Tu ne: the regular idiom in colloquial Latin. Cf. Trin. 634 LY. egone? LE. tu ne; Most. 4. 2. 39, etc. The ne is the particle 'indeed,' 'verily,' sometimes (but wrongly) written nae.

862. Quor = cur, just as quum (quom) = cum, sequutus = secutus, etc.

863. Quoi deum = cui deorum.

866. Mihi quidem essurio, non tibi. Ergasilus pretends to have understood Hegio to say videre—esurire mihi and not videre mihi—esurire.

IV. 2. 87-119. NOTES. LINES 840-899.

867. Te hercle. Ergasilus checks himself just as he is going to say perdant, and obeys the rules of courtesy at the expense of those of grammar by turning the sentence as he does.

870. Nunc tu mihi places: 'now I begin to fancy your dinner;' refers to vv. 175 sqq.

871. Igitur was originally a word used to introduce the apodosis, 'then,' e.g. in the Twelve Tables, SI IN IVS VOCAT, NI IT, ANTESTATOR, IGITUR EM CAPITO, 'if a man summon another, and if the other will not go, he may take bystanders to witness, then he may arrest him.' It had no idea of 'cause,' 'reason,' being derived from the demonstrative pronoun is with the adverbial suffix -tur or -tus, as in funditus, etc., and meaning 'in that case,' 'in these circumstances.' In classical prose it usually comes second word in a sentence, though it is not uncommonly placed first. A good example of its older use is Mil. 770 quando habebo, igitur rationem mearum fabricarum dabo.

875. Aleum. Cf. v. 9.

tuum Stalagmum seruom: the usual order; cf. tua Bromia ancilla Amph. 5. 1. 28; meus Mnesilochus filius Bacch. 2. 3. 112.

881. Νῆ τὰν Κόραν: Kópa, besides being the Greek name of Proserpine, was the name of a town in Latium, and the excited brain of Ergasilus is driven by the association of ideas to swear by all the other towns in Latium he can think of, Praeneste, Signia, Frusino, Alatrium.

882. Iam diu . . . Venit? 'has he been here long?' A most plausible reading is tam modo, which we know to have been a Praenestine phrase for 'just now' (modo); (cf. Trin. 3. 1. 8 tam modo, inquit Praenestinus, "e'en now," as the folks say at Praeneste). This piece of provincialism, slipping from Hegio in the excitement of the moment, suggests Praeneste to the parasite.

883. Vide sis. Cf. v. 643.

884. barbaricas. Cf. v. 492.

Quia enim: common in Plautus. Cf. Mil. 834 quia enim obsorbui.

885. Vae aetati tuae: i. e. vae vitae tuae; a common expression in every-day Latin.

886. Quippe, i. e. vae aetati tuae quippe, etc.

892. etiam: 'still.'

895. cellarius: 'butler.'

896. fusti pectito: a Latin slang expression like our 'to give one a dressing.'

897. dapinabo (from daps) is a word of Plautus' coining. 'I'll dinner you till doomsday, if it's true.'

898. Vnde id? 'at whose expense?'

899. respondeo: (1) 'I promise on my part,' (2) 'I answer.'

900. Bene ambula. Cf. v. 452.

902. collos. Cf. v. 357.

tegoribus = tergoribus.

904. apsumedo: a Plautine word.

906. morast: like longum est, 'it would be tedious,' etc.

907. praefecturam. A praefectus iuri dicundo was sent every year by the praetor urbanus to the praefecturae.

908. indemnatae: 'unsentenced.'

pendent, (1) 'hang'—of hams, (2) 'are undecided'—of lawsuits.

909. Diespiter, from dies and pater, an old name for Jupiter. Indeed the two names are very similar, for Jupiter = 'Jov-pater,' and we know that the old form of Jovis was Diovis.

911. intemperies in the sing. has the sense of 'misfortune,' lit. 'bad weather.' In the plur. intemperiae in Plautus means 'madness:' e.g. Mil. 434 quae te intemperiae tenent?

913. Nimis. Cf. v. 102.

914. carni = carne, just as the abl. of pres. participles wavers between -ē and -i, e.g. regnante, regnanti, praestante, praestanti; the rule being that the form in -e is used when the participial sense is predominant, and that in -i when the adjectival sense is predominant, e.g. regnante Romulo, praestante Romulo hoc factum est, but a Romulo, viro praestanti, hoc factum est.

carnarium: a frame fastened to the ceiling, furnished with hooks for supporting meat: 'in he came and tugged down the meat, frame and all.'

916. modiales: i.e. the large-sized ones, holding a 'modius;' a Roman measure corresponding to our peck.

917. seriae: the largest-sized jars.

919. sultis. Cf. v. 110.

920. sese is acc. before inf. uti.

ACT V. SCENE 1.

Philocrates and Philopolemus have brought with them Stalagmus, the runaway slave of Hegio's who had kidnapped Tyndarus when a child. By his means the identity of Tyndarus is proved, and the play ends happily.

923. Quom . . . reddiderunt. Cf. v. 151.

Hegio tells off all his blessings, first, second, third, fourth, fifth, on his fingers.

928. ex animo and ab animo often occur in the Comedians, where we should expect animo or animi, 'in mind.'

930. Hoc agamus : 'and now to the main point.' Hoc age is a common phrase in every-day Latin (cf. v. 444) for calling on a person to devote himself to some matter that required to be done. Philocrates has shown symptoms of impatience during Hegio's enumeration of his blessings, and Philopolemus, who divines his new friend's anxiety for the instant release of his faithful slave, courteously interferes on his behalf.

935. bene merenti. Benevolens is always used as a substantive by Plautus, 'a well wisher,' but bene merens never; so translate, 'our friend who well deserves it.'

muneres = munereris. A good many deponents occur in an active form in old Latin and vice versa, e. g. insectabit v. 593; minitas v. 743; exauspicavi v. 766; arbitrarem Pseud. 4. 2. 57; contempla Mil. 4. 2. 39, etc. The word always means 'to present,' not 'to recompense,' in Plautus.

938. reliqueram. Cf. v. 194.

944. conpeditum : 'fettered;' an ante-classical verb.

945. resciui : from rescisco, 'to find out,' 'learn:' ante-classical.

946. euenisse : inf. of exclamation. This construction is found in the earliest Latin writers, and so should not be explained by the ellipse of flagitium est or anything of the kind. It is a verbal noun in the acc. case, just as an ordinary noun is put in the acc. in exclamations. In this passage of Cicero, for example, the construction of hominem cannot be distinguished from that of describere, Cic. Verr. 5. 25 huncine hominem! hancine impudentiam, indices! hanc audaciam! civitatibus pro numero militum pecuniarum summas describere! certum pretium . . . constituere!

meum caput = me, as in vae capiti tuo, etc.

947. libellam : a small silver coin,  $\frac{1}{10}$  of a denarius. Hence = a trifle, 'a farthing.'

duis : a subjunctive of the same formation as velim, nolim, malim, sim, edim, from duo, an old form of do, surviving in interduo v. 694 supr.

949. Facis benigne = 'thank you!' Cf. v. 843.

951. interibi = interim in old Latin.

statua uerberea : 'whipping post.' Stalagmus is standing as dumb as a statue, or, as we might say, as a post. Verberca = 'composed of verbera.'

952. quid sit factum filio : the abl. in this construction is really an abl. of the instrument, lit. 'what has been done with my son as an instrument.'

955. We may picture Stalagmus to ourselves as a scowling fellow of few words, with a stern realization of the inevitable. Perhaps his name Σταλαγμός, 'drop,' indicates that he was a small-sized man. Cf. Anaxandrides (ap. Athen. 2. p. 242 d) ἐὰν δὲ μικρὸν παντελῶς ἀνθρώπιον, σταλαγμόν (sc. καλεῖτε).

957. ne . . . ponas. Cf. v. 331.

958. Propemodum is the usual form. Sometimes we have propemodo, which is nothing but propemodom, the old spelling of propemodum, with the final m dropped. In postmodo this form became the classical one, while postmodum is of rare occurrence.

964. dice. The full forms dice, duce, face, etc. are quite as common in Plautus as the shortened ones. In fact, face is the rule and fac the exception. We find inger sometimes, e.g. Catull. 27. 2 inger mi calices amariōres, but this form did not make its way into classical usage.

quid fers. Cf. v. 669.

965. fieri . . . compendi: the gen. is a gen. of material, 'make of saving' = 'make a saving of.' In the same way lucri facere = 'to make a gain of.'

967. Hoc agamus. Cf. v. 930.

976. med: we find in old Latin the acc. sing. of the personal pronouns ending in -d, med, ted, sed. They are properly abl. forms; for in early Latin the abl. sing. had this ending, e.g. Troiad, acied.

977. te uolo: the regular Latin expression for 'I wish to speak with you,' 'I want you.'

984. Paegnium = παίγνιον, 'plaything,' 'toy,' 'Pet.'

986. quous nihili sit faciunda gratia: 'whose goodwill must go for nothing.'

989. nil curauī ceterum: lit. 'I cared nothing for the rest.'

991. argumenta: 'proofs.'

992. pudice: 'respectably.'

996. modo si = si modo.

997. ornatus: alluding to the chains on him (cf. v. 447).

998. Acherunti: a locative case. The word was fem., and the first syllable was pronounced long in Plautus' time. Cf. brāchium = βράχιον.

1004. upupa: (1) 'a hoopoe,' (2) 'a pickaxe,' 'crowbar,' (like a hoopoe's bill.) 'They gave me this crow to play with.'

1008. lucis . . . tuendi: lux is masc., as elsewhere in Plautus; so this is not an instance of the construction of the gerund that we find in v. 852.

1013. Paruolum: the diminutive termination was in old Latin -olus, not -ulus. It is retained in our spelling whenever a vowel precedes, e.g. filiolus, 'little son,' Puteoli, 'little wells,' and of course also after the letter v. Cf. v. 703 and v. 8.

1019. grandis: 'grown up;' the regular word.

1025. Ego sum: 'it is I,' like the German, ich bin es.

1026. principium: 'first,' lit. 'as a beginning,' in opposition to id.

1028. Quoi peculi, etc.: 'the smallest contributions thankfully received.'

ACT V. SCENE 5.

All the actors come on the stage to deliver the Epilogue, which claims the applause of the spectators on the ground of the good moral tone of the play.

There is not always a regular Epilogue to Plautus' plays. Usually the singer (cantor) of the troupe came forward alone and simply asked the applause of the audience in the word plaudite or plausum date. The cantor is denoted in MSS. and in our editions by the Greek letter  $\omega$ , because it used to be the habit to indicate the characters in the dialogue of a play by the first letters of the Greek alphabet,  $\alpha$ ,  $\beta$ ,  $\gamma$ , etc., and the last speaker, the cantor, by the last letter  $\omega$ .

NOTES ON READINGS.

THE text of the 'Captivi' is at a disadvantage as compared with other plays of Plautus in not having the help of the 'Ambrosian Palimpsest' (A), a manuscript of the 4th or 5th cent., at Milan, which contains in a fragmentary state a good deal of the Plautine Comedies. We have accordingly to fall back on the second most important manuscript, the 'Vetus' (B), of the 11th. cent., formerly in the Palatine library, Heidelberg, now in the Vatican, which is supported by the 'Vatican' MS. (D) also of the 11th cent., but containing only vv. 1-503 of this play, and a less important 13th cent. MS. of the British Museum (J).

The principal passages whose reading is in question are these :—

v. 2. The MSS. have illi qui astant, which will not scan. Brix reads in vinclis qui astant; Fleckeisen vincti quia astant; Spengel inviti qui astant; Schoell iugati qui adstant.

v. 11. Negat hercle ille ultimus, accedito of the MSS. will not scan. Brix changes ille into illic, treating the final syllable of negat as long. Fleckeisen inserts vero after hercle. Schoell reads ultimus accensus, cedito. Some editors think the sense requires abscedito (but see the note on this line).

v. 55. See the note.

Act I. Sc. ii. Schoell has here and elsewhere lolarius, the reading of the MSS. in this place, and of the best MSS. of Aulus Gellius (X. 3. 19 tanquam in scaenicis fabulis qui dicebantur 'lolarii'): cf. caelum and caerulus; Pales and Parilia, etc.

v. 135. Miser amacritudine is the MSS. reading. Fleckeisen proposes miser aegritudine, in which he is followed by most editors. Schoell reads I macritudine, comparing Aul. 77 neque quicquam melius mihi, | Ut opinor, quam ex me ut unam faciam litteram | Longam, meum laqueo collum quando obstrinxero.

v. 172 sqq. Schoell distributes the lines better:

ERG. Ita di deaeque faxint! Sed numquo, etc.

HEG. Nusquam quod, etc.

ERG. Quia mist natalis dies: | Propterea a te uocari ad te ad cenam uolo.

v. 199. eamque et erili MSS., duramque erili Brix. Fleckeisen changes et into etiam. Schoell que et into queit (for quit 3rd sing. of queo). Nettleship et erili imperio: camque.

PLAVTI CAPTIVI.

v. 201. multa oculis multamiraclitis B. For this unintelligible reading Kiene has proposed oculis multam iram editis (cl and d are often confused in MSS.); Spengel oculis melius parclitis; Schoell multabo bolis | Oculos si multum raditis.

v. 321. Schoell reads decore (neut. of adj. decōris).

v. 387. id petam id persequarque MSS., which will not scan; id petam idque persequar Brix; id petessam id persequarque Fleck.; id petam idque persequar corde et animo, ore atque auribus Schoell.

v. 426. testem do Hegio is the unmetrical reading of the MSS. The old grammarian Nonius quotes the passage with laudo instead of do. Bentley makes the line scan by reading testem laudo O Hegio, supposing the interjection O to have dropped out after the final o of laudo. Fleck. and Brix prefer to read testem do tibi Hegio. Schoell do laudo, Hegio.

v. 431. cauto MSS. cauē tu most editors. Guyet, and recently Nettleship, have proposed cauito.

v. 439 is a good instance of how old forms have dropped out of the text of Plautus owing to the ignorance of the copyists of MSS. The grammarian Nonius quotes this line as an example of the adverb fidele, formed from fidelis as facile is from facilis; but all the MSS. have fideli, the copyists having thought fidele a mistake for the dative case. Fidele fidelis is a phrase quite in the Plantine manner. Cf. misere miser Pseud. 13; scite scitus Cas. 3. 1. 8; parce parcus Aul. 314, etc.

v. 441. Schoell has inventu (sc. fili).

v. 471. See the note.

v. 519. The MSS. reading is neque exitium exitio est, which is nonsense. Brix, who is followed by Schoell, reads neque exitium exitiost, taking exitio as the verbal subst. from exire, governing exitium in the acc., so that exitio exitium will = facultas exeundi ex exitio. For the acc., he compares Ter. Hec. 378 ut limen exirem, and Plaut. Mil. 1432 postquam portam (the reading of the best MS.) exierunt. Leo conjectures neque exillim exitiost, 'nor is there possibility of getting out from that place;' a very likely conjecture. Fleck. reads neque auxilium mist.

v. 577. The MSS. have: Quid ais, furcifer? tun te gnatum m. moras liberum? Fleck. inserts esse to complete the line. Gruter, who has been followed by Nettleship, changes te to tete. Schoell reads gnatum (gen. pl.) ime.

v. 594. fit opus BJ; ui opust Schoell.

v. 690. Qui per uirtutem peritat non interit B. Schoell and Nettleship restore the line by reading perit, abit, non interit.

v. 694. nihil interdico dicant uiuere MSS. The true reading is probably interdico aiant. Fleckeisen's interduo is a questionable use of the word.

v. 791. eminor interminorque B. Brix removes que. Fleck. reads minor and ekes out the metre by adding hodie after mi. Schoell obstet obuiam.

v. 832. pultando vel assultatim B. Assultatim, an adverbial form from assulto, the frequentative of assilio, would mean 'by leaping upon.' In the MS. from which B was copied we may suppose the scribe had written this word above the obscure word assulatim as a various reading, vel assultatim 'or, as some read, assultatim.' The writer of B copied vel assultatim as part of the line.

v. 850. pernam||atque opthalmiam of the MSS. leaves an awkward hiatus. Besides, the mention of ham in a list of fishes seems rather odd. Fleck. suggests muraenam, 'a lamprey;' Brix percam, 'a perch;' Schoell sepiolam, 'a cuttle-fish.'

v. 862. atque agnum adferri proprium pinguem MSS., propere unum Brix; propere Fleck. with huc after agnum; propertim Bentley; propteruom Schoell.

v. 882. See the note. Schoell reads iam, diui.

v. 896. The MSS. have mantiscinatus, which Schoell retains, explaining it as manu tesca faciens, 'laying waste.'

INDEX TO THE NOTES.

---

absque, 754.
 absurdus, 71.
Adverbs of rest and of motion, 173;
     in -im, 215.
 amitto, 36.
 arbitror, 219.
 ast, 682.
Attraction (inverse), 1.
 audeo, 238.

barbaricus = Roman, 492.

clueo, 689.
 condigne, 107.

diespiter, 909.
 donicum, 339.
 duellum, 68.
 dum (enclitic), 835.

enim, 592.
 ex, ec-, 457.

familia, 307.
 faxis, 124.
Future Perfect used for Future, 194.
     — periphrastic, 345.
     — in -bo, 785.

Gerund with Gen. Plur., 852. gratis, 106.

hau, 182.
 hoc = huc, 480.
 hodie, 348.
 hostis, 246.

igitur, 871.
 ilicet, 469.
 illi = illic, 261.
Indicative in indirect questions.
     669.

Infinitive without se after verbs of saying, 194.
     — of exclamation, 946.
 lorarius, 110.
 lux, 1008.

mirum est ni, 805.

n dropped before s, 421.
     — in present tense stems, 819.
 ne with Pres. Subj. in prohibitions, 331.
     — = indeed, 857.
 nescius, 265.
 nonne, num, 714.
 numquam, 408.

oro, 333.

Passive of intransitive verbs, 80.
Pluperfect for Perfect, 17.
Present, with postquam, 24.

INDEX TO THE NOTES.

quasi, 20.
 qui (Adverb), 553.
 quum (causal), 151.

reliquus, 16.

s (final), 317, 815.
 sedulo, 257.
 similis, 116.
 sis = si vis, 110.
 stalagmus, 955.

Subjunctive (restrictive use of), 173.
 susum vorsum, 656.
 suus sibi, 5.

ultro, 551.
 unus (as Indef. Art.), 482.
 ut (in commands), 115.

v (dropped), 516.
Vowels, Latin, liable to change, 292.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.

---

On the TEXTUAL CRITICISM of Plautus' plays :

Ritschl, Opuscula, Vol. II, Prolegomena.

On Plautine PROSODY :

Ritschl, Opuscula, Vol. II, Prolegomena.

Christ, Metrik der Griechen u. Römer. Leipzig, 1879.

Spengel, Reformvorschläge zur Metrik der lyrischen Versarten bei Plautus. Berlin, 1882.

On OLD LATIN :

Bücheler, Grundriss der lateinischen Declination. Bonn, 1879.

(French translation by Havet. Paris, 1875.)

Stolz, Lateinische Grammatik in Vol. II of I. Müller's Handbuch der klassischen Alterthumswissenschaft. Nördlingen, 1885.

On Plautine SYNTAX :

Holtze, Syntaxis Priscorum Scriptorum Latinorum. Leipzig, 1861-2.

On the SCENIC ARRANGEMENTS of Roman Comedy :

Daremberg and Saglio, Dictionnaire des Antiquités grecques et romaines. (Art. Comœdia.) Paris, 1873.

Wieseler, Theatergebäude und Denkmäler des Bühnenwesens bei den Griechen und Römern. Göttingen, 1851.

On the VOCABULARY of Plautus :

Langen, Beiträge zur Kritik und Erklärung des Plautus. Leipzig, 1880.

Weise, Lexicon Plautinum. Quedlinburg, 1886.

Orford

HORACE HART, PRINTER TO THE UNIVERSITY

5

PA 6568
C2
1892

Plautus, Titus Maccius
Captivi 2d ed.

PLEASE DO NOT REMOVE CARDS OR SLIPS FROM THIS POCKET

---

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO LIBRARY

---

